Plane Tows Laden Glider 3500 Miles To England

R. A. F. Transports Ton and a Half of Freight Across Atlantic in 28 Hours

By Lewis Hawkins
Associated Press Staff Writer

London (Monday), July 5.—A freight-loaded glider recently was towed across the Atlantic in a successful test of a "sky train" technique opening great possibilities in air transport, the Air Ministry disclosed today.

The glider was loaded with vaccines for Russia and radio, aircraft and motor parts, and was towed by a twin-engined Douglas C-47 transport, a type which the British call Dakota. It completed the 3500-mile journey in 28 hours.

The glider chosen for the experiment by the R. A. F. transport command had an 84-foot wingspan with freight capacity of a 1½ tons. Known as type CG4A, it was designed by the Waco Aircraft Co. and built by a New York piano manufacturer.

The flight was preceded by many months of experimental hops with the fully-loaded glider. The major test was a triangular course flown to and from Montreal by way of Newfoundland and Labrador. The last stage of this flight was 820 miles, setting a record for loaded glider flight by exceeding the American mark of 670 miles.

Some of the worst weather of 50 years beset these experimental runs—including a blizzard which forced the glider down in snowy mountains—but the Atlantic crossing starting from Montreal was hampered by bad weather only on the first leg.

On the first hop it took three hours to climb against headwinds to 9000 feet in a vain effort to try to get over clouds. But the weather improved and the final day's run brought the "train" to its destination exactly at the estimated arrival time.

The glider, loaded and unloaded through a large door in the nose, was reinforced for the trip with steel attachments designed to take a pull of 20,000 pounds.

NYA Chief Gives Order To Fold Up

By the Associated Press

The National Youth Administration as an operating agency is dead—eight years and three days after it came into being.

Aubrey Williams, only director the organization has ever had, signed the death certificate in telegrams ordering cessation of work in 500 communities, after Congress completed legislative action on cutting NYA down to a three million dollar liquidation fund.

Williams said today the order went out Saturday night and affected some 5500 persons in training for war work. All project supervisor personnel, numbering about 4300 was dismissed, and the headquarters staff of about 600 was cut to what Williams called "a bare modicum of administrative personnel to wind up NYA affairs."

Williams Has No Plans

The director said his own plans were indefinite—"I really hadn't thought of any yet. If I had any at the moment it would be to go into the Army."

Williams called Congress' action in terminating NYA a "very unfortunate happening."

"It means the stoppage of training for about 1000 people a day whom we have been turning out for war industries," he said.

"It means the loss of from 650 to 700 a day out of that number

Soldier Sinks To Death From Upset Canoe

Corporal Drowns In Potomac; Rescue Attempted in Vain

A gay canoeing party in the upper Potomac ended in tragedy yesterday afternoon when Corpl. Kenneth Louis Helfrich, 23, of the Army War College, was drowned.

Earlier in the day the body of a man tentatively identified as Joseph Paul Fearon, 28, was found in the Anacostia River near the Benning Bridge. The body apparently had been in the water several days, police said.

Helfrich's death followed an all-day outing of 15 War College soldiers, their wives and girl friends. His body had not been recovered last night.

The party in five canoes, had been paddling and splashing around the river since early morning, it was said, and all craft were near the Virginia shore opposite the 4700 block Canal Road Northwest.

In the canoe with Helfrich were Sergt. Gyton Williams and Mrs. Dorothy Sharpe, 66 New York Avenue Northwest. The latter was married only a week ago, the day before her husband, also a soldier, was ordered away.

Close to the Helfrich canoe was one containing Sergt. William F. Richards, his wife, Mrs. Janet Richards of 5907 Seventh Street Northwest, and another girl identified as Cornelia Brown. The other three

600,000 Women Needed for Army

Col. Oveta Culp Hobby, commanding officer of the Women's Army Corps, said yesterday that the Army could use 600,000 women, thereby replacing that number of men for active duty.

Disbanding of the WAAC and absorption of its personnel who desire into the Army will take place between now and September 30. "Women soldiers" on the streets of the Capital predict that the 65,000 American women now wearing the uniform of the WAAC will not leave the ranks.

Recess Date Seen Hinging On Food Vote

Vacation-Bent Congress Seeks To Break Supply Bill Deadlock

By Jack Bell
Associated Press Staff Writer

With total appropriations of this session mounting toward the 130-billion-dollar mark, leaders are seeking to dispose of the perplexing subsidy controversy and get final approval of five money bills in time to send the irritated and weary Seventy-eighth Congress home for a rest this week.

The subsidy question will be before the Senate today for action on a House-approved measure which would extend the life of the Commodity Credit Corporation for six months and increase its borrowing power by 350 million dollars so as to carry on the Administration's program of rolling back the retail prices of meat, butter and coffee.

The Senate Banking Committee on Saturday approved legislation for the six-month extension, but fixed a limit of 525 millions on the amount of subsidy money CCC could spend in that time.

Farm Groups Renew Attack

The proposed legislation brought a renewed attack on the Administration's food subsidy plan by the so-called big four farm organizations, the National Grange, the American Farm Bureau Federation, the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives and the National Cooperative Milk Producers Federation.

The farm organizations declared the subsidy plan means passing on the current food bill to future generations and the "eventual breakdown of our entire economic system." They proposed that Congress wait until after the recess to consider the CCC extension "without the vicious subsidy program now entailed."

If the Administration wins a temporary victory on the subsidy issue, Congress probably will be able to quit by midweek, with President Roosevelt's batting average on major legislation standing well over the .500 mark.

Topping the list of presidential demands on Congress in the past six months was the President's request for a 107-billion-dollar budget to run the war and keep the home front agencies operating.

Bills Awaiting Action

A compilation showed yesterday that total appropriations since this Congress convened will reach $130,418,000,000 if the five pending bills are finally approved with amounts they now bear. This larger total is accounted for by deficiency appropriations to meet expenditures during the fiscal year that ended July 1, as well as the advance appropriations for amounts the Government will spend in the new fiscal year.

The bills yet to be acted on finally include Labor-Federal Security, war agencies, Agriculture, Interior and a deficiency money measure, all carrying a total of more than five billion dollars.

Looking back, members could count about as many issues on which President Roosevelt got about what he asked from Congress as those on which he struck out.

Besides the big appropriations for which he asked, the President obtained extension of lend-lease, the reciprocal trade program and Treasury authority to continue operations of the two-billion-dollar stabilization fund.

Loses 2 Favored Agencies

To all intents he won a bitter battle with the farm bloc, in which he vetoed a bill by Senator Bankhead (Democrat) of Alabama, to force agricultural ceiling prices up.

On the other side of the box score, however, he apparently has lost two of his favored agencies, the National Resources Planning

45-Minute Raid Rocks City; Forts Blast 3 Axis Targets

By the Associated Press

London, July 4.—The R. A. F rocked the already devastated city of Cologne for 45 minutes last night and also pounded Hamburg, while large formations of American Flying Fortresses took over the daylight offensive today by laying a destructive bomb pattern across three important Axis targets—Nantes, Le Mans and La Pallice in France.

The coordinated sky assaults cost the R. A. F. 32 planes and the United States air force 8 Fortresses.

Smoke and flame visible for 150 miles were left in Cologne to swirl through the ruins of that Rhineland industrial and communications hub, returning British bombardiers said.

It was a repeat performance of the big R. A. F. attack on Monday night—a raid which the German radio said had "entirely altered" Cologne's face.

The Americans, observing the first anniversary of Eighth Air Force operations over Europe, found the visibility excellent in the attacks on U-boat nests and port installations at Nantes and La Pallice, and an airplane factory at Le Mans.

"Bombing results were good," said the communique, which added that "strong fighter opposition was encountered at Le Mans and Nantes," but none at La Pallice.

"A number of enemy fighters were destroyed by the bombers," the communique said.

Sweeps Over Continent

R. A. F. fighter squadrons covering the withdrawal of one of the three bomber formations also knocked down two German fighters.

"We've got one less target to bomb now," said one American bombardier who participated in the blow at a German aircraft works in Le Mans, 120 miles southwest of Paris.

"They can cross that factory off the list," he said. "It just isn't there any more."

Interspersed with these raids were R. A. F. fighter and bomber sweeps over the continent during the day. Mitchells blasted an important freight yard at Amiens in the afternoon and their escorting Spitfires destroyed two Focke-Wulfs 190s and damaged a number of Messerschmitt 109s, the Air Ministry said.

Four British planes were reported missing.

Trapani Quays Being Wrecked; Sardinian Bases Pounded Anew

By the Associated Press

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 4.—Adding to destruction caused yesterday by the heaviest aerial attack on Italy's island airdromes since the fall of Pantelleria, Axis defenders of invasion-threatened Sicily have begun blowing up port installations that might be used in an Allied landing, it was disclosed today.

An official announcement said aerial photographs showed that the enemy was destroying his own quays at Trapani, on the northwest tip of Sicily, with demolition charges.

(The Rome radio said in a broadcast last night that the big air and naval base of Palermo, Sicily's capital, has "ceased to exist" under the pounding of Allied bombers.)

The Italian Sunday communique said Allied bombers bombed Ostia and Fiumicino at the mouth of the Tiber, southwest of Rome last night and repeatedly flew over the outskirts of Rome itself, drawing antiaircraft fire from the capital's batteries.

Nine Allied Planes Missing

(British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden reiterated last week that there would be no hesitation in bombing the Italian capital "if the course of the war should render such action convenient and helpful.")

Light, medium and heavy bombers and fighters of the North African Command participated in daylight assaults on Sardinian and Sicilian air fields, which official reports said did "heavy damage to buildings and parked aircraft." Ten enemy planes were destroyed in combat and nine Allied craft were reported missing.

The widespread daylight onslaught followed a raid on Trapani the preceding night by R. A. F. Wellington bombers, which also hit the Sardinian port of Olbia and left seven great fires blazing in its railway yards.

Quay Being Demolished

It was while surveying results of the attack on Trapani that aerial photographers discovered the enemy was adding to the destruction of the port, which lies only 100 miles directly across the Sicilian Straits from Allied-held Cap Bon in Tunisia. The purpose evidently is to deny the facilities to any Allied landing parties.

An announcement said that "the quay of the port of Trapani is being demolished by explosions all

Marked for Destruction

Japs' Gun Positions and Camps On Kiska Raided Nine Times

American airmen, battering the Japanese Kiska garrison which seems ultimately destined for destruction, have scored numerous damaging hits in a new series of nine raids.

The Navy, reporting this yesterday, said antiaircraft positions and the camp areas on the rocky Aleutians island were struck by the heaviest loads of bombs. Some of the gun emplacements may have been knocked out and casualties could have been caused in the living quarters.

It reported also, without explanation, that "one direct hit was made on a house." In view of the accuracy of American precision bombing it appears probable that the house was a chosen objective; it could have been a headquarters building for a part of the enemy's Kiska command.

Ventura and Mitchell medium bombers and Liberator heavy bombers carried out eight of the nine new raids on Kiska. They struck in waves on Friday at gun positions in the Gertrude Cove area, the camps and the north head section of the island.

The Liberators went back alone the next day again to pound enemy positions, hitting this time at the main camp area. Fog and low-hanging clouds, however, made it impossible to observe results of the attack.

Obviously a continuation of the aerial bombardment expected to soften up the Aleutians base for invasion, the raids were the heaviest reported since the general offensive started far away in the South and Southwest Pacific.

Americans Capture Vura Village, Kill 300 Japanese

By C. Yates McDaniel
Associated Press Staff Writer

Allied Headquarters in Australia (Monday), July 5.—Allied forces, expanding their gains in the new Southwest Pacific offensive under the personal leadership of Gen. Douglas MacArthur have seized Vura village on Gangunu Island, killing 300 of the Japanese garrison and dispersing the remainder.

Announcement of this new conquest came shortly after headquarters here had disclosed that General MacArthur himself had taken the field to direct operations. The general, who vowed when he left Corregidor in the Philippines that he some day would return, went to New Guinea last month, a headquarters statement said, to direct preparation of the great drive which in a few days resulted in occupation of Kiriwina and Woodlark Islands, capture of Voru harbor and a successful landing at Nassau Bay just below Salamaua in New Guinea.

21 More Planes Destroyed

At Rendova Island in the central Solomons, which was occupied by Allied troops last week, 21 Japanese planes were destroyed in air battles and by antiaircraft fire, the noon communique added. This raised to 155 the number of enemy planes downed since the beginning of the new drive last Wednesday.

The ground situation at Nassau Bay, on the northeast coast of New Guinea, was described as quiet.

"Since our landing 50 enemy dead have been counted, representing only a fraction of the total Japanese casualties," the communique said.

"Our losses have been moderate."

Patrol Clashes Continue

In the Salamaua sector, just north of Nassau Bay, patrol clashes are continuing. A Japanese patrol of 20 men was dispersed near Bobdubi, after 10 were killed and several wounded.

Referring to the capture of Viru Harbor on New Georgia last week, the noon communique declared that American casualties there totaled only 33.

Action Sunday included an attack by Allied torpedo and divebombers on the Japanese bivouac areas at Munda, site of a powerful Japanese air base on New Georgia.

Three direct hits were scored with 500-pound bombs.

U-Boat Losses Still Mounting In Atlantic

No Merchant Ship Sinkings Reported In 3 of 4 Past Weeks

By the Associated Press

The submarine, on the basis of announced sinkings, continued to lose force as a menace to Allied shipping and loss of life in the western Atlantic as the war entered its 201st week today.

For three of the last four weeks, there were no losses of merchant ships given by the Navy. That left at 670 the Associated Press total of announced Allied and neutral merchantmen sunk in the western Atlantic since Pearl Harbor.

It well bore out the statement by Prime Minister Churchill in London that more than 30 U-boats were destroyed in May and that the "massacre" of one of Germany's most dependable weapons continued through June.

The Prime Minister declared that "since the middle of May scarcely a single merchant ship has been sunk in the whole of the North Atlantic" and that June was the "best month we have ever

Juin Substitutes During Giraud's Trip to Washington

Algiers, July 4 (AP).—Gen. Henri Giraud appointed Gen. Alphonse Juin to act as commander in chief of French forces in North Africa while Giraud is absent on a visit to Washington, it was announced today.

Giraud, now en route at the invitation of President Roosevelt, is accompanied by three staff officers, the French office of information said.

(A dispatch from Natal, Brazil, last night said Giraud had passed through that port. Natal is an air base on the South Atlantic route between Africa and the United States.)

Russians About To Open Drive, Berlin Claims

Germans Suffer 800 Dead in 2 Charges On Northwest Front

By the Associated Press

London (Monday), July 5.—The Germans suffered 800 dead in two futile charges against an important height on the northwest front yesterday, Moscow announced early today, while the Berlin radio said Russian transport movements along the huge front had been completed and "a Soviet offensive now is to be expected almost any day."

Three German battalions of 2400 SS elite troops, supported by seven tanks, "tried to retrieve an important height which our guards captured at the end of June," presumably in the Velikie Luki sector, 90 miles from the Latvian border, the midnight Russian bulletin said.

The Russians said four of the seven Nazi tanks were crippled.

The bulletin also told of heavy Russian air attacks Friday night on Kerch and Temryuk, Crimean and Caucasian ports of the southern end of the long front.

Several German ships were sunk at Temryuk, the Russians said. All Soviet planes returned to their bases.

The consistent raids on these ports in the Kerch strait area may foreshadow Soviet land operations aimed at smashing the narrow Axis bridgehead in the Caucasus, where the German high command declared yesterday that Axis forces had advanced in the lagoon area below Temryuk "despite difficult terrain conditions and enemy counterdefense."

Moscow did not mention any land operations in the Caucasus, but Berlin radio commentators in broadcasts recorded by the Associated Press acknowledged that Soviet landing barges and flat-bottomed motor boats had been threatening Germany's rear communications leading back to the Crimea.

Blaze Destroys Three Stables At Bowie Track

Fire which started shortly after 8 o'clock destroyed three stables at the Bowie (Md.) race track last night but was brought under control by firemen in a battle of more than two hours before causing more damage.

Six companies from as many neighboring Prince Georges County communities fought the blaze and continued to play water on the stables at a late hour.

In Baltimore, Track Treasurer Alton Jump said that no more than 25 horses were quartered at the track. None of these were reported in the stables burned—stables C. D. and E.

Cause of the fire had not been determined, Jump said, but he expressed the opinion that vagrants who frequently take lodging in the barns were responsible. There was no racing at Bowie this season.

One World

By Wendell L. Willkie

Finds Universal Good Will Toward U. S.

I returned from that world tour, which brought me back to the United States on October 13, 1942, certain of one clear and significant fact:

That there exists in the world today a gigantic reservoir of good will toward us, the American people.

Whether I was talking to a resident of Belem or Natal in Brazil, or one toting his burden on his head in Nigeria, or a Prime Minister or a King in Egypt, or a veiled woman in ancient Bagdad, or a shah or a weaver of carpets in legendary Persia, now known as Iran, or a follower of Ataturk in those streets of Ankara which look so much like the streets of our Middle Western cities, or to a strong-limbed, resolute factory worker in Russia, or to Stalin himself, or the enchanting wife of the great generalissimo of China, or a Chinese soldier at the front, or a fur-capped hunter on the edge of the trackless forests of Siberia—whether I was talking to any of these people, or to any others, I found they all have one common bond, and that is their deep friendship for the United States.

Genuine Affection

They, each and every one, turn to the United States with a friendliness that is often akin to genuine affection.

In nearly every country I went to there is some great dam or irrigation project, some harbor or factory, which has been built by Americans.

People like our works, I found, not only because they help to make life easier and richer, but also because we have shown that American business enterprise does not necessarily lead to attempts at political control.

I found this dread of foreign control everywhere. The fact that we are not associated with it in men's minds has caused people to go much farther in their approval of us than I had dared to imagine.

I was amazed to discover how keenly the world is aware of the fact that we do not seek—anywhere, in any region—to impose our rule upon others or to exact special privileges.

As I see it, the existence of this reservoir is the biggest political fact of our time.

No other Western nation has such a reservoir. Ours must be used to unify the peoples of the earth in the human quest for freedom and justice.

No Agreement

It has become banal to say that this war is a revolution, in men's thinking, in their way of living, all over the world.

It is not banal to see that revolution taking place, and that is what I saw. It is exciting and a little frightening.

It is exciting because it is fresh proof of the enormous power within human beings to change their environment, to fight for freedom with an instinctive, awakened confidence that with freedom they can achieve anything.

It is frightening because the different peoples of the United Na-

Negotiations to Continue

Chance of Martinique Accord 'Favorable,' Says Adm. Hoover

By Joseph E. Dynan
Associated Press Staff Writer

San Juan, Puerto Rico, July 4. Vice Admiral John H. Hoover said today the chances of a settlement were "favorable" after his return from a Martinique conference with the Vichy French high commissioner, Admiral Georges Robert, who had requested a discussion on terms for changing French authority in the island colony. The negotiations will continue, Hoover said.

Hoover went to see Robert after the high commissioner had invited the United States Government to send a plenipotentiary to discuss the terms of such a change of rule, a decision Robert declared he had taken to "avoid bloodshed."

Martinique is the last remaining French possession of any size in the Western Hemisphere which has not severed its allegiance to the Vichy government.

Last night the Martinique radio broadcast a three-point plan under which Robert was represented as willing to permit the island to "pass to other French authority" and which was handed to Admiral Hoover.

The terms of the plan as outlined in the broadcast were: (1) A demand for guaranteeing the maintenance of French sovereignty; (2) The nonintervention of foreign armed forces, and (3) The resumption of the supply of provisions.

Informed sources said Admiral Hoover merely planned to obtain Robert's conditions for relay to Washington where it was assumed the decision would rest on what further action would be taken.

With American recognition of the French National Committee in Algiers, it was necessarily assumed that the United States would refer any proposed agreement to the French committee or its authorized representative.

No Nerves, Apparently

D. C. Babies Reported Thriving Amid Wartime Conditions

Babies, at least, are thriving on the wartime conditions of Washington, the Health Department announced yesterday. Perhaps because they don't meet rabid dogs, have no nerves to jitter and are not depressed by the insanitary tenement conditions that 50 per cent or so of them live in, 9.5 per cent more infants survived the first six months of this year than of 1942.

Dr. Ella Oppenheimer of the health department said that the survival increase was due, among other things, to an all-along-the-line improvement in hospital facilities, prenatal care, care in the clinic, new knowledge of nutrition, and education of parents. It will be some time, before a more definite statement can be made, Dr. Oppenheimer said.

More babies are coming into the world this year, also, Health Department statistics reveal. Between New Year's Day and the fiscal new year's eve, 11,005 births were reported, which were 1982, or 15.5 per cent, more than in the same period last year. For some reason, the Health Department found, most of this increase was in white families, of whom there were 8311 born—1459 more than in the 1942 period—and there were only 23 more colored children than the 2671 born in the first six months of last year.

To keep up with this acceleration, the Bureau of Maternal and Child Welfare has had to step up the services given at its 16 clinics. The individual gets the works—immunization, health examination and tuberculin testing—in one visit to a clinic instead of going to separate clinics for each purpose.

Raeder Leads Force To Battle Invasion

War Sidelights

Hitler Well, Goering Too, Nazis Insist

London, July 4 (AP).—The Nazi-controlled Calais radio said today that reports of the illness of both Adolf Hitler and Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering were "completely false."

Stockholm dispatches yesterday said Goering was reported very ill from a nervous breakdown and serious heart trouble. Lack of any recent mention of Hitler in the German press had led to rumors he had suffered a nervous collapse.

Chinese Repulse Japs

Chungking, July 4 (AP).—Chinese forces have beaten back two Japanese counterattacks in southern Hupeh Province near Kungan, one of the bases from which the invaders launched their abortive drive on the upper Yangtze, the Chinese command announced today.

Mme. Chiang Gets Home

Chungking, July 4 (INS).—Mme. Chiang Kai-shek flew back to Chungking at 6 o'clock this morning from her visit to the United States. Her return had been a closely guarded secret, so that even Generalissimo Chiang was not at the airport to greet his wife. She drove immediately to her home.

Her return was accomplished in less than a week and apparently had been made by way of Africa, Asia Minor and Russia, similar to the course followed by Wendell Willkie.

She was air sick, but otherwise the return was without incident. She plans to rest for several days.

Burma Bridge Bombed

New Delhi, July 4 (AP).—U. S. bombers knocked out the important Myitnge railroad bridge over the Irrawaddy near Japanese-held Mandalay in Burma again yesterday, destroying the south span and smashing tracks and the embankment on the south approach, it was announced today.

Italians Blow Up Sicilian Docks

along the side where shipping is unloaded, according to photo reconnaissance." The 5000-foot quay line is adjacent to the Trapani submarine basin.

Sicilian air fields at Milo, Sciacca and Comiso were objectives of three raids yesterday of American and South African light and medium bombers escorted by American Warhawk fighters.

Determined opposition both from the ground and from enemy fighters failed to prevent American Bostons from placing their bombs squarely on the air field and dispersal areas at Sciacca.

American Mitchells dropped more than 80 tons of explosives on Comiso, in southeastern Sicily, and photographs revealed "an outstanding job of pattern bombing," the official report said.

American fighter-bombers spotted two small enemy coastal vessels and set both afire.

Airdrome Battered

The day's operations of the strategic air force were featured by the bombing of Alghero-Cartela airdrome in northwest Sardinia.

Mitchells dropped their bombs on four large buildings there and pitted the air field, while their gunners shot down 5 out of 12 enemy interceptors.

Mitchells and Marauders attacked Milis airdrome in central Sardinia, covering the field with bombs and causing heavy explosions among installations.

A Valletta communique reported that Malta-based fighters provided cover for the bomber attack upon Comiso.

The Italian communique claimed that a total of 50 Allied planes, including "numerous" four-engined bombers, were shot down over Sicily during the day. It said Italian fighters accounted for 18 and German fighters 10, and that antiaircraft fire destroyed the other 22. It said damage from the attacks was "negligible."

(A Milan dispatch, broadcast by Berlin, said "the concentration of Allied landing barges in all North African ports on the Mediterranean coast continues." Such concentrations also had been observed on Pantelleria and Malta, it said, and they were declared to be under continual attack by Axis bombers.)

Deaths Only 96 In U. S. for 2 Days Of Celebrations

By the Associated Press

The home front—kept busy by the Nation's preparations for war on the battle fronts—is recording one of the smallest expenditures of lives in history as the price for celebrating the Fourth of July weekend.

At the two-thirds way mark last night in the three-day holiday weekend, violent deaths from all causes in the United States reached only 96.

Traffic accidents, traditionally the cause of most holiday deaths, claimed 42 lives; drownings, 23, and miscellaneous causes, 31.

Fireworks, the manufacture of which has been virtually halted by the war, hadn't caused a single fatality.

Germans Organize 'Mystery' Service Under Admiral

By the Associated Press

Stockholm, July 4.—A Berlin dispatch reported today that a new German "general service" military branch headed by Grand Admiral Erich Raeder had been created, apparently to combat any Allied invasion.

Raeder organized the new branch with four divisions—coast guard, submarine, light and heavy naval forces—said the dispatch, which passed Nazi censors. It was principally a reorganization within the German navy, although personnel also was drawn from the army and air force.

The dispatch said "mystery" surrounded the reorganization, but that the task of the new branch apparently was to combat the expected invasion.

The units appeared designed primarily for operation around coastal areas which Hitler must defend on an arc from the top of Norway to Greece.

Raeder was head of the German navy from October 1, 1928 until January 30, when he was succeeded by Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz in a step interpreted as meaning Germany had decided upon intensification of submarine warfare as a main hope of winning the war.

Raeder's new branch will supplement the present branches of the army, navy and air forces, the dispatch said.

There was no indication of how much of Doenitz's naval personnel would be transferred to Raeder, or how the overlapping of their naval forces might be coordinated.

Two Destroyers, Sub Launched in '4th' Ceremonies

Boston, July 4 (AP).—In observance of Independence Day, two more destroyers were launched today at Boston Navy Yard.

The vessels were the U. S. S. Newcomb, named for the late Commodore Frank H. Newcomb, who served in the Coast Guard in the Civil and Spanish Wars, and the U. S. S. Bennion, which honors the late Capt. Mervyn Sharp Bennion, killed while in command of the battleship West Virginia when the Japanese raided Pearl Harbor.

His widow, Mrs. Louise C. Bennion of Salt Lake City, sponsored the Bennion, while the Newcomb was christened by Mrs. C. C. Baughman, wife of Captain Baughman, director of special activities of the bureau of naval personnel, Navy Department.

Groton, Conn., July 4 (AP).—A trio of octogenarians, among them Capt. Frank T. Cable, commander of the first successful submarine ever launched in the United States, were honored today as the Angler, the tenth undersea boat to slide down the Electric Boat Co.'s ways in 19 weeks, smoothly hit the Thames River.

The sponsor of the Angler was Mrs. Patrick H. Drewry of Petersburg, Va., wife of Representative Drewry.

New Blows Rained Upon Cologne

Aside from an occasional swipe at Britain's formidable coastal defenses, the enemy stayed on his side of the Channel today. Britain thus began its second week of respite from aerial attacks.

The great fleets of R. A. F. bombers concentrated their fire and explosive bombs on the Kalk and Deutz sections of Cologne.

The Kalk-Deutz sections, along with Mulheim, form a compact area of about 5 square miles, half of which is covered with railways and war industries, including some of Germany's most important factories.

Among the major high priority war plants in the area is the Humboldt-Deutz works, which turns out a large proportion of the Diesel engines for Germany's submarines.

The Le Mans railway yards, freight car repair shops and engine sheds are among the largest in France. The city is the site of important armament factories including a subsidiary of the Renault plant on the outskirts of Paris which was attacked successfully by Eighth Air Force heavy bombers on April 4.

The Le Mans branch of the factory was enlarged after the devastating attack by R. A. F. bombers in the spring of 1942 on the Paris factory.

Le Mans also has the famous Gnome-Rhone aero engine plant producing motors for the German air force, particularly for the big six-engined transports which carried troops in the North African campaign and probably are being relied upon rush reinforcements to hard pressed points in the forthcoming land invasions.

La Pallice is one of the key U-boat refitting and repair bases. Nantes is a vital Luftwaffe servicing and repair depot.

tions, let alone their leaders, have by no means reached common agreement as to what they are fighting for, the ideas with which we must arm our fighting men.

For, however important the role of bayonets and guns may have been in the development of mankind, the role of ideas has been vastly more important—and, in the long run, more conclusive.

Historical Times

In historical times, at any rate, men have not often fought merely for the joy of killing each other. They have fought for a purpose. Sometimes that purpose has not been very inspiring. Sometimes it has been quite selfish.

But a war won without a purpose is a war won without victory.

What we must win now, during the war, are the principles. We must know what our line of solution will be.

I live in a constant dread that this war may end before the people of the world have come to a common understanding of what they fight for and what they hope for after the war is over.

Bright Dreams

I was a soldier in the last war and after that war was over, I saw our bright dreams disappear, our stirring slogans become the jests of the cynical, and all because the fighting peoples did not arrive at any common postwar purposes while they fought.

It must be our resolve to see that does not happen again.

While we fight, we must develop a mechanism of working together that will survive after the fighting is over.

Successful instruments of either national or international government are the result of growth. They cannot be created in a day.

Nor is there much hope of their being created amid the reawakened nationalistic impulses, the self-seeking, the moral degenerations, and the economic and social dislocations that are always incident to a postwar period.

They must be created now under the cementing force of common danger. They must be made workable and smooth-running, under the emery of day-to-day effort in the solution of common problems.

It is idle to talk about creating after the war is over a machinery for preventing economic warfare and promoting peace between nations, unless the parts of that machinery have been assembled under the unifying effort and common purpose of seeking to defeat the enemy.

It is a mere dream to talk of full employment dependent upon international trade and development after the war, unless now while we fight together we learn to work together in accord, respect, and understanding.

Common Council

What we need is a council today of the United Nations—a common council in which all plan together, not a council of a few, who direct or merely aid others, as they think wise.

We must have a council of grand military strategy on which all nations that are bearing the brunt of the fighting are represented.

And most important of all, as United Nations, we must formulate now the principles which will govern our actions as we move step by step to the freeing of the conquered countries.

And we must set up a joint machinery to deal with the multiple problems that will accompany every forward step of our victorious armies.

Otherwise we will find ourselves moving from one expediency to another sowing the seeds of future discontents—racial, religious, political—not alone among the peoples we seek to free, but even among the United Nations themselves.

It is such discontents that have wrecked the hopes of men of good will throughout the ages.

Developments Point to Action From Africa

By Kirke L. Simpson
Associated Press Staff Writer

Even as the offensive led by Gen. Douglas MacArthur develops in the far Pacific, there are ever-sharpening portents of still greater Allied action on the other side of the world, in the Mediterranean.

Capped by Prime Minister Churchill's blunt disclosure to Parliament of steps taken jointly by the Washington and London Governments to prevent any repercussions of French army or other controversies in Africa from delaying operations, the week's developments were significant.

They all pointed to early action from French Africa against the Axis-held continent, or its island bulwarks. While there may be action, too, from other African bases eastward, there can be no question that French Africa is a well prepared springboard, or that Allied sea and air power so dominates the Mediterranean that it can be crossed in force.

The fight will come on the selected landing beaches or beyond them, not at sea. Evidence of that came from an unexpected quarter. Lloyd's the great London marine insurance risk authority, is again authorizing rates for Mediterranean voyages. It has not done that since June, 1940. And these rates are even lower than those for the long cape route around Africa to the Indian Ocean, which has been little threatened.

That means Allied air power and naval forces are in complete control of the Mediterranean from end to end. And that means that the way to Sicily, Sardinia, the Italian boot itself, is open whenever Allied forces are ready to jump off from Africa.

The time element is implicit in every Allied move by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower to insure continued full control by Gen. Henri Giraud of French forces in North and West Africa.

Whatever Washington's displeasure with Giraud's rival, Gen. Charles de Gaulle, and London shares it to a very large extent, its primary basis is that his efforts to rearrange French command authority in the African operations zone and to reorganize the French army has caused, or could cause, delay in offensive strokes.

Hero Bulkeley Back in Thick Of Pacific War

By the Associated Press

Allied Headquarters in Australia, July 4.—Men already made famous by war are taking part in the newest Pacific battle, it was disclosed today, and prominent among them is the noted hero of the book, "They Were Expendable," Lieut. Comdr. John Bulkeley, whose racing P-T boat brought General MacArthur out of the Philippines.

When the Americans sailed under an umbrella of planes and inside a wall of destroyers, there also were the fast P-T's to help out. And Bulkeley commanded one of them.

In addition to General MacArthur, Lieut. Gen. Walter Krueger, commander of the Sixth Army, was there, in charge of the landing troops.

Naval operations were carried through by the United States Seventh fleet under the command of Vice Admiral Arthur S. Carpender. Rear Admiral Daniel Berbey was in charge of the fleet's amphibious force while Capt. J. H. Carter commanded escort vessels and Comdr. H. F. McGeen was in charge of landing craft.

Air activities were under Lieut. Gen. George C. Kenny, commander of Allied air forces in the Southwest Pacific.

known in the war."

At the same time Churchill said American and United Kingdom shipyards were producing between 7 and 10 times the amount of ships lost to the enemy in the month of June.

And from Washington came news American shipyards had delivered in the first six months of this year more tonnage than had been produced here in the entire record-breaking 12 months of 1942. Already 879 ships, totaling 8,818,622 deadweight tons, have come out of the shipyards as against last year's 747 vessels of 8,089,732 deadweight tons.

The announcement from London last Saturday a great convoy recently crossed the Atlantic under continuous air protection—"the mid-Atlantic gap was filled by planes from a British carrier"—marked another step in the increased protection given to convoys.

A Stockholm dispatch said the German admiralty had been forced to withdraw at least part of its undersea fleet from the Atlantic shipping lanes to learn new techniques to combat latest Allied counterblows from carriers.

Nazis Stifled Small Business, Report Says

Despite their promises to rehabilitate and support small business in Germany, the Nazis "have systematically proceeded to destroy" small firms, a Senate special committee to study American small business says in a report prepared by specialists from the new institute of social research and Columbia University.

In a preface to the 162-page report, signed by Senator Claude Pepper (Democrat) of Florida, a member of the special subcommittee, discussing the Nazi failure to keep their promises, says:

"Often it is done directly by forcing smaller concerns to colse down. Still more often it is done by undermining the independence of smaller concerns; that is, by making them completely subservient to a joint cartel, a prime contractor, or the third Reich itself.

"In either case, the tendency toward increased concentration of economic power—evident in all countries since the industrial revolution—has, under the Nazis been sanctified and accelerated by government decree."

The pamphlet, the joint work of Drs. A. R. L. Gurland, Otto Kircheimer, and Franz Neumann of the Institute of Social Research of New York, and Columbia University, concludes that the neglect of small business by the Weimar republic assisted Hitler in his rise to power.

"The Weimar republic," Senator Pepper says, "provided no opportunity for small business to obtain the longterm capital needed to get new machinery and keep up with the 'rationalization' drive of big business. Its social security laws provided security for labor only, leaving small businessmen—who had to contribute to social-security payments—as insecure as before."

"Organized labor, which was a major political force, gave no thought to the problems of small business. The majority of the political groups paid little attention to small business. This created a golden opportunity for the Nazis to take advantage of the small business discontent created by the postwar inflation, the depression, and the ordinary processes of industrial concentration."

Fears Famine

Rep. Ploeser Offers New Meat Plan

A Republican Representative yesterday demanded maintenance of retail meat prices at the present rollback level instituted by the Office of Price Administration, and called for establishment of price ceilings on meats "from the grass roots to the retail store" to avert "a tragic meat famine."

Representative Walter C. Ploeser of Missouri, a member of the House Small Business Committee, submitted his program for establishment of ceiling prices all along the line, from producer to consumer, to three high chiefs of the Administration's food program—Fred M. Vinson, director of the Office of Economic Stabilization; Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown, and War Food Administor Marvin Jones. Government "assistance"—a subsidy—would be provided at the producer-feeder levels if necessary.

While a Food Administration spokesman indicated that the next move would be to break the bottleneck which is keeping an estimated 800 million bushels of corn on the farm, Ploeser declared that unless immediate action is taken to get more meats distributed, at reasonable prices, to the people, the Nation's health faces "the gravest peril," and a "disastrous economic dislocation" is imminent.

Five-Point Program

The program, which he has developed, Ploeser said, after months of study and consultations with representatives of "all factors of the meat industry," calls for:

(a) Establishment of retail ceiling on all grades of dressed beef, except Government grade AA. Ceiling on all other grades of beef, lamb, veal, pork and poultry to be at levels now established by OPA, the rolled-back level.

(b) Establish wholesale ceiling which allows a reasonable profit markup for the retailer.

(c) Establish slaughterers' selling price based on the cost of live animals and poultry, plus operating costs and shrinkage, with allowance for minimum profit.

(d) Feeders' selling price ceiling to be placed on all livestock and poultry except cattle which will be grade AA when dressed, with protection for feeders by placing ceiling on stocker and feeder cattle and beef calves.

(e) Protection of producers and feeders on feed costs, by Government assistance, or subsidy, if necessary.

No AA Ceilings

Ploeser said no price ceiling was urgent on Grade AA dressed beef, because "it is a premium grade and should be so treated as to increase incentive for production of heavier and better cattle. Grade AA represents only about 5 per cent of the total beef production," he said.

He proposed revision of the present meat board, with headquarters in Chicago, to comprise two groups—one for beef, pork, lamb and veal, the other for poultry—with every branch of the industry represented—raisers and producers, feeders, slaughterers, processors, shippers, receivers, wholesalers and retailers, with a director representing the government heading each group.

These committees, he recommended, should work directly under Vinson, director of Economic Stabilization. The War Meat Board is now under Food Administrator Marvin Jones.

Fears Commercial Control of Radio, Unit of Free Speech

Investigation of the Federal communications commission by a special House committee headed by Representative Eugene E. Cox (Democrat) of Georgia was assailed yesterday by James L. Fly, FCC chairman, as a combined attempt by "Cox, the radio-monopoly and the military" to wreck the commission and set up "monopolistic control by commercial interests of the Nation's most significant mechanism of free speech."

He apparently was referring to the recommendation of the Secretaries of War and Navy to President Roosevelt that the commission's radio intelligence facilities be transferred to their departments, which was made public by Eugene L. Garey, counsel for the committee.

Fly said in a statement:

"Already Cox's Wall Street mouthpiece has declared the intention of destroying the highly valuable warwork of the commission—particularly that part which has made it literally impossible for a single enemy transmitter in this country to communicate with our enemies abroad."

24-Hour Listening Patrol

The commission's 24-hour a day listening patrol has improved and developed the radio mechanisms used by the armed forces, and has rendered "invaluable aid" in closing out the espionage stations of Central and South America, Fly asserted.

Another of the commission's functions which the committee would eliminate, he added, is the collection, translation and analysis of the radio propaganda of the world at war, which is distributed to 200 Government offices.

A charge made by the committee that the FCC had prevented the benefits of television from becoming available to the public, Fly said, "all too obviously is directed at the commission's stand against the radio monopoly in its efforts to lock down the great future of the television industry to the inadequate system controlled by that monopoly."

Fly Hurls Charges

The chairman said Cox had been a defender of the commission until it charged him with accepting $2500 to represent a Georgia radio station in obtaining an operating license.

Fly made several charges against the committee's procedure, listing these "examples:"

1. "The long-continued conduct of star-chamber proceedings where witnesses were required to appear privately before the committee's lawyers," sometimes "in hotel rooms," with the commission being denied an opportunity to obtain a copy of the transcript.

2. "The illegal issuance of subpenas requiring appearances before staff members—and on certain occasions in the Wall Street offices of a lawyer who is contributing his services to 'the cause' at $1 a year."

Seizure of Files

3. "Constant efforts, by badgering commission employes and other witnesses and by circularizing radio stations for complaints, to stir up destructive criticims of the commision."

4. "Seizure of a truckload of irreplaceable commission files without opportunity for properly listing or copying them to insure against loss or interference with the essential functions of the commission."

5. "Widespread efforts by stirring up vicious rumors and gossip to destroy the reputation and standing of the commission, its individual commissioners and staff members."

Col. Earl Gruver Wins British Honor In Middle East

Col. Earl S. Gruver, 1601 Argonne Place Northwest, who commands the Delta Service Command on the Middle Eastern Front, was one of three officers presented the Order of the British Empire yesterday.

Presentations were made by Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, British commander in chief in the Middle East at one of the largest American base depots in that area, the Associated Press reported. Others honored were Col. William E. Chickering, Detroit, Mich., acting chief of staff of the Army Service of Supply in the Middle East, and Col. Crawford F. Sams, address unavailable, chief surgeon of United States forces in the Middle East.

Colonel Gruver, an excellent horseman, is well known in Army circles here. An enlisted man during World War I, he was promoted from private to sergeant and in 1919 he entered the United States Military Academy, from which he was graduated in 1923. He became a major in 1940, a lieutenant colonel in December of the following year, and has since been made a full colonel.

Colonel Gruver's wife and two children, Sue, 15, and "Bo," 13, make their home at the Argonne Place address, but are now at Camp Hanoum in Thetford, Vt., where Mrs. Gruver is a riding instructor.

ALLIED GASOLINE BLAZING—A direct hit on an Allied gasoline dump by a Japanese plane started this fire near Port Moresby

Pilot Collides Head-on With Jap—Lives

There were 13 American pilots battling the Japs in a dogfight, but it was Lieut. Henry E. Matson's day, and it's his story.

Matson, the Army reported yesterday, shot down one Zero, collided head-on with another at 300 miles an hour, jumped from his burning plane, parachuted through the midst of the air battle, and was rescued.

Flying a Curtiss P-40 Warhawk, Matson left Guadalcanal with three other pilots and was warned of approaching Japanese planes.

Seeing 15 Zeros approach and dive on three other American planes, the four P-40's roared down to attack. Matson got on the tail of an enemy plane and fired a burst into it. It blew up, and as he slid beneath the wreckage he found another Zero dead ahead. He fired, and the Zero's cowling ripped away in the seconds before Matson collided with it.

"It really wasn't much of a shock," he reported. "Just a jolt and then things began to get a little mixed up. It was getting hotter all the time and my cockpit must have been getting full of flames. I didn't see any, however. Had my eyes shut.

"I pulled loose the safety belt and went out into the air like a drive through the infield. The hatch must have been knocked off when I crashed the Nip, or I never would have gotten out. When I felt the fresh air, I jerked the cord and the parachute opened. I opened my eyes at the same time and said 'safe at last.'

"There I was right on the 50-yard line of the darndest dogfight you ever saw. Zeros and American planes were thicker than flies at supper time. They were all shooting—seemed to be shooting at me. The burns weren't hurting much, but I was pretty sure they would after a while, so I pulled out my first aid kit and had myself a shot of morphine. I worked my way down out of the dogfights and was ready to say 'safe at last' again when three Zeros came down on me.

"I tell you, that's a terrible feeling swinging there as helpless as a turkey with his neck on the block. You feel like you've got targets painted all over you. I waved vigorously, jutting out my teeth at them to look like Tojo, and making other gestures of friendship and victory. I grinned and jabbered at them."

Whether the gesticulations had anything to do with it or not, the three Zeros pulled away and were chased by five American planes. Matson hit the water, inflated his rubber boat, climbed aboard, pulled his parachute over him—and went to sleep. An hour later a crash boat picked him up. Two days later he was out of the hospital.

Matson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Matson, live at Perry, N. Y. He is 23, and enlisted in the Air Corps when he was 19, shortly after his graduation from high school at Wellsboro, Pa.

Va. Sees Quietest Fourth in Years

With holiday outings, excursions and joy rides limited to the vanishing point by wartime restrictions, Virginians generally remained pretty close to their own backyards.

1500 Jap-Americans Released to Farms

Hunt, Idaho, July 4 (INS).—A total of 1500 American-Japanese from the war relocation camp near Hunt were released tonight to perform farm work in various parts of the West. WRA officials said each Japanese was given a clean bill of health from the FBI.

Hoover Says Subsidy Means Higher Prices

Urges Single Food Authority and Council Unifying War Effort

By the Associated Press

New York, July 4.—Former President Herbert Hoover declared here today the Roosevelt Administration's food subsidy program "does not get at the heart of the food problem," and predicted that "in eight months prices will be higher and food scarcer."

In a speech broadcast over N. B. C., Hoover said of the subsidy program, it only postpones, and will get worse in the end."

He reiterated a previous statement that "the food mess" would not be cleared up until a single Federal food administrator was appointed with full authority over all phases of the food problem.

The former President recommended formation of a national war council, which he said should be presided over by President Roosevelt and serve as a unifying force in the entire war effort.

"The whole American people," he declared, "is praying for more unity so we can win this war."

Hoover said he felt certain the enemy enjoyed a spiritual uplift from food shortages, race riots and strikes in the United States.

Many such reports represent "the creak and groan of democracy getting into action," Hoover said, adding that while there was no doubt that democracy would outlast any dictatorship, nevertheless the enemy got the impression America was "a disordered country, a declining country."

The heart of the food problem, he said, was to "secure more production, get more food to people and eliminate black markets."

In answer to questions from the studio audience, Hoover said the armed forces and industry were doing "a magnificent war job" and the flow of raw materials was "pretty good," but that he thought the manpower and labor relations situations "weak spots" in the home front.

Asked how long he thought the war would last, he said: "If we're wise, we will base our plans on a minimum of four years until the Axis is completely overcome."

In response to another question, Hoover declared the only hope for guarding against "inevitable famine" after the war lay in returning to cultivation 47 million acres of land upon which he said crops had been restricted in the last 10 years.

New Economic Policies

By Roger W. Babson

Rationing and Price-Fixing Needed

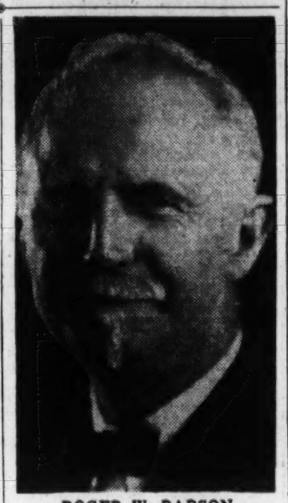
When rationing and price-fixing were introduced, they were the primary topics of discussion. Human nature being what it is, almost everyone's first thought was for himself. War, however, makes a person take for granted what in normal times he could not even imagine, and today points, stamps and price ceilings seem almost natural. But complaints and misunderstandings are still evident. Today I wish to defend and explain the need for rationing and price fixing.



ROGER W. BABSON

We can never lose sight of the fact that we are engaged in a war. Our first concern is to win. Keeping our manpower at peak efficiency is necessary. Our fighting men must have first choice of all necessities. The Government sees that our soldiers get the best of everything. What is left goes to the civilian population. There is enough, but its fair distribution cannot be left to chance.

Civilian manpower must back up fighting manpower. Therefore, the warworkers on the home front, and those with less important jobs, must have their share of vital commodities. If this division were left to the individual there would be too many selfish and thoughtless people who would first see that they got everything they could possibly need. Consequently, a plan to divide all scarce items on the basis of fairness and need has been devised. This is rationing.

Rationing distributes available supplies to all, not just to those who can pay high prices for scarce goods. An example of this is the shoe situation. Heavy supplies are needed for the armed forces. When they are taken care of, little remains for civilians. Without rationing the well-to-do would rush to buy more than they needed, leaving little for others. Under rationing, however, everyone is given the same opportunity to obtain shoes. This is the democratic way.

Some people, however, refuse to abide by the rules. Others take advantage of this fact to operate black markets. These make scarcities worse and create new scarcities where none existed before. An example is the meat situation. Supplies are cut down, thus hurting soldiers and honest civilians. Livestock, often slaughtered under unsanitary conditions, may be unhealthy. Our soldiers are deprived of such medical supplies as surgical sutures, adrenalin, and insulin; also gelatin, hides and fats. If everyone would cooperate, none would lose out.

Before defending price-fixing, I wish to discuss some economic rules connected with prices, production and inflation. I say "rules," but there are so many modifying factors that they do not always work out. Under normal economic conditions, production and the amount of money in circulation are kept in balance through prices. If there is an increase in money because of higher wages or greater employment, there will be more money than products. People will bid for these products and this will cause prices to rise. If this continues there is inflation.

In normal times, however, these higher prices will cause increased production because of the greater opportunity for profits. As more products appear on the market, prices decline. Production and prices will continue at an even level until something occurs to throw them out of balance. It can be seen that one way to head off inflation is to let production rise with prices.

Wartimes are not normal, and economic rules are modified. Production for civilian consumers is secondary to military needs. Many lines are out altogether. For instance, automobiles, radios and refrigerators have not been manufactured since out entry into the war. Payrolls, however, are much larger and there is more money than ever in circulation.

As previously explained, when money increases, prices, then production, should rise, followed by a fall in prices back to normal. But today civilian production is strictly regulated as to quantity and type and connot be allowed to rise with prices. Therefore people bid for what products there are, prices go up, and inflation sets in notwithstanding rationing.

Inflation discriminates against those whose incomes have not kept pace with rising prices. It is a major cause of the postwar crashes. During the last war, the then Administration let prices take their course. Sugar prices, for example, rose to some five times above normal. Peace came, prices fell, and sugar holders had to take losses. This was especially bad in instances where sugar was purchased on borrowed money. The loans could not be repaid and banks were weakened and many even failed.

By fixing prices, the evils of inflation may be avoided and the inevitable postwar crash can be delayed and made less harmful. Both price fixing and rationing are fair and necessary for the years of war and can help to avert the depressions which have always followed war. Therefore, it is important that everyone cooperate in obeying the rules of rationing and price fixing.

U. S. Forces Take Vura Village, Kill 300 Japs

bombs. Enemy outposts at Bairoko Harbor also were hit. All our planes returned.

Allied losses in the capture of Vura village were "relatively light." Those of the enemy garrison that were not killed were dispersed.

Stragglers Rounded Up

In the Viru Harbor area of New Georgia, Allied patrols are busy rounding up enemy stragglers.

"Our casualties in operations against this enemy base are light, totaling 33, including wounded and missing," the communique said.

Eighteen enemy bombers, escorted by 20 fighters, attempted an attack on Allied ground positions at Rendova. They were intercepted and dispersed by our fighters.

Five enemy bombers and four fighters were shot down without loss of a single Allied plane.

In addition, antiaircraft gunners bagged 12 enemy bombers during a 30-minute attack by 16 escorted medium bombers.

The announcement from General MacArthur's headquarters that he had taken the field said special attention was given to the occupation of Kiriwina, in the Trobriand group and Woodlark. The Trobriand group lines roughly 150 miles east of Allied-held Buna, New Guinea, and Woodlark is about 100 miles farther east and slightly to the south.

General MacArthur was said to have impressed upon members of the landing party the importance of occupying these two places.

The special importance of these two places was not publicly explained. They represent but a small part of the area covered in the advance of Allied forces which began June 30 on a land and sea front reaching from the central Solomons to a paint near Japanese-held Salamaua in eastern New Guinea.

These surface operations have been accompanied by far-flung aerial activity extending from the Solomons in a 2800-mile arc westward to Kendari, Dutch Celebes.

It was the second time in eight months that MacArthur had taken the field. The first occasion was last October when he set up headquarters at Port Moresby for the operations which took Buna and other points on the southeastern New Guinea coast and drove the Japanese out of the Papuan part of the big island.

This time General MacArthur was in supreme command of all forces, land, sea and air, engaging in the operations which thus far have resulted in a landing upon New Georgia in the Solomons, occupation of Trobriand and Woodlark and a landing at Nassau Bay, New Guinea, within sight of the powerful Japanese base at Salamaua.

For the operations against Kiriwina and Woodlark he set up advance headquarters in a palm-thatched hut built with the aid of native labor.

Supply Job Praised

Shortly after his arrival in an Army bomber escorted by Airacobra and Lightning fighters, the general moved in. Preparatory to the zero hour he visited a point on the new Guinea coast where great masses of arms and supplies were stored. He gave high praise to the men who made the supply preparations.

Immaculately dressed even in the field, the general, however, discarded the blouse which he usually wears at his Australian headquarters. He went around dressed in well-dressed khaki trousers, khaki shirt bearing the four stars of his rank, a light tie and the elaborate garrison cap which he himself designed.

Combat troops who landed at Kiriwina and Trobriand carried not only guns, supplies and ammunition but also price lists of native goods as a precaution against being overcharged. The lists, issued to every man, outlined peacetime prices established by the Papuan government, quoting values in sticks of twist tobacco, vile-smelling and vile-tasting, which the natives like and use as currency.

Meanwhile, the aerial phase of the offensive also commanded attention. The high command announced more than 100 enemy planes had been routed by the pounding of widely separated Japanese bases Friday and Saturday.

Kendari Plastered

Air operations ranged from Rendova, in the central Solomons, where the downing of 11 more planes increased enemy losses to 134, all the way to his air base at Kendari, Dutch Celebes, which Liberators plastered with 16 tons of bombs.

Considering the mileage covered in overwater flights by land-based planes, the weights of bombs dropped in a continuing attempt to pin down Japanese air opposition was impressive.

The ground picture was not completely defined but it was stressed that the patrol action covered was minor in nature. This action occurred at Orodubi, a native village on the jungle track between Salamaua and Mubo, 12 miles to the south. Australian patrols have moved machine guns and automatic rifles to positions commanding the village.

Soldier Drowned as Canoe Upsets

canoes also were nearby.

Sergeant Williams told Seventh Precinct police that all of the group were splashing and throwing water at each other while they paddled around and that in a flash, the canoe he was in with Helfrich and Mrs. Sharpe capsized.

Immediately, it was said, the men in the other canoe hurried to the rescue, with Williams, Sergeant Richards and Sergts. Harry McSloy and Dominic Pavvano all attempting to support Helfrich who could not swim.

Caught in Death Grip

Williams said the corporal disappeared once but managed to struggle to the surface. He grabbed Pavvano around the neck in a "death grip" and the former had to kick him away to save his own life, they reported.

When Pavvano loosed the grip of the terror-stricken man, Helfrich disappeared. Pavvano dived for him, he said, but the strong current made his efforts vain.

Mrs. Sharpe clung to the overturned canoe, and was assisted into one of the other craft.

Helfrich was a native of St. Louis, Mo., police said.

Fearon's body was found by a fisherman, David Sandifer, of the 1900 block Holbrook Terrace. The name was found on pockets of the clothing, with an address in the 400 block of G Street Southwest. Houses in the block have been razed.

The body was taken to the District Morgue for post-mortem examination and an investigation to determine his identity.

Annapolis Drowning

Gerald A. Krecklow, 21, of Fort Atkinson, Wis., was drowned yesterday at Riviera Beach near Annapolis while trying to save a 15-year-old companion, unable to swim. The companion, Edward Powers of Baltimore, Md., was saved by onlookers. Krecklow apparently got cramps and drowned. His body was recovered shortly after, and Dr. John Claffy, Anne Arundel County medical examiner, issued a certificate of accidental drowning.

Grecklow, who was ship's cook, second class, stationed at the Coast Guard training station, Groton, Conn., was visiting Baltimore friends.

NYA Gets Fold-Up Orders; 4300 Fired

"It means the dismantling of plants in 500 communities where they have been serving war production industries."

Williams said NYA had turned out "close to 600,000 persons" since Pearl Harbor, with some form of war plant skill in machine operation, assembling, welding, forge operation, ship carpentry and other trades.

Wartime Activities

Conversion to a strictly wartime training program, he said, began the day President Roosevelt announced the trade of 50 overage destroyers to Britain for naval bases, and was 50 per cent complete by the time of the attack on Pearl Harbor. There has been no other activity, he said, since June, 1942.

Altogether, since it came into being July 1, 1935, Williams said NYA has served about six million young persons in one way or another.

Williams was former deputy administrator of the Works Progress Administration under Harry Hopkins. Earlier he had been connected with the American Public Welfare Association. He served in the French Foreign Legion and the American Army in World War I.

Soldiers Found Gold Along Alcan Highway

AMERICAN soldiers who spent dreary winters tracking through the Arctic forest to build the Alcan Highway to Alaska frequently saw the sparkle of gold in the stream beds and wanted to stake out claims for peacetime development. They were not allowed to do so.

Now, however, civilian construction crews are coming along the same trail and are staking out claims for the gold which United States soldiers could not touch.

Boys from almost every State were sent to Alaska on that pioneering job—cutting a road through tall timber where none but Indians had passed before. They worked from Dawson Creek, in Alberta, to Fairbanks, Alaska, but the place where they saw the gleaming gold was in Yukon, near Whitehorse.

At first there was little time to think about private projects, for one battalion was racing against another to complete its 20-mile stretch of highway. But when a lull came in the work the men asked permission to try their luck at panning gold. The officers, however, ruled this out.

Another season has rolled around, and things have changed. The pioneer road is being replaced by a permanent highway, built by big construction companies—Elliott Construction Co. and Becketel, Price and Callahan.

These companies have mining engineers attached to the construction gangs, and they are not bound by military discipline. Note: Finally the Army has modified its regulations to permit a little amateur gold panning by soldiers in Alaska, for recreational purposes. This activity will be in the same class with fishing, to give the soldiers sport in their spare time.

Diplomatic Nurse

Diplomats have the reputation of keeping late hours—at both ends of the night. But Cristina Michels, daughter of the Chilean Ambassador, gets up at 6:30 a. m. four mornings a week, prepares her own breakfast, slips out of the big embassy residence at Sheridan Circle, and catches a bus to the other end of town.

At the Sibley Hospital she works as a nurse's aide. The sights and smells of a hospital are new to her, but she does what she is told. One day she was giving a massage to an old man whose neck muscles were sore. When she was finished, he looked up gratefully and said, "You can always tell an experienced nurse."

Home Front Soldiers

While the Office of Price Administration is being drawn and quartered in Washington, one very real tribute to the American system of government is the manner in which local OPA boards—more than 5000 of them—are standing up valiantly to their job.

These boards were thrown together hastily in late December, 1941, to ration tires. They knew nothing about rationing. Nobody did. Formal rationing was something with which Americans had had no experience. Next came automobiles, typewriters, sugar, and then—along the Atlantic seaboard—gasoline, which is politically inflammable.

Never has there been an evenly distributed work load on these groups of inexperienced men and women, assigned the task of regulating their neighbors. At times a great blow-up has seemed inevitable because of the unpredictable peaks of work, because there was not enough money until recently to hire good help, because office equipment has been lacking, and because the boards have had to operate against the grain of human nature.

In a country accustomed to "yes" for the answer, they have had to say "no." They stand athwart the path of the desire of the American people. It is their duty, given them by their Government, to render this war service. Many of the members resent Government methods, but there is remarkable loyalty to the programs they administer. Generally, active board members develop from an attitude of casualness, toward zealousness. Their loyalty under the terrific pounding they get is inspiring.

These past months have been hard on the morale of OPA men and women, but there has been no remarkable increase in resignations from boards. As various elements fight OPA, the board members stand up and carry on. Whatever may be happening to OPA in Washington, it is not falling apart in the field.

Tankers Deliver Planes

Everybody knows that bombers have long been delivered to England under their own power. But the big problem has been to deliver fighter planes, which have had to be taken apart, crated, then reassembled on the other side.

Now, however, a new system has been devised whereby United States tankers are carrying fighters on deck—20 to each tanker—and setting them down a few days later in England.

The War Shipping Administration is keeping the Army "cleaned out of fighters" by this method of delivery, and is rapidly building up the strength of the Eighth Air Forces Command which is battering Germany.

NOTE: PT boats are also being delivered to England on the decks of tankers.

Argentine Fascism

Two weeks ago policy makers in the State Department concluded that if the new Argentine government broke relations with the Axis, the United States Government, despite the reactionary character of the new regime, would extend lend-lease aid.

But since that time the Ramirez government has taken a number of steps against democratic groups in Argentine. It has even stopped Red Cross bangage wrapping by a group of prodemocratic Argentine ladies.

Latest word in Washington is that even if President Ramirez breaks relations with the Axis, lend-lease aid may not be granted in view of the government's pronounced fascism.

To keep their word in the matter, United States officials might extend aid to a trifling degree, but there will not be enough to lessen the great fear which Argentina now has of her powerful neighbor, Brazil.

Washington Will Suffer No Amusement Drought

Loew's Announces Summer 'Hit Parade;' Catholic U. and Pix Theater in the Running

WHEN A DIVISION MANAGER becomes so hopped up over his forthcoming product that he takes his typewriter on his lap and hunt-and-pecks a personal note about it, the supposition is that the fellow must have something. That is why the following weekend ebullience from Carter Barron, of Loew's, should be of interest to Washington's amusement-questers—especially those in search of "escape":

DOROTHY LAMOUR

"Pardon me while I pour out a little excitement over Loew's F Street midsummer Parade of Hits. Qualitatively and quantitatively, our "Big Twelve" will be presented to Washington's cinema-loving public in approximately the following order:

"'Coney Island', which stars the Technicurvaceous Betty Grable, will follow 'Stage Door Canteen' currently being applauded at the Palace. I have seen this one and the music is wonderful and Betty is at her luscious best. Then, Bing Crosby and Dottie Lamour in 'Dixie'; Ernst Lubitsch's 'Heaven Can Wait,' starring Gene Tierney, Don Ameche and Charles Coburn; M.-G.-M.'s 'Salute to the Marines,' a Technicolor thriller, starring Wally Beery; 'The Youngest Profession,' M-G-M's pleasant summertime surprise, currently thrilling the masses at Radio City Music Hall; 'Lady of Burlesque,' with Barbara Stanwyck; Walt Disney's 'Victory Through Air Power'; 'DuBarry Was a Lady,' with Red Skelton and Lucille Ball; 'Hitler's Madman,' 'Above Suspicion,' costarring Joan Crawford and Fred MacMurfay, and, finally, 'As Thousands Cheer.' This last one features Kathryn Grayson and John Boles, and, along with the others, will give the people in Washington something to cheer about as the thermometer soars.

"These features are coming to town when the public is clamoring for a variety of entertainment. Only four of the 12 have a war angle.

"The rave is ended. Thanks for listening!"

Speaking of music, as Mr. Barron was somewhere back there, the Warner Brothers seem to be churning up a rare blend of new and old tunes for their forthcoming production of "Shine on Harvest Moon," based on the life story of the famous song stylist, Nora Bayes. There will be 22 songs in this one—16 oldies and 6 newies. "We're Doing Our Best for You" and "Rainy Days," two of the new ones by N. K. Jerome and Kim Gannon, will be utilized in a "sister act" by Ann Sheridan and Louise Manning. "Thank You for the Waltz" will be sung by Miss Manning with a male chorus; Jack Carson and Marie Wilson, back to the films after a two-year absence, will give out comically with "So Dumb, But So Beautiful" and Dennis Morgan and Miss Sheridan will duet something called "I Go for You." All the principals will gang up on a new swingeroo, "Father Brown Goes to Town."

Setting Pace for the Nation

There seems to be more than meets the eye in this Frank Capra "Cavalcade of Films" that Sam Cummins has rigged up for the summer weeks at his Pix Theater. With "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" currently reviving the enthusiasm it originally engendered, ensuing Wednesdays through August 11 will mark the inauguration of full-week runs of the following Frank Capra productions, in the order named: "Lady for a Day," with May Robson and Warren William; "It Happened One Night," costarring Clark Gable and Claudette Colbert; "Lost Horizon," with Ronald Colman as star; "Broadway Bill," starring Warner Baxter and Myrna Loy"; "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," with James Stewart and Jean Arthur, and "You Can't Take It With You," with Lionel Barrymore, Jimmy Stewart and Jean Arthur in the top spots. More than one of these won the "Oscar" as the best picture of its year.

Assembling this line-up was not as simple as it looks. Many of the films long ago had been withdrawn from circulation. For even more of them, there were no "stills" or press books. Mr. Cummins' idea seemed to be dying a-borning when he took the bull by the horns and put the matter smack up to President Harry Cohn of Columbia. President Cohn liked the notion, provided special prints—even when there weren't any,—allowed Sam to photostat the library copies of the press books and cheered him on to victory. Not only that. The motion picture industry is watching the experiment with a view to making the Capra festival a national revival. Incidentally, there is nothing about any war in any of these Capra films. They are practically perfect "escapist" entertainment.

Holiday Mats. in the Neighborhoods

As a sort of solace to the intowners over the holiday weekend, matinees are being given today in all of the Warner Brothers residential theaters, with doors opening at 12:45 p. m., and the first performance beginning at 1. This will include the Apollo, Avalon, Avenue Grand, Colony, Home, Savoy, Seco, Takoma and York theaters, which customarily do not present afternoon performances. So now you know.

The opening tonight of the revival of Vickie Kuhn's "The King Is Dead" marks the first of three productions to be presented during the summer in the University Theater on the campus at Catholic University. On July 22, the attraction will be another original play, "Stranger at the Gait," by Patty Treadwell—a captain in the WAC, by the way—a student in Walter Kerr's playwriting class in Father Hartke's Speech and Drama Department and a classmate of Miss Kuhn's. For August 2, Alan Schneider's adaptation of Rostand's "The Romancers" is scheduled.

The-World-Being-As-It-Is Note

A firecracker would be a pretty awful anticlimax, wouldn't it?

Three Droll Fellows Hold Conference

DONALD KEYES, FRED STONE, HALE NORCROSS from left, as Mr. De Pinna, "Grandpa" Vanderhof and Paul Sycamore, respectively, explore the possibilities of fireworks as a basement enterprise in the Kaufman-Hart comedy, "You Can't Take It With You," opening a six-day engagement in the National Theater tomorrow night. The run will extend through next Sunday

HEDDA HOPPER

Two Likely Lads Signed

Hollywood, July 4.—Casey Robinson sure knew what he was doing when he signed up Gregory Peck and Alan Reed (Fred Allen's Falstaff Openshaw) on personal contracts. I met the two gents today and tried to buy half their contracts from Casey. Peck is the tall, strong, handsome guy whose one profile doesn't match the other, which is perfect for the screen, Tony Gaudio, photographing them, reminded me that 21 years ago he photographed me in a Norma Talmadge picture. They all head for the open spaces in Utah next week for "Revenge." . . . Now that the plans are set for Greta Garbo and her favorite cameramen to take off for England and "Joan of Arc," the dear thing doesn't know whether she'll go. Maybe if she appeared at a few hospitals and Army camps it would help her make up her mind. But that, I suppose, would be asking too much for anyone as shy and secluded as G. G.

GRETA GRETA

He'll Manage

Leo McCarey's so amused about this guff Bing Crosby doesn't want to play "The Padre" when he and Bing practically wrecked two studios putting the deal through. "But," says Leo, "I'm not too discouraged. Just as I started my most successful picture, Asta the dog bit me and I survived that." . . . Wonder if Warner's got Jack Norworth's consent to use the life of his former wife, Nora Bayes, in "Shine On, Harvest Moon." I don't know how they could do without having Jack's O. K. or have him in it.

It Can Happen

We have here in Hollywood an Enoch Arden story in reverse with Artist John Decker playing the central character. Back in 1928, John's wife took their daughter and walked out of his life. She faded out so completely he never found a trace of her, though he searched out every clew. Our State law provides that in such cases, a man is again legally free to wed after seven years. So in 1938, Decker did. The second marriage has been a happy one. Two years ago, his first wife returned here, got in touch with him, told him their daughter was married, had children, that she, the wife, intended to remain in California, though she had no wish ever to return to John. And brooding over that, together with the death of his friend Jack Barrymore, is what put him in the hospital. Now, however, all details have been ironed out. He starts divorce proceedings Friday against the first wife. When that's received, he'll remarry his second or present one.

Gossip From Gotham

New York, July 4.

Jay Allen was on the dais of the Overseas Press Club last week, and listened to a speech by Inez Robb, the newspaperwoman. Mrs. Robb recently had returned from a tour of the prisoner-of-war camps in this country. She told of the bronzed Nazi prisoners, of their camp jobs, and then stated, significantly, that most of the prisoners attend religious meetings . . . "I know about Nazis and their religion," Allen spoke up. Two years ago he was in a Nazi jail in Paris, after he had been arrested trying to cross the border. "In that jail, the religious meetings were long and well attended," said Allen. "The Nazi jailers showed how devout was their faith by torturing the prisoners only AFTER the religious sessions were over."

IRVING BERLIN

The most extensive tour of Canada he's ever made will be undertaken by Mayor LaGuardia shortly . . . A week ago Saturday, over C. B. S. Senator Thomas of Utah made a speech defending the Office of War Information. Republican Chairman Spangler insists that was a controversial, political speech, and is demanding time over C. B. S. to deliver a reply . . . Arthur Gershwin, brother of George and Ira, has written the music for a new show, with the book by Dr. Maxwell Maltz, the noted plastic-surgeon . . . Y. Frank Freeman, head of Paramount, estimates that "For Whom the Bell Tolls" will gross $19,500,000, and "Lady in the Dark" 10 million dollars.

The WACS would like Irving Berlin to write a revue for them . . . Iris Hall will play the lead in Al Wood's show, "Try and Get It" . . . Ned Wever, the radio actor, treasures the drama notice from Alexander Woollcott, who wrote: "Ned Wever might be described as the kind of actor who can say: 'Well, I'm off to the club,' without you instantly thinking of The Lambs'" . . . The proprietor of a midtown cafe has been able to buy the liquor he needs by hiring the liquor-dealer's daughter to sing there . . . Peter Donald, who appears on the top radio show, and Herman Hyde, of Billy Rose's Diamond Horseshoe, now have Hollywood offers.

Betty Kern Shaw, wife of Artie Shaw and daughter of Jerome Kern, has named her new son Stephen. The bandleader, who is on a battleship somewhere at sea, still doesn't know he's a poppa . . . Gene Krupa's misfortunes are multiplying. While Krupa is in jail on the West Coast, the furniture of his Broadway office was placed on the street recently, and the city's bureau of encumbrances carted it away . . . Goodman Ace, who has been writing and starring in the "Easy Aces" radio show for 13 years, now owns the smallest piece of a Broadway show. For his sketch in the "Ziegfeld Follies," Ace collects 1-6 of 1 per cent of the gross.

Arthur Treacher, who plays British butler-roles in pictures and who now is featured in the "Follies," will receive his final naturalization papers this week. When Treacher went to the Federal Courthouse for the preliminary examination, he answered all the questions put to him by the judge . . . Then the clerk, who was to administer the oath, asked Treacher a series of questions—most of which he had previously answered . . . "Do all applicants have to answer the same questions twice?" Treacher asked the clerk . . . "Oh, no," the clerk assured him. "I just wanted to hear your voice, to see if it's the same as in the movies."

Van Johnson, the young Hollywood actor who appeared last in "The Human Comedy," now is recovering from the auto crash which nearly cost him his life. Johnson has a line of stitches straight across his forehead—for he almost was decapitated. By strange, medical chance, the fact that he had made 12 donations to the Red Cross Blood Bank saved his life . . . The doctors told Johnson that these frequent blood donations had accustomed his own blood to the rapid creation of new blood, and this saved him from bleeding to death.

Nicely Varied Bill at Trans-Lux

The spirit of combat may be said to dominate the new bill at the Trans-Lux Theater.

In the news section, as usual, armed conflict is to the fore in views of the British fleet at Pantelleria and the American Liberator bombers giving the Japs what for at Lae, in the South Pacific. Fighting of an entirely different type is neatly covered by the foremost of the short subjects, "Ring Battles of Barney Ross," in which one of the heroes of Guadalcanal demonstrates the sort of fistic prowess that made him one of the ring's great champions.

Numerous other aspects of the war—amphibian engineers at invasion tactics, the Navy fighting sea fires, a demonstration of chemical warfare, and the like—are covered in the news, but there is still room for a bit about the coal miners, the opening of the Shangri-La war stamp drive and a sample of "tomorrow's kitchen," which turns out to be 97 per cent glass!

A salute is given Britain's new merchant fleet in "Merchant Convoys;" the universally shown Victory Reel, "War Towns," nods to Mobile, Ala., and many novelties are revealed in "Popular Science."

The cartoon comedy for the week is Disney's "Pluto and the Armadillo"—in color, of course.

OPA Methods Forum of Air Debate Topic

Indicting the Office of Price Administration's methods, Judge Joe Montague, general counsel for the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers' Association, last night said "the grand old patriots . . . who signed the Declaration of Independence, would turn in their graves if their descendants and successors did not resent and resist this deliberate and premeditated attack on the doctrine they expressed in their famous declaration."

He spoke on the American Forum of the Air, broadcast nationally over the Mutual Broadcasting System from the Shoreham Hotel.

Supporting these same methods, Russ Nixon, Washington Representative of the C. I. O. United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers, said that "effective price control means curbing war profiteers," and "that the war profiteers vigorously seek to undermine the OPA."

Representative Will Rogers, jr. (Democrat), of California, charged the Republican Party with working to discredit President Roosevelt and the Government officials "who are laboring to protect consumers against the avarice of a handful of profiteers", while Republican Representative A. L. Miller of Nebraska dubbed the OPA program "just another New Deal bogeyman."

"Our normal system of supply and demand in food is being so seriously thrown out of gear that unless it is straightened out immediately, the whole OPA idea will collapse and prices will really go haywire," Representative Miller said.

Board and the National Youth Administration. His lieutenants saved the New Deal's Farm Security Administration only by desperate last-minute maneuvers.

The President's major setback came of course, when Congress enacted the antistrike bill over his veto. The President felt the sting also of congressional regulations attached to his use of emergency war funds, although he had not acted finally on a deficiency measure carrying that provision and could veto it if he chose.

There were other more or less minor Congressional rebuffs, including what amounted to Senate rejection of the President's nominations of Edward J. Flynn to be minister to Australia and James V. Allred, former Governor of Texas, to the Circuit Court of Appeals.

The President withdrew Flynn's nomination when it became evident that a Senate vote against the nomination would be overwhelming. Allred's nomination never emerged from the Senate Judiciary committee to which it was referred. That body voted 9 to 9 on the question of reporting it out, a procedure that kept the nomination in the committee.

On the tax front, Mr. Roosevelt did not get the 16 billions in additional revenue he asked, but received instead a modified version of the Ruml plan—which he openly opposed—calling for "pay as you go" taxation. Inasmuch as the bill did not excuse all back taxes, the concensus was that the Administration won about an even break on that issue.

There was no such interpretation to be placed, however, on Congress' flat repealer of his executive order limiting salaries to $25,000 after Federal taxes.

Post of District WMC Chief Is Still Open

Recommendations for the successor to Ramy B. Deschner, former District WMC area director, whose resignation was accepted yesterday, will be made by the area WMC management-labor committee next Saturday, it was announced yesterday by W. A. McCoy, Civil Service Commission member of the eight-man group.

In the meantime Fred Z. Hetzel, who since Deschner took leave a month ago to visit his home in St. Louis, has served as acting director, will continue in that capacity until a final decision is forthcoming.

Hetzel, 34, who came to Washington in 1932 as an employe of the Board of Public Welfare and who has been active in Government work since that time, became an assistant regional manager in the WMC office here last September.

He is a graduate of the University of Maryland with an A. B. and M. A. degree.

The position to be filled carries with a $6500 salary and must be confirmed by the Senate.

Prior to the decision, a subcommittee of the management-labor group will meet tomorrow and make recommendations to the committee as a whole, whose recommendations will be passed on to the regional director.

Confirmation of Edwin E. Knott, manpower utilization consultant in the area, by the Senate was announced at the time of the Deschner resignation. The position carries a salary of $4600 a year.

Lieut. D. F. Cox of Washington, Killed in Middle East Action

Second Lieut. Don F. Cox, 23, a descendant of Patrick Henry, yesterday was reported killed in action in the Middle East in a War Department list, containing the names of 134 American soldiers killed on all fronts.

DON F. COX

Lieutenant Cox, whose mother, Mrs. Dan G. Cox, lives at 1504 Delafield Place Northwest, was born in Waterloo, Iowa, and attended public schools in Raleigh, N. C. In 1937, he was graduated from Virginia Episcopal School, Lynchburg, Va., and entered North Carolina State College, where he was a senior in ceramic engineering, when he entered the Army in 1941.

He was a member of Gamma Sigma Epsilon of the American Ceramic Society, the Monogram Club and the Officers' Club. He was a captain in R. O. T. C.

He was transferred to the Air Corps in March, 1942, and received his wings at Monroe, La., the following November. On Christmas Day he went overseas as a navigator. Recently Lieutenant Cox received the Air Medal.

His last message home was a birthday radiogram on June 9 to his mother. There are two sisters, Mrs. Virginia Cox Alston of Texarkana, Ark., and Patricia V. Cox, who lives with her mother, Mrs. Cox is employed in the Civil Aeronautics Administration, and her daughter in the War Department.

On the same list, Private First Class Kellsie A. Gaver of Myersville, Md., was reported killed in the Pacific area.

Farmer Fined $100 For Killing Pet Doe

Grafton, W. Va., July 4.—For the illegal killing of a year-old doe in the Valley Falls section, Charles Piggott of Hammond was fined $100 and costs by Justice C. P. Lucas. An appeal was taken and bond furnished.

The doe, which was a pet of the community, was affectionately known as Sally. The shooting is alleged to have occurred on the property of George McFarland, occupied by Piggott.

Asthma Mucus Fought Doctor's Way
If you suffer from choking, gagging, wheezing, recurring attacks of Bronchial Asthma, here is good news for you. A prescription called Mendaco perfected by a physician in his private practice contains ingredients which start circulating thru the blood within a very short time after the first dose, thus reaching the congested Bronchial tubes where it usually quickly helps liquefy, loosen and remove thick strangling mucus (phlegm), thereby promoting freer breathing and more restful sleep. Fortunately Mendaco has now been made available to sufferers from recurring spasms of Bronchial Asthma thru all drug stores and has proved so helpful to so many thousands it is offered under a guarantee of money back unless completely satisfactory. You have everything to gain, so get Mendaco from your druggist today for only 60c. The guaranteed trial offer protects you.

Emergency Bill

We hope that the Senate, in its rush to get away for a summer recess, will not forget one piece of emergency legislation that is necessary to keep the District's Civilian War Services in operation. This bill is an amendment to the local Blackout Act authorizing an expenditure of $25,000 for central direction of the efforts of 21,000 volunteers who are helping the city to meet its wartime problems. The bill has already passed the House. It has the support of the OCD and the District Commissioners. Apparently it is in no way controversial. Yet it may easily be lost in the shuffle unless the Senate District Committee hastens to report it out and follow it through to enactment on the floor.

Delay in passing the bill might be equivalent to liquidation of the Civilian War Services. That organization has already had a hard struggle for survival in spite of Washington's obvious need for coordinated efforts to meet the problems of health, housing, child care and transportation in wartime. Now that all the local groups seem to be in agreement on the scope of service to be rendered and the source of financing, it would be particularly ironic if the Senate should let them down by taking a vacation before the necessary legislation is passed. We cannot believe that the Senate will do so if the issue is properly brought to its attention.

Middle Sea

In the days when the Axis still retained a foothold on the African coast, it was generally assumed that even after Tunisia fell a considerable period—possibly as much as six months—would have to elapse before the Mediterranean would be fully open to Allied shipping. Actually our vessels began to move in relative safety through the Sicilian Narrows dividing the eastern from the western end of the Middle Sea even before the capture of Pantelleria. And now, less than a month after the occupation of Tunis and Bizerte, it is announced in Allied air headquarters in North Africa that a "complete air umbrella" has been established over the Mediterranean between Tunisia and Sicily so that the whole of that waterway from Gibraltar to Suez is now open to our shipping.

The importance of that development can hardly be exaggerated. It means a great saving of time and of ship tonnage in supplying the Middle East forces. It also means that we can with relative impunity move large numbers of men and equipment from one part of North Africa to the other. In other words, with the Mediterranean open, we are in a position to concentrate our strength in that sector against any one point of the "soft underbelly" of the Axis, or attack it at several points. This gives particular pertinence to the prediction of Winston Churchill that there will probably "be very heavy fighting in the Mediterranean and elsewhere before the leaves of autumn fall." In the all-important battle of communications in the zone between Europe and Africa the Allies have won a major victory.

Manpower Goal

The biggest question raised by the WMC's forecast of manpower requirements during the next year is whether the necessary shifts can be made with the existing makeshift machinery. Most of the additional 3,600,000 men and women needed for the armed services and war industries must come from nonwar activities. It will be far more difficult to bring about the necessary transfers than it has been in the past to absorb the unemployed, and to shift workers who have been eager to move. Is the present setup of the War Manpower Commission equal to the task of putting the right man in the right place under conditions of extreme labor scarcity?

WMC Director McNutt outlined his problem the day after the War Labor Board announced a drive to counteract the pirating of workers. Hundreds of complaints of manufacturers taking skilled workers from Army and Navy plants by the lure of above-ceiling wages have reached the ears of the WLB. If Mr. McNutt has not been able to cope with the problem of pirating workers after a struggle of many months, what hope is there that he will be able to bring about an orderly shifting of workers to the spots where they are needed most? It appears to us that the first step is to re-examine the machinery of the WMC to see whether additional legislation or new methods are needed to insure the success of the program. And that inquiry should be made now without waiting for further evidence of waste motion in the use of our manpower.

War Contracts

Last week Congress approved extension of the War Contract Renegotiation Act to four RFC subsidiaries—the Defense Supplies Corporation, Defense Plants Corporation, Rubber Reserve Co. and Metal Reserve Co. This action is interpreted to mean that the renegotiation system is going to remain for the duration of the war. However, some changes in methods of procedure will undoubtedly be made as a result of the criticisms of businessmen who have been testifying during the past few weeks before the House Naval Affairs Committee. Their chief objections to the present system of renegotiation are (1) that it is based on profits before instead of after taxes and (2) that it makes no allowance for the creation of postwar conversion reserves. There is also complaint about renegotiation delays which leave businessmen uncertain about the exact amount of their earnings and consequently make them timorous about entering into new commitments, declaring dividends, and so forth.

In spite of these complaints, renegotiation of contracts has saved the Government vast sums of money, not only in the form of refunds, but by serving notice on contractors that excessive profits will not be tolerated. While heavy taxation enables the Government to recapture a large part of the excess profits resulting from war contracts, it obviously does not provide a complete offset. Moreover, renegotiation enables Government procurement agencies to determine where waste exists and to take steps to enforce economies. The knowledge and experience thus gained are invaluable. Since neither Congress nor the public is in a mood to permit industry to obtain excessive profits from war contracts, abolition of the renegotiation system would almost certainly be followed by much more drastic taxes on corporations, taking the form possibly of a flat limit on profits or a 100 per cent profits tax.

The proposals that allowance be made for postwar conversion reserves and that profits be computed after taxes are extremely controversial issues. Undoubtedly many concerns that are currently making large profits will find themselves in serious financial difficulties when the war is over, unless they are able to build up cash reserves that will permit them to reconvert to a peacetime basis and tide them over the transition period. While the importance of conversion reserves is generally recognized, it is obviously impossible for procurement officials to devise a formula that would meet the long-time needs of industry. As representatives of the services point out, reconversion problems vary from industry to industry, and affect nonwar industries as well as war industries. The tax authorities rather than officials engaged in renegotiation of contracts are the proper persons to deal with the problem of reserves.

Strong arguments are advanced both for and against the proposal that contractors be permitted to increase prices to compensate for tax increases. On the one hand, it is contended that taxes are a cost item for which allowance should be made just as much as for wages or materials. On the other hand, it is maintained that the computation of excess profits after taxes would be inflationary, since it would permit a company to raise its prices on products sold to the Government when taxes were increased. The issue again involves a matter of tax policy rather than renegotiation procedure. And the tax laws provide for the computation of excess profits before deduction for taxes. If this method of computation is followed in the one case, despite heated objections raised by industry, it is only logical that it should be followed in computing profits under renegotiation proceedings.

In any case, the chief safeguard against abuse of renegotiation powers lies in reasonable treatment of contractors and liberal interpretation of the laws. There appears to be quite general acceptance of the renegotiation system as such. The current hearings are designed primarily to determine how it can be improved in detail and possibly be expedited.

Dictator Petrillo

The farcical element has predominated from the very beginning of James C. Petrillo's controversy with the transcription industry. Perhaps that is the only reason why the dictatorship Jimmy set up in the name of the American Federation of Musicians has been so long tolerated. In a world of much tragedy he has introduced a Gilbert and Sullivan touch. That atmosphere prevailed even when Mr. Petrillo handed down his latest edict a few days ago for liquidation of the transcription industry.

Representatives of the industry met with Mr. Petrillo in the latter's office at the call of James W. Fitzpatrick, conciliator for the Labor Department. It later appeared that the music czar agreed to the meeting only because of the request of a Senate committee which had investigated his ban on records. But instead of negotiating for removal of that ban, Mr. Petrillo laid down the law for the transcription companies and the Government to follow. "We're not going to make any transcriptions at any cost," he said, "or at any price." Then he acknowledged that his death sentence against the transcription industry is not designed to punish that industry or win concessions from it. This sentence is to be carried out only as a means of striking at radio broadcasting companies which the union cannot reach directly.

Now radio broadcasting is supposed to be regulated in the public interest by the FCC. But even the FCC does not presume to tell the individual broadcaster that he must not send certain programs out over the air. That dictatorial role is reserved for the czar of the musicians' union. And as the law is now interpreted by the Supreme Court, there seems to be no means of restraining him.

Seven transcription companies have requested that the dispute be certified to the War Labor Board. But it seems doubtful whether the WLB can cope with this sort of a racket. Legislation is needed to prevent the enforcement of monopolies that destroy trade and encroach upon Government regulation, whether those monopolies are operated by business or labor groups. Congress has been incredibly slow in meeting this challenge. We do not see how even the comic-opera atmosphere surrounding Mr. Petrillo's antics can longer stay the hand of Congress in meeting this menace to free enterprise.

Petty Persecution

The Senate paid an exceedingly high price to ransom the urgent deficiency appropriation bill from the House. After an initial display of firmness and courage, Senators found themselves forced to acquiesce in a shoddy modification of the Kerr amendment, forbidding employment anywhere in the Federal Government of Messrs. Watson, Dodd and Lovett unless they are nominated for office by the President and confirmed by the Senate. Thus the great principle of congressional control over the national pursestrings has been perverted into a petty act of persecution. The majesty of Congress has been utilized to proscribe three individuals for political beliefs they are alleged to have held years ago.

Senatorial confirmation of appointments to policy-making positions is a sound and desirable practice. The Post has advocated the establishment of a practical procedure along these lines. But as we have pointed out in expressing opposition to the McKellar bill, indiscriminate submission of executive appointments to the Senate would be a stultification of the Civil Service system and an unjustifiable limitation of executive discretion. In the Watson, Dodd and Lovett cases, Congress has acted to require senatorial confirmation without regard to the nature of the posts which these men occupy. It is doubtful whether any of them is a policy-maker in a real sense.

What has been done here, moreover, is to single these men out invidiously, without requiring the confirmation of appointments to comparable positions. The men were named to their present posts in entire conformity with the law and with Civil Service practices. No charge of malfeasance or misconduct in office has been brought against them. The appropriation power of Congress has been used arbitrarily and capriciously against individuals, in disregard of the constitutional division of responsibility between the legislative and executive branches.

Rising Profits

Profits seem to have followed wages upward in the present inflation. The Department of Commerce estimates that corporate profits after taxes for the first three months of the current year were 18 per cent higher than in the same period of 1942 and 43 per cent above the level of 1941. Considering the tremendous jump in taxes, and the steady advances in production costs, these totals are rather surprising. They point undoubtedly to the existence of a considerable degree of inflation reflected in higher sales values of products as well as to a tremendous volume of business in certain lines of industry.

Contributory evidence of the increase in corporate profits is afforded by an accelerated rate of expansion of corporate bank deposits. Investigations now in progress indicate that the expansion of corporate bank balances has of late been more pronounced than the increase in individual deposits, contrary to the earlier trend. Of course, these larger cash holdings are not entirely the result of larger earnings. Some concerns have been forced to contract their business. Others are holding in cash form funds that normally would be used to repair or replace equipment. The necessity of providing for heavy tax payments also causes bank balances to be built up. Whatever their origins, funds of this kind provide a much-needed addition to noninflationary investment demands for Government securities.

Fighting Inflation

By Mark Sullivan

Use of Subsidies

CATASTROPHE was narrowly averted in Washington last week. President Roosevelt insisted on one particular way of preventing high prices for food, and inflation—namely, use of subsidies. Congress passed a measure which in effect deprived him of subsidies. The President vetoed the bill—and Congress did not override the veto. The outcome leaves the President free to use his method.

If catastrophe was narrowly averted, still it was averted. And one feels that this will be the prevailing rule. Beneath the strife between President and Congress, and beneath the bickerings of the President's subordinates with each other, there is a bedrock of sense which will save the situation. And among the group who have places of power there is an important few who know what must be done, and how to do it. Because they are cool-headed and sure-footed, and because the force of facts and logic is on their side, they increase in power.

These men know that subsidies are not the only way to avert inflation, and not even a good way—if indeed they are a way at all. But they know that a limited use of subsidies, properly directed, and figuring only as one detail in a broad program, can be made to help. Patiently the group we must rely on will lead both the President and Congress to accept their views. In spite of contention, a comprehensive program for really averting inflation is likely to come by one stumbling step after another.

THE PRESIDENT in his insistence on subsidies, was intent on preventing one cause of inflation. The labor leaders had told him that unless the prices of food are "rolled back" to what they were last September, the labor leaders would demand a general raise in wage rates. Such a wage raise would be a formidable step in inflation. To persuade the labor leaders not to make their demand, Mr. Roosevelt undertook to roll back prices of food. It was for this he used subsidies.

Dealers and processors of food were ordered to charge less for food—in the case of butter, for example, 5 cents less a pound. The lowered price was not enough to pay the cost of producing the butter. To assure the dealers against loss they were given a subsidy.

That was a preventive of inflation only in the sense that it appeased the labor leaders, prevented them from demanding a general raise in wages—which assuredly would give an upward push to the inflation spiral. It was, so to speak, a political preventive of inflation, more than a fiscal one.

But as a preventive of the basic forces that make inflation, the subsidies to food processors and dealers is little or nothing. The money which is paid out as subsidies comes out of the national treasury. Two-thirds of the Treasury's money is procured by borrowing, and whatever increases the Treasury's borrowing increases the danger of inflation.

THE SUBSIDIES so far used were designed to affect the price of food, to keep prices low. They have been paid only to dealers and processors—not to farmers. But besides prices of food, there is another thing—quantity of food. In order to increase the quantity of food, farmers must be paid. Farmers are not producing as much as they can. To increase production, more acres must be planted. That means additional labor. The labor must be paid wages comparable to wages in industry. As a result, the cost of additional food will be high. Money to pay the cost must come from somewhere.

For this purpose also, the Administration proposes to use the device of subsidies. Farmers do not like it. They think that subsidies from the Government will be accompanied by more Government regulation—and toward this the farmers have become resentful. They would prefer to receive the added cost of more food in the form of a straight increase in the market price of food. But that brings the Administration face to face with its other problem, to keep the prices of food low.

The whole problem calls for compromise and cooperation—between group and group, between official and official, between President and Congress. This, everyone knows, is conspicuously lacking. It was not increased by the President's veto message last week, much of which was contentious. But toward the end, the President's message included one sentence of gesture toward cooperation: "In the task of saving our free economy, Congress and the Executive must work together, as a team."

Amiable teamwork may be rather much to expect. But there are men in the Administration, and others in Congress, who know what must be done. In spite of strain, and even though at the expense of delay, a program for preventing inflation will be worked out.

U-Boat Warfare

By Paul Schubert

Freight Moves to Europe

WHATEVER SUCCESS we have this year in the European theater—whatever great attacks we mount—it will be because freight moved across the Atlantic . . . because the U-boat failed to stop that freight.

The Atlantic Front has been a critical front throughout the war. Critical because Britain's survival depends on the movement of ships. Doubly critical because our chance of going over from the defensive to the offensive involved the movement of such numbers of ships that conditions seemed to play straight into the hands of Germany's submarine strategists.

Nineteen forty-two was a desperate year in the Atlantic warfare, with submarines ranging to the coasts of the Americas and into the Caribbean taking a fearful toll of our ships. Defensively, the combined British and American navies appeared impotent through much of the year.

As 1943 began, a new U-boat campaign commenced, seemingly the largest and most carefully calculated yet. London and Washington issued gloomy official statements, warning that the U-boat warfare was still critical.

But since March, the balance has swung against the U-boats sharply.

SINCE MID-MAY, we learn, hardly any of our Atlantic shipping has been sunk by U-boat action. Translated into its real significance, this means that the full volume of our war freight has been reaching the combat theaters for the first time during the war, and further that our tonnage in freighters has been growing by leaps and bounds. A year ago our new shipbuilding was barely able to balance losses, and the cargoes that went down with the ships were war effort lost, quite apart from the ships themselves. Our production, designed to compensate and over-compensate for these losses, now forges ahead with abnormal swiftness—before long this must make itself felt in terms of the combat equation.

There have been "lulls" in Atlantic sinkings before.

The present situation sees another development of even greater importance. U-boats are now being sunk faster than the Germans can build them. For the first time during the war, the U-boat fleet is shrinking—and as the submarines go down, Germany is losing the personnel on which the U-boat campaign depends. More than 30 submarines were sunk during May. It has been implied to us that the June sinkings of U-boats have been at a similar rate.

Meantime, quite apart from our cargo tonnage, the British and American fleet of antisubmarine ships and aircraft grows from day to day.

The advantage, now obviously with our side, promises to become a total advantage. It looks as though the Battle of the Atlantic may be definitely won during 1943—the U-boats reduced to ineffectuality and driven from the western ocean altogether, so that our mastery of this sea becomes as complete as our mastery of the Mediterranean.

What has happened to throw the advantage so sharply in our favor?

IT IS a great pity that the public has been kept so completely in the dark as to the full story of this epic fight so important to our national fate. The public knows enough about the air warfare, for instance, to have a fair general picture of what it means to fight Germany with bombing planes. The public learned about the North African campaign through admirable work by correspondents as well as through official releases. The story of Guadalcanal has been publicized. So has the Pacific naval warfare. Everyone is aware that "security" has prevented the release of all the details of these actions. Methods and weapons have never been described. But at least the public has learned the things presumably known to the enemy.

By contrast, the submarine warfare has from the beginning been treated with a hush-hush that has made its defeats and its victories seem illogical and inexplicable to the citizen in the street. How is it possible that things were going so badly in January—so well in April? Why the official gloom at one time, followed so soon by the official glow of success?

We have, of course, been told about destroyer-escort vessels, about aircraft-carriers converted from merchant ships, about very long-range aircraft on mid-Atlantic patrol. We've heard about radar and sound-detection, about the antisubmarine organization that covers the whole Atlantic, directed from control centers ashore. We know that apart from all organization, the war against the U-boats has been won by fighting men at sea.

Now that the Atlantic campaign is going well, it would be good to tie all these things together enough to let John Citizen know just how big a fight his Navy has been in—and how it was won.

Transportation

There is a condition which exists in connection with this transportation problem which deserves attention.

In the course of the hour or more which I spend going to work, I transfer at Fourth and Rhode Island Avenue Northeast, to a bus which terminates at Seventh and Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest. Before these buses leave Fourth Street Northeast, they are always packed to the door. However, between the period of 7:15 and 7:35 a. m. I have observed the many "E-2" buses (terminus Fourteenth and Rhode Island Avenue Northwest) passing this point practically empty. When I say empty I mean that in many cases there are double seats vacant and the buses are the large type. The transit company maintains an inspector at this junction who observes this condition every morning. His explanation is that the ODT will not permit the rerouting of these buses, therefore they have to travel back and forth practically empty. This explanation sounds logical, inasmuch as this agency is involved. The service both here in the morning and at Seventh and Pennsylvania Avenue in the evening has taken a turn for the worse in the last few days, which is partly the reason for this letter.

Some one is guilty of not making the most efficient use of the available equipment and I think that this waste of gasoline and manpower should be corrected immediately. L. T. B.

Mob Spirit

The mob spirit is a black mark on the American scene—it is a manifestation of warped thinking. This spirit is like a malignant disease that grows and must be cut out and not patched up, if it would be kept from spreading.

The leaders of the dominant group must remove this vile growth of diseased thinking from national down to the State, city and community. Since this mob spirit is most prevalent in Negro and white relationship strong efforts must be made in schools, press, church, radio to throw light on the 12 to 14 million Negro Americans. In the South the leaders of the white group should let it be known that the Negro is part of their economy and a fellow American.

De Gaulle

It is thoroughly disgusting to anyone who really knows something of the situation, to read such biased attitudes as the American press is feeding its readers. In this morning's edition of The Post, Kirke Simpson reports that General Eisenhower is to be given a free hand in curbing French wrangling in North Africa.

General De Gaulle is constantly being painted as a stubborn upstart who is precipitating the rivalry and getting in people's hair. No word of praise is ever given his men for the support they have given the Allies since 1940—no report of the successes of the Fighting French in action.

General de Gaulle is not a single personality—looking for his own edification. He is a symbol of hope to the French people, a symbol of restoration of honor to the Republic of France and her empire. France was sold out to her enemies by crooked, scheming politicians and naturally General de Gaulle must stick to his guns in demanding that these same traitors have nothing to do with the restoration and liberation of France. The men in the armed forces of the Fighting French do not want to be placed under control of these same men who had previously given them the death penalty, who were instrumental in placing members of their families in France before a firing squad. Nor do the thousands of civilians who have been working in the undergrounds—knowing what these traitors have been doing, want to pay homage to these same quislings.

It is time for the American press to realize, despite the State Department's "hush hush" that there are only two kinds of Frenchmen, one kind is pro-Nazi—and these are very few now since all that could jumped on the U. S. bandwagon with Eisenhower in order to save their own necks—the other are De Gaulle's Fighting French who have never wavered in their determination to fight the Axis and restore liberty and honor to France. PAPA VICTORIE.

Sales Tax

Re the wages of the poor "white collar" workers:

Any person willing to do even a halfway job can name his or her own price—be it domestic or office or factory.

So why not a sales tax, where the big aggregate income is?

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Peas, Weevils, Aphids And Joliet

Ima Dodo is hysterical with fear. We never saw her so upset, nervous and apprehensive.

"How can I get out of this? Do you know any influential politicians? Would a letter to the President do any good? Would I be tried by jury? Oh, dear, oh, dear!" she babbled on.

"Now, look," we began . . .

"I just didn't know! I mean it was just an oversight. Should I maybe get a lawyer?"

"Just what's the . . .?" we interrupted.

"Huff, Callahan, Bernstein, White, Schwartz and Spinello are a big law firm. I know Mr. Bernstein. The penalties are terrific. A year in jail and $5000 fine, or something. What should I do first? Know anybody in Washington?"

We clapped a hand over her big mouth and shoved her into the nearest chair. "What's this all about?" we demanded.

"It could be two years and $10,000 even," she cried.

"What have you done, robbed a bank, set fire to the orphan asylum, talked back to an OPA scout or been found in an auto while in motion? Speak!"

"I was just spraying," she bawled.

"What were you spraying?"

"Peas," she sobbed. "And beans."

"You're supposed to spray peas and beans. Stop shivering. It's legal."

"But I wasn't spraying the peas against pea weevil or pea aphid," she cried. "I was spraying them for other bugs."

"What of it?"

"And that isn't all. I'm not sure I was spraying the beans against Mexican bean beetle. It's too, too terrible. They'll be after me any minute. Phone a lawyer, please!"

"Who cares what you were spraying a pea or bean for? It makes no difference."

"Oh, but it does," sobbed Ima. "There's a Federal regulation as amended January 23, 1943, Section 119, I. Look! It's right here on the spray label . . ."

Ima showed the label. It read as follows:

The use of this pray is restricted by WPB's Conservation Order M-133, as amended January 23, 1943, to the following uses:

1: Peas. Against the weevil and aphid.

2. Beans. Against Mexican bean beetle.

3. Cole crops, other than cabbage. Against caterpillars and aphids.

"See;" sobbed Ima, as we finished reading. "It's all so clear."

"Woman," we said severely. "Do you mean you used a spray without being positive what you were spraying?"

"I'm sure I hit a caterpillar instead of weevils and aphids on the peas," she wept. "And I have a feeling I sprayed aphids on the broccoli. Heaven knows what was on the beans!"

This was too much. There was nothing to do but consult counsel and give herself up. We so advised, hoping for the best. Maybe she can prove it was an accident.

Dear Chester:
It's better!

The Army has developed a chocolate bar that will not melt below 120 degrees. Now if it will turn out an ice cream that can be carried in the hip pocket . . .

We understand Hitler is greatly interested in that new helicopter. Bet he is looking for one that will rise straight up and not come down.

Elmer Davis is such a well-balanced and efficient OWI head that it looks as if a lot of folks were determined to make an example of him.

"Forgotten Austria"

As an Austrian, I want to express my gratitude for your splendid editorial in The Washington Post suggesting that Austria be not forgotten in this war of liberation and that the State Department might use its good offices in bringing the various factions of our politicians together. What could be achieved in the case of France might also be attempted with Austria. This is the more important as the Allies, by invading Italy, shall suddenly be the immediate neighbors of Austria, and a realistic program should be ready to meet politically a fact which, let us hope, will soon be a reality.

It was also with great pleasure that I read the name of Professor Ranshofen-Wertheimer in connection with your editorial. As the permanent delegate of the Austrian National Council in Washington he represents also personally the type of man whose integrity, experience and character inspire confidence with all the different factions of our various political groups. The State Department would do well to avail itself of so qualified a man.

Union Restrictions

Do our labor leaders and their followers appreciate just what is at stake for this country in this great global war? I think not! We have read a good deal regarding the slackening of our vital coal production, but our shipyards seem to be hiring a crew of saboteurs also!

If our FBI would read—"Remove Union Restrictions and Increase Shipyard Production by One-Third"—by John Patric, Reader's Digest for June, I think they would hurry a group of their agents out there to round up the saboteurs for a concentration camp.

Domestic Dissension

By Ernest Lindley

Ammunition For The Enemy

DURING the past few weeks, the United States has been passing the ammunition with reckless generosity to Axis propagandists. To mention only a few of the largest caliber shells:

LINDLEY

1. The Detroit race riot, especially valuable to the Japanese in their antiwhite propaganda, but useful also to the Nazis as a manifestation of a serious internal ailment.

2. The coal strike.

3. The collisions between the President and Congress, from antistrike legislation, through the congressional assault on OWI, OPA, NYA and various other executive agencies, to the near-destruction of the inflation-control program.

4. The inability of Congress to conduct its business in an orderly manner, as evidenced by the large number of appropriation bills on which action had not been completed at the end of the fiscal year, June 30.

5. The resignation of Chester Davis as War Food Administrator, with a blast at the economic policies of the executive branch.

6. Vice President Wallace's broadside at Jesse Jones.

7. The President's aspersions on the newspapers, which were refuted by the actions of his own quarreling lieutenants—actions which, to quote Lyle Wilson of the United Press, were "unsolicited by the press."

THESE OCCURRENCES, and others similar, have not only heartened our enemies, they have puzzled, if not raised doubts among our Allies. The Russian press, under strict censorship, has been mercifully silent. Some of the British newspapers have voiced what are only natural misgivings. Many of these events are serious enough as viewed from Washington, where the circumstances are at least partially understood. Anyone outside the United States may be excused for thinking that they reflect a national disunity which may jeopardize victory, not to mention the fruits of victory through the organization of the peace.

Even our own men in the armed services returning from the battlefronts are asking: "Do the folks at home want to win the war, or don't they?" They have in mind, first, the coal strikes, but they are not unaware of the other evidences of disunity. The men engaged in fighting and training for it, do not have much time to discuss the ins and outs of inflation, the FCC, gasoline rationing and farm prices, but they do know that the home front is out of kilter.

THE PRESIDENT has made mistakes in the management of the home front. This Congress has made many of them. It has written a record of petty politics, partisan maneuvering, personal vindictiveness and incompetence to deal with major affairs.

Recent polls indicate that Congress has worked itself down to a low level of public regard. Some of the wiser heads among the opposition know it. During the summer recess, when they talk with their constituents, some of the others may find it out. But a loss of confidence in Congress does not necessarily mean a rise in confidence in the President—although his popularity, judged by the polls, has remained far above that of the present national legislature. To avail himself of the opportunity to enlarge and reinforce his own popularity, he must set his own house in order. Many of his intimates realize this and say it privately—perhaps all except the few who would have to be retired. By autumn the President should be able to tighten and improve the management of the domestic front sufficiently to be relatively invulnerable to major attack.

The opposition in Congress cannot be expected to soft-pedal itself except as it responds to pressures from home. As we get closer to the next presidential election, narrow political motives may be expected to seek even freer play.

THERE IS ONE WAY, however, in which the effects of these unseemly domestic squabbles may be minimized abroad. That is by the agreement of the two major parties on the essentials of a national foreign policy to be pursued now and after the war. Our Allies are not much concerned with what happens to the NYA or the FCC, or even with whether we have more inflation—so long as it does not impair our war production or otherwise diminish our strength. We, not they, have to pay the penalties for more upward twists of the inflationary spiral.

What they fear most, though, is that these intense internal quarrels, in which the opposition so often seems to be moved not by principle but by petty political considerations and a determination to embarrass the President, imply corresponding differences on questions of foreign policy. These uncertainties are a serious handicap to us. Until our role in the postwar world is known, no one else can plan with assurance.

These misgivings cannot be entirely dissipated while our internal quarrels are conducted with so little restraint and often impinge upon the efficiency of our war effort, nor until the war has ended and we have proved our international role by action. But they could be softened by the adoption by Congress of the Fulbright resolution or a simplified B2 H2 resolution, showing accord on the supreme question of our relations to the rest of the world.

Eisenhower Tough 'Boss'

Constant Discipline

(Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower is preparing the greatest of all Allied armies for its zero hour, when it will be thrown against Adolf Hitler's "Fortress Europe." Now he is constantly among his men, stressing discipline and more discipline. This first of two articles tells how "General Ike" gets ready for war.)

By Daniel De Luce
Associated Press Staff Writer

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 4.—The commander in chief of the North African theater of war is a tough man in the "dog days" between campaigns.

He has with him the largest Allied force led by any American in the world.

He has in front of him the sea-girt southern flank of Europe, and the fulfillment of destiny.

Streses Toughness

For two months since his warriors of many nationalities achieved complete victory in Tunisia, the stocky square-jawed Texas-born generalissimo has been stressing toughness.

By toughness he means strict discipline and hard training for combat.

Division after division came back from Tunisia to rear camps, not to loll and rest but to learn to fight with new weapons under new conditions. "General Ike" had ordered it that way.

Hardly any important exercise or maneuver has been carried out in North Africa in recent weeks without the presence of a tireless, watchful observer with four silver stars on his tan overseas cap.

The general's desk routines have been trimmed to a minimum so he can be in the field as much as possible with his officers and men.

He stood off Paltelleria in a British cruiser three days before the Italian garrison surrendered under the air blitz June 22. Then he made numerous trips totaling thousands of miles to see his armies prepare themselves for tasks greater than they ever faced bfore.

Flying as his own pilot, he dropped in the other day on several key training centers. He is an air enthusiasts, having received his license six years ago when he was 47.

Landing on a road in front of a "leadership school," he was invited by the commander to address extemporaneously the husky, attentive pupils.

Typical of Beliefs

What he said was typical of his fundamental beliefs.

"In the hands of junior officers lies the fate of an Army," the highest American officer in Africa said. "You are in direct, immediate command of the troops. You are their inspirational leaders.

"All of you are fighting for the right to live as you please as long as you don't get unjustly in other people's hair. You are fighting against dictation and dictators.

"Only discipline will win a war. Victories come from discipline. And discipline comes from the everlasting efforts of the junior officers."

It's a rule of Allied headquarters that no officer in the theater can be promoted without a favorable report from his immediate superior on his record of maintaining discipline. General Eisenhower is as firm in this respect as was Gen. John J. Pershing in the First World War.

When he personally sees infractions of discipline, he is quick to reprimand, but not in public if this can be avoided. As a professional soldier, he holds that "the evidence of discipline in a civilian army is the saluting."

Test of Trustworthiness

Frequently he has declared, "If you can't trust a man to salute his military superiors as smartly when he is on leave in a town as when he is in his own camp, you can't trust him on any other kind of assignment."

Recently when driving through an area where the troops appeared particularly smart, the commander in chief spied a military police sergeant in a perfect salute beside the road and stopped his car..

"How long have you been in the service?" he asked.

"Seventeen years, sir," said the sergeant, his gaze unwavering and his back ramrod straight.

"Are your M. P.s tough enough for you?"

"Yes, sir."

"Wel, if they're tough enough for you they're tough enough for me."

Steinbeck Tells How Nazi Song, 'Lilli Marlene,' Got Out of Hand

By John Steinbeck

London, July 4.—This is the story of a song. Its name is "Lili Marlene" and it was written in Germany in 1938 by Norbert Schultze and Hans Leit. In due course, they tried to publish it and it was rejected by about two dozen publishers. Finally, it was taken up by a not-too-well-known night club singer, Lala Anderson, a Swedish girl, who used it for her signature song. Lala Anderson has a husky voice and is what you might call the Hildegarde type.

"Lilli Marlene" is a very simple song. The first verse of it goes: "Underneath the lanterns, by the barracks square, I used to meet Marlene and she was young and fair." The song was as simple as that. It went on to tell about Marlene, who first liked stripes and then shoulder bars. Marlene met more and more people until finally she met a brigadier, which was what she wanted all along. We have a song with much the same amused cynicism.

Eventually Lala made a record of the song and even it was not very popular. But one night the German station in Belgrade, which sent out programs to Rommel's Afrika Korps, found that due to a little bombing it did not have many records left, but among a few uninjured discs was the song "Lilli Marlene." It was put on the air to Africa and by the next morning it was being hummed by the Afrika Korps and letters were going in demanding that it be played again.

Becomes Hit in Berlin

The story of its popularity in Africa got back to Berlin and Mme. Goering, who used to be an opera singer, sang the song of the inconstant "Lilli Marlene" to a very select group of Nazis, if there is such a thing. Instantly the song was popular and it was played constantly over the German radio until Goering himself grew a little sick of it, and it is said that, since inconstancy is a subject which is not pleasant to certain high Nazi ears, it was suggested that the song be quietly assassinated. But meanwhile "Lilli Marlene" had got out of hand. Lala Anderson was by now known as the "Soldiers' sweetheart." She was a pin-up girl. Her husky voice ground out of portable phonographs in the desert.

So far, "Lilli" had been solely a German problem, but now the British Eighth Army began to take prisoners and among the spoils they got "Lilli Marlene." And the song swept through the Eighth Army. Australians hummed it and fastened new words to it. The powers hesitated, considering whether it was a good idea to let a German song about a girl who did not have all the sterling virtues become the favorite song of the British Army, for by now the thing had crept into the First Army and the Americans were beginning to experiment with close harmony and were putting an off-beat into it. It wouldn't have done the powers a bit of good if they had decided against the song.

It was out of hand. The Eighth Army was doing all right in the field and it was decided to consider "Lilli Marlene" a prisoner of war, which would have happened anyway, no matter what the powers thought about it. Now "Lilli" is getting deeply into the American Forces in Africa. The Office of War Information took up the problem and decided to keep the melody, but to turn new words against the Germans. Whether this will work or not remains to be seen. "Lilli Marlene" is international. It is to be suspected that she will emerge beside the barrack walls—young and fair and incorruptly inconsistent.

War Songs Rarely About War

There is nothing you can do about a song like this except to let it go. war at all. Indeed, they rarely are. war at all. Indeed ,they rarely are. In the last war, "Madelon" and "Tipperary" had nothing to do with war. The great Australian song of this war, "Waltzing Matilda," concerns itself with sheep stealing. It is to be expected that some groups in America will attack "Lilli," first, on the ground that she is an enemy alien, and, second, because she is no better than she should be. Such attacks will have little effect. "Lilli" is immortal. Her simple desire to meet a brigadier is hardly a German copyright. Politics may be dominated and nationalized, but songs have a way of leaping boundaries.

And it would be amusing if, after all the fuss and hailing, all the marching and indoctrination, the only contribution to the world by the Nazis were "Lilli Marlene."

Gypsum Firm Defies WLB

Wanted: A Policy

By Joseph A. Loftus
Associated Press Staff Writer

Defied by a union and by an employer, the War Labor Board (WLB) faced yesterday the problem of working out a general compliance policy on which may depend the entire future effectiveness of the board as the arbiter of wartime labor disputes.

It is 10 days since counsel for the United States Gypsum Co. told the board it would not comply with an order to sign a maintenance of membership and check-off contract with the C. I. O. United Steel Workers. The company's board chairman is Sewell Avery who, as president of Montgomery Ward & Co., defied a board order last year until President Roosevelt intervened as commander in chief and directed compliance.

In other days, the board would have referred the United States Gypsum case to the President "for such action as you deem appropriate." The action usually was a presidential request for compliance, if that failed, Government seizure of the employer's plant.

Deterring Influence

The deterrent to such action now is the defiance of the United Mine Workers whose president, John L. Lewis, has scorned a WLB order to sign a contract with the soft coal operators.

Operators, whose mines have been taken over by the Government, contend they are the only ones being punished, even though they obeyed the Government throughout the wage controversy.

These contrasting cases have spotlighted the board's compliance policy and raised the issue whether it should resort to identical punitive measures whether the defying party is an employer or a union. One WLB member said a conclusion may be reached this week.

Procedure Opposed

A majority of the WLB is understood to oppose sending the United States Gypsum case to the President until the board's order in the soft coal case is enforced or at least until the board works out an enforceable policy of sanctions against unions as well as employers.

The Connally-Smith Antistrike Act, which gave the WLB statutory standing and supbena power, did not provide, however, any compliance machinery and the board apparently is still dependent upon the general war powers of the President to enforce its decisions.

Transatlantic Flights

$200 Trips Seen After War

Planes carrying between 40 and 50 passengers at a cost of about $200 each will operate in the transatlantic air transport service immediately after the war, a survey prepared by the foreign policy association predicted yesterday.

Expansion of international air transport after the war will be "at an even faster rate than in the '30's," said Howard P. Whidden, jr., of the association's research staff, who prepared the survey.

Whidden warned that expansion of international airlines can only come if "international wrangling" is avoided.

The survey suggests that there appear to be "five main alternatives" for the postwar regime governing world air transport operations:

1. A renewal of the pre-1939 system, which involved the 'closed sky' principle in combination with reciprocal agreements;

2. Internationalization of all but domestic services;

3. Freedom of the air—a system roughly analogous to peacetime's freedom of the seas;

4. Freedom to cross national territories with technical stops en route, but not the right to pick up commercial traffic; and

5. Something similar to No. 4, coupled with an international allocation of services.

The United States, by reason of its war activities, will enter the postwar competition producing a great proportion of the transport planes on the Allied side, the survey noted; but at the same time the opening up of great circle routes from North America to Europe and Asia "will be placing, in terms of the 'closed sky' principle, a tremendous new premium on geographical position, in which the United States is relatively weak. The Soviet Union and Canada, in particular, will have gained from this development, while Britain, with its far-flung possessions and its Commonwealth connections, will probably hold a position roughly adequate to meet its war-expanded ambitions in the air. This means that the old system of bilateral bargaining will be placed under extremely heavy strain as the United States tries to enlarge its operations in an air world greatly expanded technically but still restricted legally."

The survey concluded by saying:

"If the United Nations are able to establish a world order in which the economic, political and security needs of all nations can be reconciled one with another—however difficult this process may be—international air transport would undoubtedly be governed by a regime permitting it to open new frontiers for human development and understanding. Mankind would then stand on the threshold of a new age—an air age—more promising in terms of human welfare than any in history."

Dr. Hastings Gives Final Discourse On Four Freedoms

Dr. J. Warren Hastings, pastor of National City Christian Church at Thomas Circle, said yesterday that there can be no complete human freedom "until we free men from fear."

"If we are to overcome fear, there must be a new understanding in the field of human relationships," he said in his concluding sermon of a series on "The Four Freedoms." "Conditions must be such that men will not fear each other."

"Unless there is a rebirth of the doctrine of the value of the individual personality we are lost. Without this there can be no lasting advance in the ethical standards that obtain between men."

WAAC or WAC, Army Girls Will Keep on Serving Country

By Emily Towe
Post Staff Writer

WAACS promenading the streets of the Capital yesterday predicted that "women soldiers" will not leave the ranks when the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps officially becomes the Women's Army Corps on September 30.

President Roosevelt signed legislation Friday providing for incorporation of the WAAC intc the United States Army and renaming it WAC. However, the organization will continue in its present status with continuation of enlistment and the name WAAC until it goes out of existence at the end of September.

Although WAACS who do not desire to continue in the newly created Women's Army Corps may be discharged, the patriotic attitude of several young women questioned yesterday indicated that most of them will stick to their jobs so that men may be released for combat duty.

Sprightly in their summer khaki, the girls stopped sightseeing to tell a Post reporter that the Women's Army does not provide glamour and adventure, but offers opportunity for helpful service in the form of hard work for America.

"Even the gripers won't leave when the time comes," declared Corpl. Leona Hopkins, a diminutive blonde from Los Angeles. "They say it is a sign of a healthy Army when there's grumbling around. I believe only a few will drop out for dependency reasons, or because they were disillusioned in their hope for excitement."

Auxiliary Mary Nelson, a dark-eyed girl from Minneapolis, Minn., said: "I think most of the girls look on our jobs as important because we release men to shoot the guns."

"Won't it be wonderful to send mail free like the servicemen do instead of spending our money on stamps," said Auxiliary Marjorie Crook, from Minneapolis, who arrived here Saturday for duty at Walter Reed Hospital.

Two auxiliaries said, "Those high-stepping WAVES won't have a thing on us now. They've been so proud of being a real part of the Navy, but we're actually in the Army now."

600,000 Women Needed, Says Director Hobby

Director Oveta Culp Hobby of the WAAC, who will become a full-fledged colonel under the new setup, said 600,000 women are needed. Between now and September 30 the transfer of all personnel who desire to go to the WAC will be affected. More than 65,000 women already have volunteered.

"For every woman who comes forward to do a military job, one more father will be enabled to remain at home wtih his family," Director Hobby declared. "Women as a group always have been the exponents of family life. They may now preserve and protect this family life, the core of American civilization and culture."

WAAC Morals Commended

By the Associated Press

Chaplain George W. Casey, "attacking the unchivalrous, ungrateful and unjust criticism" of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps, asserted yesterday "the wonder is not there were moral failures, but that there were so few."

He praised interest of the Army, in which he serves as a chaplain with rank of first lieutenant, in religion and morality, and declared, "the WAAC is on the side of morality too."

"It has many suggestions for the member's leisure time, which is temptation time—sports, shows, dances, concerts, books—but licentiousness—never. . . . Whatever moral danger threatens them isn't due to the WAAC or its lack of vigilance; it isn't due to the war—it's due to the same thing in the service as in civilian life; that is, to the lack of consciousnes of sin and loss of the fear of God."

Chaplain Casey, who spoke on the Catholic hour on the N. B. C. network, added in his prepared talk:

"The WAACS are not a choir of angels. When they get tired and depressed some of them may strain a little after relaxation and diversion. There were, especially in the beginning, members whose moral and physical stamina was untested, who were woefully unaware of the impact of fatigue, homesickness and restriction of liberty on a frail spirit. There were some who were just adventuring, but these were neither helpful nor happy, so by now they have almost all gone home. . . . It is an understatement to say that the WAACS are a hard—working, high-minded patriotic lot of girls.

100 'Forgotten Men' To Take Problem To White House

White collar workers will meet in Washington Thursday to make sure they are not forgotten men by calling on President Roosevelt, Attorney General Francis Biddle; OWM Director James F. Byrnes, and Director of Economic Stabilization Fred M. Vinson.

A delegation of 100, sponsored by the United Office and Professional Workers of America and representing New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Massachusetts and Maryland will be joined by District Local 27 in supporting the President's anti-subsidy veto message. The President said such legislation ignored millions of white collar workers whose salaries have remained low.

The workers want a "roll-back in prices to September levels, subsidies, grade labeling, ending of race discrimination and riots by investigating and prosecuting Axis agents who cause them, a tax program based on ability to pay, and no sales tax."

Finnish Group Woos America

By the Associated Press

An open Finnish bid for better relations with the United States, in disregard of German pressure on Finland, aroused interest in diplomatic quarters here yesterday.

Organization of a Finnish-American Society at Helsinki, composed only of Finns, was announced during the past week to "cultivate good relations between Finland and the United States." Its chairman is Eljas Erkko, newspaper editor and former foreign minister.

Its organizers long have been considered pro-American. What interested Washington observers was the fact that they should announce such an organization while subject to German pressure.

Some regarded it as a sign that Germany has weakened until the Finns no longer fear that country, and that the organizers of the society, at least, are confident of a United Nations victory. The group is generally believed to be motivated by a desire for American friendship during Finland's war with Soviet Russia, and especially at the peace table, when Finland's postwar status in Europe is decided.

No comment on the announcement has come from Germany, although the German Transocean News Agency reported it. This agency said the aim was to "acquaint the Finns with the industrial and cultural life of the United States, while in the United States knowledge of Finland is to be promoted."

The organizers included Uuno Hannula, former minister of education, members of Parliament, professors of the University of Helsinki and industrialists.

H. F. Arthur Schoenfeld, United States Minister to Helsinki, was called back to Washington some time ago "for consultation," but the Finnish Minister, Hjalmar Procope, has remained in Washington.

Liberty Ship Cohan Floated

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, July 4.—With the band playing "Yankee Doodle Dandy" and 20,000 persons roaring approval, the Liberty Ship George M. Cohan, named for the late showman-songwriter who was born July 4, slid smoothly into the blue-green waters of Chesapeake Bay, today.

Her prow still dripping champagne from the bottle wielded by Marjorie Cantor, eldest daughter of Eddie Cantor, life-long friend of the "flag-waving" composer, she was taken into tow immediately by tugs and prepared for sea duty with Uncle Sam's supply fleet.

The launching was the climax of an Independence Day celebration and war bond drive calculated to stir the heart of the most passive American, what with Eddie himself singing such Cohan songs as "Harrigan," "Give My Regards to Broadway," "It's the Same Old Song They Sing," "It's a Grand Old Flag" and "Over There." High ranking naval officers as thick as the stars on the numerous flags along the bay front were present.

Eddie paid tribute to the memory of Cohan not only in song but by saying:

"If there ever was one man who was a symbol of our great Nation, that man was George M. Cohan. He always tried to project the spirit of America. His songs came from the pen and the heart. He waved the Flag because he loved it. He gave it a 'permanent wave'."

Cantor recalled he met Cohan in 1913 when he (Cantor) was playing Keith's Theater in Boston with Gus Edwards' kids, and Cohan was an enthusiastic member of the audience.

From that time on until Cohan's death last November, he and Cantor were the closest of friends, playing many benefits together.

"He never forgot a birthday in my family," said Eddie, "and there were plenty of them."

The George M. Cohan was the 161st Liberty ship launched at the Bethlehem-Fairfield shipyard.

Pacific Isle's Peace Faded as Band Landed

"This was a peaceful island before the war," writes Sergt. William C. Harris, a Marine Corps combat correspondent formerly of Washington and now of "somewhere in the Pacific." "Then the Marines landed, bringing instruments of battle and 19 musicians," he says.

Sergt. Harris, for eight years secretary to Representative Hugh Peterson (Democrat) of Georgia and also a copyreader for The Post, lived in Washington with his wife and small daughter, Nancy Helen, age 3, before enlisting last December. He trained at Parris Island, S. C., came to Washington for customary combat reporter indoctrination and was assigned directly to the Pacific area. His family now is in Georgia.

A Tennessean, he joined Representative Peterson's staff while a reporter for the Savannah Morning News and was a "mighty fine secretary," the Congressman said yesterday.

In the Pacific, Harris says, "Now at nightfall, when the turtles, crabs and seagulls have gone to bed the moon is shimmering on the waters, the musicians cut loose on their horns and drums with strictly Stateside stuff."

"Tooting the French horn, he writes, is Staff Sergt. R. H. Longmire, one-time bass fiddler at the Mayfair, who met and married Mrs. Lorraine Hall Longmire three years ago in Washington.

Mrs. Longmire, free-lance artist, who is now living with her parents at 1901 L Street Northeast, said yesterday that the sergeant writes he is the "pah" part of the "oompah trio." Sergeant Longmire enlisted in April, 1942, and was sent overseas in July 1942.

Nats Lose Two, 4-2, 10-3; Yanks Split

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

On one point, there must be unanimous agreement about the American League pennant race. It isn't dull. It is the hottest scramble for position that the league has seen in a couple of decades.

It's the kind of race, for example, in which the Cleveland Indians

POVICH

Indians were in first place on a Saturday morning and game out of seventh place the following Monday night. That happened five weeks ago. On Friday morning the White Sox were in the first division. On Friday night they were seventh after losing one ball game. The league standings are a greasepole, as far as the speed with which a team can shuttle up and down the scale is concerned. A mere five-game winning streak could take a team out of the second division into the league lead. It's a cut-throat state of affairs that isn't doing fan interest a bit of harm.

Actually, there isn't a real good ball team in the whole league. If there was one around it would be in front by ten games at this point, because it wouldn't have much to lick. Relatively, the Nats look as good as any club and better than most. The tip-off is that the Yankees can lose Joe DiMaggio, Phil Rizzuto, Red Rolfe, Tommy Henrich and Red Ruffing and still stay up there. The Red Sox, without Ted Williams, Dom DiMaggio and Johnny Pesky, are in the first division.

With every succeeding day the Washington club looks like a solid team. It is up there nicely despite the fact that it hasn't been geting its normal expectancy of results from such hitters as Stan Spence (.244), Mickey Vernon (.239) and Johnny Sullivan (.212). The Nats seem to have a greater potential than any club in the league.

By this time, any remaining awe of the Yankees should have worn off. The Yankees now look for all the world just like another ball club. There's no substitute for good ball players, and the Yankees have lost a lot of them to the armed services. They've been getting by to date on their pitching, but of late their pitching has beeen getting bumped.

The Yankees could be in for their worst Western trip in many years. They started off losing two out of three at Cleveland, and at Detroit they were slapped down in a double-header yesterday. Yankee luck is running low, too. Charley Keller suffered a spiked knee yesterday and was shipped back East as a casualty. He's merely the most important man on the Yankee team. The Yankees won't miss Keller any more than General MacArthur would miss his air arm.

There are even signs that Washington is getting some of the luck that always attends success. Stan Spence, who hadn't hit a home run all season, picked a spot last night when a man was on base and the Nats two runs behind to get his first homer, and later in the game he tied it up again with another homer. In Chicago the other day, when the White Sox needed a run to tie the score and had men on first and second in the eleventh inning with only one out, they played into the Nats' hands with an absurd attempt at a double steal.

The Nats have been doing all right despite the fact Dutch Leonard has won only one game in more than a month. Milo Candini has come along to be the pitching sensation of the league with his seven straight wins, and Early Wynn is becoming one of the respected pitcher in the circuit since he developed a let-up ball to go along with his fast one which is very quick.

It isn't apparent yet which club can make the most trouble for the league leaders. Cleveland is getting tough, but there is always a great reluctance to bestow too much respect on Cleveland. It has folded too often in the past. Besides, the Indians' outfield isn't much much account and one of their infielders are hitting.

Boston and Detroit could be troublemakers for the Yankees and Nats. The Red Sox pitching is not to be discounted, and Bobby Doerr and Tony Lupien are not yet hitting in their accustomed manner. The Tigers, with Rudy York, Dick Wakefield and Pinky Higgins, are one of the league's power teams. With a little more depth in their pitching, the Tigers could take it all. This is no time to snub any club, though. That seventh-place team might have been scorning this morning might be leading the league before the week is out. Maybe it's best to speak nicely of them all. Anyway, it's safest.

Browns Win Over Mertz, Carrasquel

Former Nat Hurlers Al Hollingsworth And Sundra Score Behind Early Leads

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

St. Louis, Mo., July 4.—Frankly, the Nats were not much account today. With a chance to take over the league lead from the Yankees they were licked twice by the seventh-place Browns, 4 to 2 and 10 to 3.

The second game was called after seven innings to permit the Nats to catch a tarin to Detroit, and it was just as well. They were showing no signs of catching the Browns at that point in the afternoon.

The Nats met up with a couple of old pals today and it was sort of embarrassing, because their old pals weren't very pally. They were Steve Sundra and Al Hollingsworth, the winning pitchers. Once upon a time both of them worked for the Nats.

Even in a game when Johnny Sullivan and Gene Moore hit their first home runs of the season, the Nats couldn't win. That was the first game, and the homers were the only two runs the Nats scored against Sundra. George Caster, however, had to come to Sundra's rescue in the late innings.

Mertz Is Loser

Jim Mertz was the loser in the first game. He and Rae Scarborough gave up 10 hits, with the Browns scoring their four runs one at a time.

Stan Spence continued his home run spree in the second game, getting his third of the series, but it was futile. The Browns pummeled Alex Carrasquel for 10 hits in their 7 innings at bat. Five of them were doubles. One of them was Chet Laabs' enormous homer into the center-field stands. Carrasquel didn't have a thing except his Spanish vocabulary.

The Browns started right off winning the second game in the first when Gutteridge touched up Carrasquel for a single and Laabs checked in with his homer for a 2-to-0 lead. They added a run in the second when McQuinn doubled and Ferrell singled.

Spence cut the Nats' deficit to 3-2 with his homer atop the right-field roof after Case led off the third with a single, but that's the closest the Nats got to the Browns. Byrnes doubled home a run in the third, and in the fourth Clift and Ferrell put together a pair of two baggers off the left-field wall to up the Browns' lead to 5-2. Their fifth two bagger was McQuinn's in the fifth, which scored two more runs. We'll spare you the details of those three Brownie runs in the seventh.

Boot Scoring Chances

When the Nats weren't hitting home runs in the first game they were not much account. Mertz and Scarborough did a middling job of it, holding the Browns to four runs, but the nats muffed a succession of scoring chances.

Mertz gave up a run in the first on Gutteridge's double to center and Byrnes' single, and after the Nats tied the score in the fourth, the Browns took a 2-1 lead after

Phillies Win, 2-1, Then Bow, 5-2, to Cubs

Philadelphia, July 3 (AP).—The Phillies and Chicago Cubs split a double-header at Shibe Park today before a crowd of 15,671 that sent the Phillies 6552 over their last year's total attendance for the season, 230,183. The Phillies took the first game 2 to 1 and the Cubs the second, 5 to 2.

Old Silas Johnson, who rejected an assignment as batting practice pitcher for the all-star game in a sarcastically formal note yesterday, let the Cubs down with five hits in the opener, registering his eighth victory against three defeats. He also snapped a five-game winning streak of the Cubs and a three-game losing streak of the Phillies. Hi Bithorn and Ed Hanyzewski hurled for the Cubs, with Bithorn suffering the loss.

Both the Phillies' runs came in the second inning on Coaker Triplett's double, after Jimmy Wasdell walked and Babe Dahlgren singled. Johnson missed a shutout through a fumble by Dahlgren that set up a run driven home by Stan Hack's single in the seventh.

The Phillies started the second game with a brand-new battery. Dick (Kewpie) Barrett, just purchased from the Seattle Rainiers after he was turned back by the Cubs, faced his old teammates on the mound. Behind the plate was Bob Filey, bought from Knoxville.

A poor throw by Filey put two runners in scoring position in the first inning and both came home on infield grounders. The Cubs picked up another run in the third on singles by Hack and Phil Cavaretta and an infield out.

Cards Win Twin Bill From Dodgers, 2-0, 7-2

St. Louis Now Four Games Ahead of Brooks; First Game Goes 10 Innings

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, July 4.—With two different styles of attack the World Champion St. Louis Cardinals took their longest lead of the year today as they downed Brooklyn twice to stretch their margin over the slipping Dodgers to four games before a capacity crowd of 32,387 paid customers at Ebbets Field.

After battling through nine scoreless innings in the first game, the Cards turned on their vaunted speed to push across two runs in the tenth for a 2-0 victory behind the three-hit pitching of Howie Pollet. Then, in the nightcap, they teed off against Freddie Fitzsimmons, pounding out ten hits, three of them homers, as they romped to a 7 to 2 triumph on Max Lanier's six-hit twirling.

Super Fielding

Pollet, victorious over the Dodgers for the first time in six starts over a span of three seasons, and Curt Davis, running his string of scoreless innings to 29 before bowing in the tenth, staged a thrilling mound duel featured by brilliant defensive play by both teams.

Davis started his own downfall by failing to touch first on Pollet's hit to Dolph Camilli. Lou Klein sacrificed the Cardinals' southpaw to second and when Harry Walker dropped a single in short left, Pollet raced home as Joe Medwick made a poor peg to the plate. Stan Musial was purposely passed and Danny Litwhiler crashed through with a single to score Walker with the second tally.

The second game, featured by Whitey Kurowski's four hits and three by Litwhiler, was settled in the first inning. Three successive hits and an error accounted for four runs, Walker Cooper driving in the last three with a homer. Kurowski doubled another home in the third and homers by Litwhiler and Kurowski finished the scoring in the fifth. They also finished Fitzsimmons. Les Webber and Johnny Allen checked the Cards the remainder of the distance.

Lose Fifth in Row

Arky Vaughan's triple and Medwick's single gave the Dodgers their first tally in the fourth. Dixie Walker and Dolph Camilli teamed up for the second in the seventh, the Brooklyn first baseman driving the run home with a double to partially atone for striking out four times in the two games. The Brooks now have lost five in a row.

Silver Star Awarded to Barney Ross

By the Associated Press

New York, July 4.—For his heroic action at Guadalcanal last November 19, Marine Sergt. Barney Ross, retired world lightweight boxing champion, received the Silver Star Medal today during a Blue Network Independence Day radio program honoring American fighting men.

The medal was pinned over his heart by Capt. Lester L. Pratt, U. S. N., commanding officer of the naval hospital at St. Albans, Long Island, where Ross is attached while on sick leave.

The accompanying citation from Rear Admiral T. W. Wilkinson, U. S. N., deputy commander, South Pacific area, read: "For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity in action against the enemy while serving with a Marine battalion on Guadalcanal, British Solomon Island, November 18-20, 1942."

The decoration, first he has received for his Guadalcanal action, was awarded him for standing guard all night over three wounded comrades after refusing to be evacuated with his Marine unit from an advanced position. During the night he fired 450 rounds of ammunition. He was credited with having killed seven Japanese snipers and about 10 probables.

Among the guests of honor on the program, sponsored by the Blue Network and the New York Journal-American, was WAVE Trainee Genevieve Sullivan, sister of the five Sullivan brothers from Waterloo, Ia., who lost their lives when the U. S. S. Juneau went down off Guadalcanal.

131,058 Fans See Twin Bills At 7 Parks

New York, July 4 (AP).—A total of 131,058 baseball fans turned out today for seven major league holiday double-headers. This compares with 214,743 for eight holiday twin bills a year ago and with 211,645, the largest 1943 turnout on May 23.

The biggest crowd of the day was at Ebbets Field where 32,387 watched the St. Louis Cardinals crush the Brooklyn Dodgers twice. Eight more bargain bills are scheduled for tomorrow when baseball formally observes Independence Day.

The figures:

Pete Stathis Hurls No-Hitter for Trojans

With Pete Stathis hurling no-hit, no-run ball over an 11-inning route, Washington Trojans yesterday defeated Hyattsville, 1-0 in an overtime battle. Stathis personally scored the winning run in the eleventh when he walked, stole second, and scored when Reynolds belted a single to left.

Braves Whip Pirates Twice, 3-1 and 13-0

By International News Service

Boston, July 4.—The Braves beat the Pittsburgh Pirates in both ends of a double-header before 13,275 this afternoon by way of snapping a six-game losing streak.

"Red" Barrett pitched four-hit ball in besting Wally (Lefty) Hebert, 3 to 1, in the opener, while the nightcap saw the Warriors chalk up their most one-sided victory of the season, 13 to 0.

Sparking a 15-hit assault against John Gornicki, Harry Shuman and Bill Brandt in the afterpiece was Johnny McCarthy, who hit a home run, two doubles and a single.

Jim Tobin, in addition to hurling six-hit ball for his sixth win of the year, also hit a homer, double and single. Charlie Workman connected for his seventh homer.

Trade Pair Of Shutouts With Tigers

New York's League Lead Now 1 Game; Bonham Scores, 1-0, Yanks Blanked, 6-0

Detroit, July 4 (AP).—The tottering New York Yankees clung to the American League leadership today by swapping shutouts with the Detroit Tigers, winning the opener, 1 to 0, on Ernie Bonham's four-hitter and dropping the nightcap, 6 to 0, on rookie Frank (Stub) Overmire's five-hitter.

The Yankees, on the ropes after blowing four of five starts in the West, smashed a four-game losing streak as Bonham gained his third shutout and seventh triumph of the season against three defeats. The Yanks meanwhile clustered singles by Bill Johnson and Frank Crosetti with Bud Metheny's run-scoring double in the fifth off Virgil (Fire) Trucks, who suffered his fifth defeat.

Beat Old Nemesis

The Tigers beat an old nemesis, Hank Borowy, for the first time by scoring four times in the fifth in a rally topped by Rookie Dick Wakefield's three-run homer, his third of the season, off the third deck in right field. It was Borowy's first setback the the Tigers after five victories and his seventh defeat of the season. Overmire gained his fourth victory.

Before a holiday crowd of 22,249, curtailed by weather that held up the start of play 27 minutes, the Yankees cracked Detroit's five-game winning streak on Bonham's good pitching. The big righthander permitted only two Tigers to reach second base, and two of the three hits were infield scratches before Wakefield doubled with one out in the ninth.

Then with the pressure on, particularly in view of the Yankee late-inning collapses yesterday while losing twice, Bonham worked flawlessly, inducing Pinky Higgins and Ned Harris to ground out.

Wakefield Blasts Homer

Borowy had a two-hitter going into the fifth inning of the nightcap when things exploded in his face. Jimmy Bloodworth singled and, with two out, scored from second on Roger Cramer's single. Joe Hoover singled and then Wakefield blasted his prodigious homer.

An error, Hoover's triple and

Roosevelt Host To Base Runners

Second week activity in the nine-week city-wide base-running program has been set for Roosevelt High School's athletic field tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock when some 100 youngsters are expected to compete in the event sponsored collectively by Clark Griffith, the Touchdown Club and Boys Club of Washington.

The competition is open to all boys of the District area and vicinity between 12 and 17 years, and registration may be made at the nearest Boys Club or on the grounds.

Nats-Atlanta Pitcher Deal Called Off

St. Louis, Mo., July 4.—It now develops that Pitcher Dewey Adkins, supposedly traded to Atlanta by the Nats, went back to Washington just for the ride . . . the deal by which the Nats were to acquire Pitcher Vernon Curtis, from Atlanta, is off, for some vague reason . . . The Toledo club, it seems, had some kind of a prior claim on one of the two pitchers, and so no deal could be transacted . . . Adkins will rejoin the Nats in Detroit tomorrow . . . In any event, it is not exactly league Rocking . . . the Nats will play their holiday double-header at Detroit tomorrow in two parts . . . they'll meet the Tigers in a morning game at 11 a. m. for the swing shift, and they shall play again in a twilight game at 6 p. m. . . . Stan Spence has no startling explanation for his sudden home run spree in St. Louis where he collected his first three homers of the season in the three-game series . . . Spence set some kind of a record for quoting the obvious when he said, "I guess I'm meeting the ball better."

Plan Benefit Game

A dinner meeting of the Touchdown Club's Baseball Committee is set for tomorrow night at 6 o'clock when members will complete details for the baseball double-header to be sponsored in the interests of War Relief at Griffith Stadium on the night of July 28.

Chisox Score Twice Over Macks, 5-2, 5-1

By International News Service

Chicago, July 4.—The Chicago White Sox climbed into the first division of the American League today by taking two games from the Philadelphia Athletics, 5 to 2 and 5 to 1.

Thornton Lee won the opening event by pitching six-hit ball, while Oryal Grove won the nightcap with an even better performance. Philadelphia batters getting only three hits.

The Sox found Russ Christopher a tough pitcher in the second game until the seventh inning when they broke a 1-1 tie by scoring four runs. Christopher held them to four hits.

Infielder Jimmy Grant homered in the third inning of the first game for the fourth Sox run. Chicago batters added another run in the fifth frame when Besse relieved Kuczynski. The latter was charged with the defeat.

John Leiss Wins Five-Mile Marathon

Mike Lynch Finishes in Own Event

Leiss Wins Easily Over Rock Creek Course; Goodale Next by 50 Yards

Johnny Leiss and the veteran Mike Lynch collaborated yesterday to make the 5-mile run named in Lynch's honor a success for both.

Leiss, representing the Washington Track and Field Club, who came up with the idea of a marathon named in honor of Lynch, won the event run over and near the Rock Creek Park golf course in the good time of 28 minutes, 50.3 seconds.

Leiss, who will be inducted August 17, finished 50 yards in front of Russell Goodale, unattached, who was second. Leiss took the lead at the start and was never headed.

Lynch, who celebrated his sixtieth birthday yesterday, surprised by going the distance and turned in the respectable time of 37 minutes and 30 seconds.

Following the race Jerry Looney, chairman of the D. C. A. A. U. running committee, presented Lynch with a plaque inscribed "To Mike Lynch, who contributed so much to amateur sports."

ORDER OF FINISH

Johnsen Loses In Net Upset To Gifford

Davie Johnsen's hopes of a sweep of city and sectional tennis laurels were blasted yesterday when the top-seeded player in the Middle Atlantic Tournament at Edgemoor was beaten, 8—6, 3—6, 6—1, by Bill Gifford, who, it was learned after the match, had been ranked No. 2 in New England.

Gifford was not expected to give Johnsen enough of a match to warrant a center court but the newcomer won the first three games of the first set and held off Johnsen's rally to win the set. The newly crowned City of Washington champion came back to win the second set but lost the third.

The crucial point of the third set came when Gifford was leading 2—1 but trailing love-40 on his own serve. At this point Johnsen failed to return three straight services and finally lost the game and went on to lose the match. Gifford then defeated Lieut. Bill Smyth, 6—4, 6—3.

In another singles upset sixth-seeded Curtiss lost to Black, 3—6, 6—4, 6—4. Staff Sergt. Buddy Adair dropped the first set to Ensign R. L. Hill but came back to win the next two and the match, 4—6, 6—3, 6—4.

The doubles play was devoid of surprises as Johnsen and Lynch swept through three matches to reach the semifinals.

'Sleepy Jim' Crowley, Doing Strange Navy Job, Finds He Loves It and It's Important Work

Former 'Horseman' Enthused With Job in Pacific

Fordham Coach Still Building, Remaking Men

By Jack Mahon
International News Service Staff Writer

Somewhere in the South Pacific, June 16 (Delayed).—We used to freeze with him on the football fields around the country back home and had met him in many colorful places. Today we ran into James Harold (Sleepy Jim) Crowley of Notre Dame, Michigan State and Fordham football fame in the middle of the South Seas.

Sleepy Jim shot to gridiron fame as a member of Notre Dame's famed four horsemen, then as coach at Michigan State and Fordham before joining the Navy. He is Lieut. Comdr. James Crowley now, attached to recreational duty and is busy building a recreation park to end all recreation parks on a South Sea isle here. We know his many friends will be happy to learn Sleepy Jim looks great and is doing a swell job.

The Crowley we used to know wore a camel's hair coat and a brown fedora hat pulled down all around as he tramped the sidelines watching his boys play football. The sun-tanned guy we met today wore Navy summer khaki and a pith helmet.

He is still working with boys, rebuilding some who have survived the horrors of war and keeping others mentally fit until the day they come face to face with it.

When our wanderings brought us to this area recently and we learned Sleepy Jim was living aboard a ship in the harbor, we couldn't resist the temptation to send him a message via the "blinker visual" system. Remembering the many long winter evenings Sleepy Jim's Fordham kids waited for the Rose Bowl bids that never materialized, we decided on the following little witticism: "From Rose Hill to the South Pacific, where the hell is Pasadena?"

A short while later came the answer: "Rose Bowl by-passed. Come on over." It was signed "James." Later in the day we visited the island on which Commander Crowley is stationed only to find he had returned to his ship. We were about halfway out to it when we noticed another boat coming in the opposite direction.

Arms were waved, there was much maneuvering of launches and minutes later we pulled alongside the other boat. There in the middle of the Pacific we climbed into the launch and shook hands once again with Sleepy Jim.

He showed us around his island. It is a beautiful spot, fortunately very level, well stocked with coconut trees but containing enough jungle shrubbery to put Tarzan to shame. "I never did this kind of work before," said Jim, "but I'm crazy about it. There was nothing here a couple of months ago and we've built everything you see and did every bit of this work by hand. Work squadrons are sent out from the various ships each day to do the work.

"You have no idea how important this job is. We have about 3000 boys a day visit the park. Kids who have been blown off carriers; who have seen their mates die and their ships sunk; many of them had been wounded and were sent to this area for a rest. And there are many others who would go crazy if they didn't have something like this. This and the movies are all they have."

The recreation center has a couple of horseshoe pitching rings; three tennis courts and basketball courts are under construction and two boxing rings have been laid out. There is a beer hall at which a daily ration of beer is distributed and ice cream is also made on the grounds.

A brand-new stage was being painted and about 10 ball games were going on simultaneously on various diamonds scattered over the island.

On a bulletin board near an equipment hut we were surprised to find various ball games listed for Ebbets Field, Yankee Stadium, Sportsman's Park, Griffith Stadium, Crosley Field, etc.

"Oh, yes, all the diamonds are named after the regular ball parks," explained Sleepy Jim. "The boxing ring is called Madison Square Garden, the tennis courts are Forest Hills and we'll decide on the name of our football field when it's completed. It's a good gag and helps maintain the atmosphere we want."

Sleepy Jim hasn't given much thought to the football season back home. "I don't know much about what kind of a game it will be," he admitted. "I suppose the Big Ten will carry on, they always seem to have material lined up, but as for the rest of the country I really don't know. I know Fordham has canceled several games and I suppose many of the other big schools will do likewise. Say hello to all the boys back there for me, will you?"

Then it was time for us to go and we rose to walk to the dock. We asked Jim if he cared to ride along with us and visit the ship on which we were quartered.

"No, I can't," he answered. "I have to get over to the Yankee Stadium. Our ship is playing a destroyer team. We have a league, you know, and I can't miss any games. I play first base."

The last we saw of him he was walking beneath the coconut trees headed for the "Stadium"—South Seas style—and first base.

P. S.—Sleepy Jim's team won, 9 to 2.

Bob Montgomery Stops Al Reasoner in 6th

Holder of Disputed Lightweight Title K. O.'s Young Foe After Hard Fight Before 5500

New Orleans, July 4 (AP).—Rangy Bob Montgomery, the New York and Philadelphia version of the world's lightweight champion, scored a sixth-round knockout over Chicago's Al Reasoner here today before 5500 paid spectators.

The knockout came in 2 minutes and 15 seconds of the sixth stanza. The bout was a nontitle affair.

The one-time Philadelphia dishwasher and laundry boy had a stubborn foe in young Reasoner, who has fought professionally less than two years, but the outcome was evident from the start. Montgomery weighed in at 138, Reasoner at 137.

Making his first start since lifting the "crown" from Beau Jack in a 15-rounder, the Philadelphia bobcat sent Reasoner to the canvas with a short left to the head for a count of one at the start of he fifth round. Reasoner went down again 15 seconds later for a nine count from a long right to the head. Exhausted, Reasoner slipped to the canvas, as the round ended.

Montgomery's long arms lashed the game Reasoner at will in the sixth, dropping him for a count of five with a right to the mouth shortly after the round started. A flurry of rights and lefts to the head sent Reasoner down for keeps.

The fight was scheduled for 10 rounds.

Wright Wins Easily Over Cuban Champ

By the Associated Press

Havana, Cuba, July 4.—Chalky Wright of Los Angeles, stopped Kid Nacional, Cuban featherweight champion, in the eighth round of a scheduled 10-round bout last night.

The Cuban fighter received a terrific lacing while trying to find an opening in the veteran's defense and both the referee and Kid Nacional's second decided he had received enough punishment after the first eight rounds.

The Kid never left his feet but at the end he was bleeding from deep cuts above his eyes and from a gash in his cheek. He weighed 126 pounds to 127 for Wright.

Chalky missed a left hook midway in the third and Nacional crossed with a right that sent the visitor to his hands and knees for no-count. From then on, Wright applied the pressure.

Grays Twice Victors Over Newark Nine

The Washington Homestead Grays annexed a double-header yesterday at Griffith Stadium, defeating the Newark Eagles, of the Negro National League, 6-2 in the opener, and 6-5 in the nightcap.

Johnny Wright pitched the first game, striking out eight. Bob Stone, of the Eagles, accounted for 3 of the 6 hits charged against him, a single, a double and a triple.

Easterling, with a triple, drove in "Papa" Bell and Josh Gibson in the first inning, for 2 runs. Buck Leonard and Gibson, walked in the third by Pete Hill, scored on Bankhead's smashing drive through the box.

The Eagles, in the seventh, scored David on Stone's triple, and Stone came home on Ruffin's drive to left. But Wright struck out Elam and staved off a promising rally.

In the nightcap "Lefty" Jones, a 19-year-old find, fresh from the Atlanta "Black Crackers," pitched big league baseball for three innings, but allowed four hits to start the fourth, walked Richardson and Watkins to force in Davis and Stone, and, in all, allowed five runs to cross the plate, putting the Eagles in front, 5-3.

Edsel Walker relieved him, and as the Grays came to bat, Elam forced in Walker with the tying run, by pitching four balls each to Leonard and Gibson. To win the game, Gibson lifted his sixth home run of the season high into the center field bleachers, scoring Leonard ahead of him.

Giants Divide Doubleheader With Redlegs

New York, July 4 (AP).—Mel Ott took the home run leadership in the major leagues today by hitting his eleventh homer of the season as the Giants split a double-header with the Cincinnati Reds before 20,101 at the Polo Grounds.

Ott's homer—his third in three days—came in the seventh inning of the opener off Southpaw Johnny Vander Meer and helped the Giants come from behind and win, 6 to 5, in the tenth on Dick Bartell's single. In the nightcap Righthander Ed Heusser halted the Reds' three-game losing streak by pitching a seven-hitter for a 6 to 2 triumph.

Altogether the Reds socked five homers in the two games, Ray Mueller and Max Marshall each getting two and Frank McCormick one. Ernie Lombardi also banged out a roundtripper for the Giants. It came with one on in the ninth inning of the opener and tied the score at 5-5.

Conway Matched With Al Hart for Ball Park Scrap

Al Hart, 235-pound Army War College Negro soldier, and Clent Conway, knockout artist from Newark, also in Uncle Sam's Army, will meet in a ten-round scrap next Monday night at Griffith Stadium with Joe Turner promoting the show.

Conway, who has been victorious in seven straight fights locally, has not shown here since the indoor season.

Hart, who whipped Lou Brooks, Wally Cross and drew with Larry Lane, showed unexpected and pleasing aggressiveness in his last start when he knocked out Claudio Villar in one round.

Hagerstown Track Opens Tomorrow

Plant Only Few Blocks From City

Twilight Racing To Be Introduced With Post Time At 3:30 o'Clock

By Walter Haight
Post Staff Writer

The first, and possibly the last, stop on Maryland's half-mile track parade will be made tomorrow when Hagerstown opens for its annual 10-day meeting. The Old Line State's fair season, once a proud trek of the thoroughbreds through Hagerstown, Cumberland, Marlboro, Bel Air and Timonium, is likely to be limited to not more that 20 days of the sport and all of these to be staged at Hagerstown. Cumberland has been offered the Hub City track with the proviso that its days begin the Tuesday after Hagerstown's meeting closes.

Within the city limits and only a few blocks from the main street, Hagerstown is likely to escape many of the inconveniences suffered by Charles Town. Hagerstown, too, is bristling with activity these days with war plants booming in all sections. The workers have been anxiously awaiting the chance for racing recreation.

With the working hours of most residents in mind, the racing body has set a 3:30 post time, for the first race, giving Maryland the closest thing to twilight racing ever staged in the State.

General Manager Harold Bester reports that he expects Hagerstown, plus a few vacationists from outside, to support the meeting in excellent fashion. The plant has been brushed up and, most important to horsemen and jockeys, is the fact that the running surface has been greatly improved. Bill Schamerhorn, who will double as starter and track superintendent, has brought in sand and has banked the turns.

J. Donald Hay, of Baltimore, will be in charge of the mutuel department and betting will be through the American tote. The daily double, as usual, will be on the first and second races. Hagerstown, without a steeplechase course, will have eight flat races each day.

Edward J. Brennan, a fixture on the Maryland half-milers, will be the racing secretary with John Turner, jr., as clerk of the scales. George Brown, representing the Maryland Racing Commission, William Harron and T. C. Shea are the stewards.

Ben Jones Keeps Busy Without Whirlaway

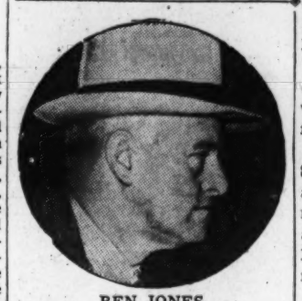
Trainer Lands First Two Places in Lassie Stakes; Whirlaway in Last Public Appearance

New York, July 4.—All those who have been shedding big, damp tears for plain Ben Jones, now that Whirlaway will receive all his mail in Kentucky, may step into the drying room immediately.

Plain Ben, the Missouri horseman, showed yesterday that the turf's greatest money winner wasn't the only charge in his string by sending out Twilight Tear and Miss Keeneland to finish one-two in the rich Lassie Stakes at Chicago.



BEN JONES

The pair went to ther post at even money, returning $4 for $2 with Twilight Tear running the 6 furlnogs in 1:13 1-5.

In tomorrow's feature Stars and Stripes Handicap program, Whirlaway will be brought to the winner's circle at Chicago for his final appearance before being sent to Kentucky and permanent retirement.

The Monday cards at Chicago, New York and Boston all will be featured by thoroughbreds flying the silks of Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree Stables.

At Chicago, Devil Diver is the topweighted starter in the Stars and Stripes and the favorite now that Whirlaway has given up the races; Shut Out, leading money winner of 1942, is topweighted in the $50,000 Massachusetts Handicap at Suffolk and The Rhymer carries the heaviest burden in Empire's $7500 Questionnaire Handicap.

Mrs. Franklin, Rippy Score With Gross 71

Claude Rippy, the Middle Atlantic amateur champion who recently shot a 62 over his home Washington Golf and Country Club course, paired with Mrs. Lafayette Franklin, sr., yesterday to win a Red Cross benefit mixed Scotch foursome tournament with a brilliant 71 gross score.

Mrs. Franklin and Rippy, playing selective drives and alternate shots over the par 70 layout, were out in 38, but clicked to perfection as a team on the return trip with a 2-under-par 33.

Mrs. Franklin and Rippy took low gross, leaving low net to the duo of Mrs. H. H. Goodman and L. E. Hutchinson with an 84-19, 66. Other winners in the field of 32 teams were Mrs. C. H. Merillat and James E. McCabe, 85-17, 68; Mrs. R. D. Young and Col. F. H. Goff, 84-14, 70; Mrs. T. S. O'Halloran and Dr. J. R. Hogan, 94-24, 70, and Mrs. Edward A. J. Fay and David B. Tuxhorn, 89-19, 70.

CHEVY CHASE

Reeve Lewis, jr., put together a pair of 35s for a one-over par 70 and deducted four handicap strokes for a winning net 66 in the Independence Day Cup play at Chevy Chase. Two tied for runner-up honors, George Y. Wheeler, 76-8, 68, and Dr. T. M. Foley, 84-16, 68.

Admiral Russell Willson spanked a four wood shot into the cup for an eagle deuce on the 397-yard par four second hole at Chevy Chase, in the company of Capt. I. C. Bogart, Capt. R. C. Ransdell and B. L. Colton.

KENWOOD

Mrs. Sam O'Neal and A. H. Youngquist carried off net honors in a Mixed Scotch Foursome at Kenwood with an 88-22, 66, and Mrs. H. W. Bashore and Billy Brownrigg low gross with a 78 as Jane Burke, the 15-year old golfer with the grooved golf swing and George Borsari ran into trouble on the second nine.

Miss Burke and Borsari were in line for both net and gross honors as they rounded the turn in 36, but a 44 coming back ran their total to 80, minus 5 handicap strokes for a net 75 for third low. Second went to Mrs. Nick Holander and Burt Joyce with 84—15, 69.

E. M. Horner, armed with a 16 handicap, played his last shot into the cup on the nineteenth hole to take the lead in the Flag Tournament, which will be concluded today. H. D. Barker, with a 17-stroke allotment, played his last shot to the lip of the cup on the first extra hole, and H. H. Clines, who shot a par round of 71, had four strokes extra and was just inches short of the nineteenth cup. Other leaders, all on the nineteenth green, were H. B. Williams, Ed Jamison and J. P. Bubb.

WOODMONT

Maj. Max Felix won the Class A finals of the Woodmont Handicap Match Play Championship by defeating Ed Wortman, 1 up. Felix spotted Wortman four handicap strokes.

Howard Nordlinger continued his low scoring rounds at Woodmont with a 74 to finish in a three-way tie for low net in the Class A sweepstakes, posting 74-5, 69, to Major Felix's 85-6, 69 and L. W. Jacobs' 79-10, 69.

Dr. Joe Friedman was the Class B leader with 85-16, 69, while Dr. Jerome Livingston had 89-19, 70, and Dr. A. Chase 88-16, 72.

INDIAN SPRING

Indian Spring's Red Cross tournament will be continued today. Lucky number in the Blind Bogey will win a $25 war bond while several other prizes will be awarded including low gross, blind holes, etc.; Indian Spring members will probably pass the half-way mark toward purchasing the $2500 mobile unit for the Red Cross this week.

Nat'l. Cathedral Wins

With Johnny Dodds collecting four hits in five tries including a homer and batting in seven runs, National Cathedral Post turned in a 20-4 victory over Fort Stevens Post in an American Legion Junior Baseball game yesterday on the West Ellipse.

Costello by 22 to 2

Costello Post routed Police and Fire Post by the rythmic count of 22 to 2 yesterday in an American Legion Junior League game on the Ellipse.

Nats Defeated In Double Bill, 4-2 and 10-3

Chartak led off with a single and Hayes walked. Clift singled to left to get the run home. Their third run was simply effected. Laabs simply hit his seventh homer of the year into the dead center stands above the 425-foot sign.

Their fourth run was a gift affair in the eighth when Gerry Priddy fumbled a double-play grounder off McQuinn's bat.

Case led off the game with a single against Sundra and stole second, but the Nats couldn't get him home. Sullivan tied the score in the third at 1-1 with his first big-league homer, a clout into the left-field stands. They didn't get another run until the eighth, when Moore narrowed the Browns' lead to 3-2 with his first home run in a Washington uniform.

Bob Johnson put the tying run on base with none out when he followed Moore's homer with a single to left, but Mickey Vernon rolled out, and Relief Pitcher George Caster whiffed Jake Early and Gerry Priddy, or maybe they did it themselves.

Yankees, Tigers Trade Shutouts

wild pitch by Tom Byrne produced the other two runs in the seventh.

The split the Tigers a 3-to-1 series edge and a 4-to-2 advantage this year.

Owner Burned, 10 Horses Die In Maine Fire

By the Associated Press

Gorham, Me., July 4.—Ten race horses perished and one of the owners was burned severely early today in a spectacular fire that leveled a 110-stall stable at the Gorham raceway.

Irving W. Pottle, general manager of the Gorham Fair Association program, which opened its season yesterday, estimated the loss at between $25,000 and $30,000. He said the cause of the blaze had not been determined.

Four horses broke loose during the fire and three of them were still at large today. Pottle listed these horses as dead:

R. U. Ready, Jane Bolo, Desirable and Margie Hanover, owned by Raymond Peterson and his brother, John of Cumberland Center, Me.

Mimsy Dale, valued at $2500, and Peter's Dan, owned by Philip Stewart of Mechanics Falls, Me.

Josedale L. Direct, owned by Cliffors F. Card of Portland, Me.

First Lady, owned by Walter Houghton of Lebanon, N. H.

Tara Hal, owned by Frank Pike of Bridgton, Me.

Catham Lad, owned by Lawrence Kidder of South Portland, Me.

Pottle said he planned to operate the track tomorrow, the race horse owners having agreed to pool their undamaged equipment until their losses could be replaced.

Ringside Table

With Mary Harris

MOVIE STAR INTO TROIKA. Mary Howard, the Washington girl who'll be costarred with Eddie Cantor in his forthcoming Twentieth Century-Fox picture, will open at the Troika on Thursday for a limited engagement. She's the sister of Meredith Howard, the lovely person who made such a success of the United Nations luncheons at 200 Sixteenth Street, has made great cinema progress since she appeared with Raymond Massey in "Abraham Lincoln." Mary's last Washington appearance was at a White House party.

It's a wonderful week for canaries. Mary La Marr, one of the sweetest, arrives at the King Cole Room tonight. Jean Lee, black-eyed and bonny, will open at the Dubonnet Room this evening.

THE BEN YOST SINGERS, young masters of close harmony, will head Lotus' new floor show, opening today. Other luminaries are Ethel Lynn, featured dancer in "Very Warm for May," and Bento Brothers and Rita in a circus type act that's recently had long runs in Chicago and Hollywood.

HENRY JEROME and his band, who've been singled out by Maria Kramer as her "musical find of 1943," will make their Washington debut in the Victory Room tomorrow night. And be it remembered La Maria is the lady Columbus who discovered Harry James, Blue Barron and Artie Shaw.

Leon Henderson brought back a Brazilian samba record, "Tico-Tico-No-Fuba," as a hectic souvenir of his recent trip to Rio. Bandleader Johnny Shaw is making an arrangement of the tune, expects to play it in the Mayflower Lounge this week.

EVERY MOMENT IS MUSICAL at Treasure Island, elegant bistro offering the most gayly diversified melody program in these parts. Rocco Terrone's band gives on feather-light dance music at the afternoon cocktail hour and later in the evening. At dinner time there's a highly superior concert group featuring the 'cello of Jack Allyn and the violin of Julian Altman. Dynamic piano interludes by Dot Hutcheson are on the agenda programs for both afternoon and evening.

HOBBY LOBBY. Peggy Leonard, Hi Hat's slim little songstress, should sing "Take Me Out to the Ball Game," because she knows every angle on baseball . . . Charlie Frankhauser, star trumpeter of Paul Kain's Glen Echo band, builds model airplanes and trains . . . Vibraphonist Johnny Graham of El Patio has a grand wartime hobby—he asks service men to his house for Sunday dinner every time he has enough groceries on hand . . . Guitarist Frank Victor of the Neptune Room enjoys hiking. He once walked from Maine to San Francisco with never a spot of hitchhiking.

The Casino Royal is holding over its entire "Summer Vanities"—a simly, sparkling show headed by Emcee Eddy Edwards, a youthful version of Chauncey Olcott.

VACATION AGENDAS. Mischa Bessoff, owner of the Balalaika, is looking forward to serene summer days in his new house on Davenport Street in Chevy Chase—a big stone place with some bonafide Siberian trees, Mischa vows . . . Julian Richards, owner of the Old New Orleans, is catching his vacations on weekends when he goes up to his Virginia farm and watches the vegetables grow . . . When Al Simmonds closes his Brown Derby late in July he'll go in for unrationed subsistence on the fish he expects to catch in the Chesapeake.

Russ Cullen, former singing saxist in the Pall Mall Room, sends a postal from the Pacific cryptically inscribed, "Having wonderful time! Wish I were there."

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Crackdown Coming On Official Car Use

Uncle Sam is preparing to crack down hard on officials who put Government-owned cars to personal use. He has taken an option on the huge Capitol Garage and he plans to have it leased outright within a few weeks. In the garage will be placed—under strict orders—all Government-owned cars, and before they can be taken out it must be shown that they'll be used for official errands. Cabinet officers' cars are exempted. They can be used for personal convenience. Federal car pools also will be organized when the cars are all under a single roof.

KLUTTZ

Before Judge Marvin Jones was made food czar, the President considered seriously giving the job to Vice President Henry Wallace. In fact, Wallace was talked with about the job. At the time insiders were of the opinion that Judge Jones would hold the job temporarily (it's significant that Jones hasn't resigned from the bench) and Wallace would be moved into it after Congress takes a holiday. Meantime, the Vice President was to advise Jones and help when he could. The truth is that Wallace already has had his hand in the food problem and when he would suggest a big program and someone would say: "you can't do that" the V. P.'s favorite retort was "Don't make a noise like a Knudsen." He was referring to the old OPM days when many people thought war production couldn't be built up to its present peak. Anyway the Wallace-for-food-czar move was before he declared open war on Jesse Jones. Now Wallace must defend his beloved BEW and whether he'll get the food job is problematical.

Farm Security is expected to get more understanding treatment from Marvin Jones. After all, it was Jones who put through the farm tenant bill in the House which is the big part of the FSA program . . . Paul Fisher, a Federal guard at the Dupont Circle Building, deserves a pat on the back. He found a highly confidential military paper in a phone booth, dropped by a Federal official, and returned it to the owner . . . Navy's hydrographic office is in urgent need of additional employes with nautical backgrounds . . . Panama Canal employes are keeping their colleagues in the armed forces on up-to-the-minute office happenings through an employe-financed newspaper . . . Hirst Sutton, National Housing official, will transfer to the Budget Bureau.

Census employes are having a time. The work of the 1940 Census was over officially on July 1 and many of the veteran employes who got temporary promotions to do the heavy work have now been put back in their old jobs, with a corresponding reduction in salary. All Census jobs are now under Civil Service and they must be classified by Civil Service. . . . Office of Education, ordered out of Mr. Ickes' New Interior Building, will be moved to one of the temporary buildings near the old Naval Hospital. . . . Maritime Commission still hasn't made up its mind to move to Tempos Y and W near the new Armory. PBA has assigned the buildings to Maritime. . . . A new standard personnel form has been adopted by the Civil Service Commission and it must be used in all transfer cases. The new form will save time.

Some 10,000 District of Columbia employes have missed a complete payday. And the incredible part of it all is the fact that the do-nothing and self-contented District Commissioners are squarely to blame. The three placid and easy-going Commissioners refused to go to a little trouble to get funds to pay their employes in full through June 30. And now they blame Congress for the delay. It's a poor alibi and the facts don't support them. Like every Federal agency whose funds were tied up on Capitol Hill, the District Commissioners were told by Congress to go to the Budget Bureau and get money from the President's fund to pay their employes through June 30.

It was obvious to everyone that the deficiency bill was going to be delayed and some 30 Federal agencies accepted the invitation and requested advances from the President's fund. They got them and their employes have been prevented from suffering inconvenience. But think of this, the District Commissioners didn't even ask Budget Bureau for an advance. And I can positively state that the District employes would have been paid through June 30 if a request had been made. The fund had plenty of money in it but it was "frozen" on July 1 due to the delay of Congress in recreating it and now no advances can be made. The do-nothing policy of the Commissioners is inexcusable.

WPB Czar Don Nelson has proudly sent his employes a copy of a letter received from a small businessman who praised the service he got from WPB employes. Stories about the red tape and confusion here had about scared the businessman from coming here. Nelson went on to tell his employes about how WPB got the crankshaft repaired in a Georgia farmer's tractor to enable the farmer to harvest his crops. He thanked the employes for the service they were rendering and called on them to continue it.

Pleasure driving bans were "fairly well observed" over the holiday weekend, according to incomplete reports of the District OPA, which for the first time detailed a battery of inspectors empowered to issue on-the-spot summonses to violators.

Meanwhile, police reported that five persons had been injured, one seriously, in traffic accidents yesterday.

Although definite figures were not available last night, an OPA official stated that about 40 drivers who had parked near local country clubs yesterday were summoned, while few cruisers were noted in Washington parks. Seventh Precinct police reported only two alleged violations.

OPA inspectors were stationed primarily in outlying sections of the District. It was stated that the new short-cut of interviewing and citing drivers rather than merely jotting down their license numbers was well received by majority of drivers approached.

Seriously hurt yesterday was Thomas G. Barrington, Negro, 31, of 2811 Sherman Avenue Northwest, an employe of the District Water Department, police said. He was crushed between a street flushing tank truck and an automobile in the 2600 block Nichols Avenue Southeast.

Taken to Providence Hospital, he was treated for internal injuries and two broken legs. Driver of the automobile, police said was Paul T. Steel, 23, a sailor attached to the Naval Reserve Base at Anacostia. He was charged with reckless driving, no permit, and leaving after colliding. He was turned over to Navy authorities to await the outcome of Barrington's hurts.

Harold Henneffer, 24, also a sailor, and stationed at the training station at Bainbridge, Md., suffered a compound fractured right arm when a taxicab he was riding in struck another car at Connecticut Avenue and Albemarle Street Northwest. He was treated at Emergency Hospital.

Seven-year-old Delores Hill of 1231 Eleven-and-a-Half Street Southeast was knocked down by a cab at Eleventh and M Streets Southeast, and received cuts and bruises, police reported. She was given first aid at Providence Hospital.

Two streetcar passengers were hurt about noon in an automobile-trolley crash in the 3400 block of Benning Road Northeast.

City News In Brief

Picked representatives of the League of Women Voters in the Eastern area will meet in Washington July 8 for a two-day leader-training session preceding a Nation-wide summer round-up to mobilize league members in an anti-isolationist campaign.

Leaders trained will visit State Leagues of Women Voters. A similar training session is being held in St. Louis.

Marguerite M. Wells, president of the national league, is conducting both schools. Among those attending the Washington session will be Mrs. Harris T. Baldwin, first vice president, and Mrs. Richard Field, second vice president.

Stores Closed Today

Most retail and wholesale stores and many other business establishments, such as coal and fuel yards, will be closed all day today in observance of Independence Day, it has been announced by Edward D. Shaw, secretary of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association.

Group to Give Ambulance As Memorial

An ambulance and X-ray fuel unit generator will be presented the Army Medical Department Wednesday by employes of the Board of Economic Warfare in memory of Second Lieut. George Kidd Perkins, of the Marine Corps, killed recently in a plance crash during a test flight at Jacksonville, Fla.

Lieutenant Perkins was son of Milo Perkins, executive director of the Board of Economic Warfare. He formerly lived in Texas.

Maj. Douglas N. Zirkle of the Surgeon General's Office, will accept the donation on behalf of the medical department.

200 Attend Dance

"I've never had so much fun in all my life!" This remark by a young Marine Corps officer about sums up the consensus of officers of armed forces who attended the Fourth of July party and dance given by the Angels committee of the American Air Force Association at Hamilton Hotel yesterday. Present were about 200 officers of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps and members of the Angels committee.

Pekingese Reaches Age Of 18 Years

There is a Pekingese in Washington the length of whose life baffles experts.

The Peke is Nan Ping of Oakley, who will be 18 years old on October 18. Her owner, Mrs. Wayne H. Miller of 5919 Thirteenth Street Northwest, doesn't really know why Nan Ping has lived these many years, when ordinarily Pekes succumb after 10 or 12 at the most.

"But maybe it's because we have treated her with great care," said Mrs. Miller, "and she's been pretty healthy all along."

Nan Ping was born in Kansas City, Mo. Her father, Po-Chu, won several cups in the American Royal Dog Show in San Francisco. Mrs. Miller got her when she was four weeks old. At the age of four Nan Ping had a go at stock theater. Mrs. Miller was playing in "The Cradle Snatchers" in Wichita, Kans., and Nan Ping was chosen for one of the Peke parts.

Her diet is mainly dog biscuits and milk, with occasional vegetables. She spends most of her day in sleep, and lately has been recuperating from general nervousness brought on by the heat.

7 D. C. Area Men On Pacific Fronts Commissioned

Seven men from the Washington area have been commissioned as second lieutenants from an officers' candidate school "somewhere in Australia," it was reported last night by the Associated Press.

They were part of a contingent of 400 Americans brought up from the ranks. Many had seen action in New Guinea.

From the District, Raymond R. Werner, 1604 Q Street Northwest, of the engineers; James L. Hicks, 1317 Q Street Northwest, quartermaster corps, and Elbert R. Bishop, transportation corps, were commissioned.

John L. Chappell of Norfolk, Va., and Benjamin B. Newton, Arnold N. Fleagle and James C. Barrett, of Bethesda, Hagerstown and Baltimore, Md., respectively, also were commissioned.

Addressed at exercises held outdoors under the trees, Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger commanded the new officers not to "underestimate the Japanese soldier," and said had Japanese been in Tunisia there would have been no mass surrender of thousands of men still able to fight.

Freedom Calls For Sacrifice, Speaker Says

Soterios Nicholson, prominent local lawyer, yesterday reminded his Greek countrymen that while "freedom is great, it takes great sacrifice to attain it."

In one of the many local Fourth of July addresses and sermons stressing the Four Freedoms, Nicholson told the congregation of the Greek Orthodox Church of SS. Constantine and Helen, Sixth and C Streets Southwest:

"The world is still fighting for liberty. The principles of freedom, liberty and justice made America either the global war, which may be distinguished from the World War fought 25 years ago in France.

"Neither then nor now the United States had any other interest in fighting except for those principles just mentioned. Every one who comes to these shores from the time this country was discovered until now feels that he is in a free country."

"It feels as if he breathes better, thinks better, maintains a friendly attitude toward his neighbors, irrespective of nationality, religion or race. He feels that those 'unalienable rights' inscribed in the Declaration of Independence by Thomas Jefferson are his by right and by inheritance even though he just arrived and knows nothing about those words."

Achilles Katonis also addressed the service, following a mass and doxology celebrated by the Rev. Thomas Daniels, pastor.

Freedom "Spiritual Ideal"

Dr. Albert J. McCartney, in his Independence Day sermon at Covenant-First Presbyterian Church, said that "freedom is fundamentally a spiritual ideal and not political."

The inalienable rights of man are recognized by all great religions because these rights stem from God. Thomas Jefferson recognized this when he referred to the Creator who has endowed all mankind with certain rights. Belief in the existence of one God and the assumption that all men are His children is the original basis of human liberty and the ultimate assurance of freedom. Independence Day has not only a political, sentimental and secular significance, but beyond that it is historically, profoundly and fundamentally spiritual, no matter however far the rank and file of the people may have moved away from this Christian concept of religion."

Dr. Bell Speaks

More effective spiritual ministry to the throngs of Washington newcomers was urged yesterday by Dr. Harry L. Bell, pastor of Columbia Heights Christian Church, 1435 Park Road Northwest.

"If our Christianity is to be a spring, and not a stagnant pool," he declared, "we must see to it that we are constantly in the business of trying to bless the multitudes that throng the Nation's Capital during these war days.

"Some of us have nothing but stale blessings because we have been nibbling at the same old religious crust for years. It is not what we have, but what we do with it that counts."

Citizen Valor Recognized At Ceremony

July 4 Observance Marked by Awards As Churches Unveil Flags at Services

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Church Editor

Representatives of three faiths and two races stood on the Capitol steps yesterday to receive awards for home-front valor, as a citizenry sobered by the war observed Independence Day in a prayerful mood.

Kansas Senator Arthur Capper lauded the home-front contribution of citizens and formally presented "Victory Volunteer" pins and citations to the following:

Joseph D. Kaufman, of the Jewish faith; Mrs. Cordelia L. Mikules, Catholic; William L. Mileham, Protestant, and William L. A. Tancil, Catholic.

Kaufman was cited for his work in the Civilian War Service program, Mrs. Mikules for her civilian defense work as only woman deputy air raid warden in the District, Mileham for his duties as chief air raid warden of the District, and Tancil, a Negro, for his work as civilian defense commissioner of the Howard area. Tancil is an employe of the Treasury Department, procurement division.

Following Capper's address, Norman M. Littell, assistant attorney general, read the Victory Volunteers' pledge. Their work is sponsored by the "I Am an American Foundation," under whose auspices the Capitol steps program was held.

Dr. J. Lowrey Fendrich, pastor of Metropolitan Presbyterian Church, gave the invocation, and Dr. W. H. Jernagin, pastor of Mount Carmel Baptist Church, the benediction. Benjamin Neal of California, founder of "I Am an American Day," presided. Porter M. Lumpkins, executive officer, District OCD, also participated.

Meanwhile, in scores of churches throughout the Washington Metropolitan area, worshipers prayed for an Allied victory and a just and durable peace. Several congregations unveiled flags for members in uniform.

Among the 143 stars on the flag dedicated at Francis Asbury Methodist Church was one honoring Robin Gould, jr., son of the pastor, Dr. Robin Gould.

In the congregation of 850 persons witnessing the ceremony was Mrs. Ole Coljornsen, wife of the financial counsellor of the Norwegian Embassy, and who escaped from Nazi-occupied Norway.

Gratitude for the privileges of this country, as contrasted with present conditions in France, was voiced by the Rev. Andre Liotard, at the Washington French Congregation's service at St. John's Episcopal Church, Lafayette Square.

Mixed Pair Events Won By D. C. Teams

By Marian H. Barre
The Post's Bridge Editor

District players swept all before them in the mixed pair championship, next-to-last event in the Carvel Hall Bridge tournament that closed last night at Wardman Park Hotel, Mrs. J. Russell Belt and I. H. York taking top honors, with a score of 250 match points. The result came as a big surprise when the score was posted, for up to that time the conceded winners were Mrs. William Plum and Sergeant F. J. Dingle, who actually finished second, 8 points under Mrs. Belt and York.

Neither ranking duo was an accustomed partnership, the champions having played together only twice before, while Mrs. Plum and the sergeant had played just one trial game. On the other hand, Dr. and Mrs. A. J. Steinberg, the defending champions who finished third, have been winning for many years together. Their score was 238 match points.

Mrs. Dora Schwartz and A. I. Westrich were fourth, with 228½; fifth place going to Mrs. F. J. Espinoza and W. de St. Aubin, 225½. The gaps between scores were big for a championship game, where a win often hangs on a fraction. In the men's and women's events on the day before only one board separated the first from the sixth pair.

The open pair championship, last event in the tournament, was played through two rounds yesterday. Mrs. B. N. Golder and Charles Solomon, Philadelphia luminaries, were leading the field at the close of the qualifying session. Mrs. Breckinridge Long and Mme. G. N. Poulieff, Washington, were second, six points under the leaders. Mrs. Long is the wife of the Assistant Secretary of State. American-born Mme. Poulieff learned her bridge in Bulgaria, where her late husband was connected with that country's diplomatic staff. The ladies have had repeated tournament successes in the past two years.

Twenty pairs survived for the open finals after the field was reduced by elimination. The usual number of casualties occurred, several outstanding partnerships being relegated to the second flight.

Watergate Concert Contributes To Spirit of Independence Day

By Ray C. B. Brown

Leon Barzin conducts the National Symphony Orchestra in the tenth summer concert at the Potomac Watergate on Sunday night. Soloist: Eugene List. Program: Jubilee (Chadwick), Piano Concerto No. 2 in C minor (Rakhmaninov), Prayer 1943 (Schuman), Selections (Herbert), Strawberry Jam (McBride) The Stars and Stripes Forever (Sousa.)

Lowering clouds and threat of rain kept last night's audience at the Potomac Watergate down to about 5000 persons, and those who stayed away were justified in their caution. Before the first half of the concert was completed a shower began, and umbrellas mushroomed along the terrace, while the improvident sheltered their heads with programs. At which was reduced to a mere breathing spell, nearly half the audience melted away into the night. This departure was ill-advised, for the rain stopped and only a few intermittent spatters disturbed the faithful who remained to the end of the program.

BROWN

Since the concert on Independence Day was dedicated to the men and women of the United States Army, Leon Barzin considerately prepared a program of music by American composers, opening with "Jubilee" from George Whitefield Chadwick's "Symphonic Sketches." This bright and jolly piece is authentically native in its flavor and the tunes have the zest of folk style. Chadwick's orchestral works should be played more than they are, as their thorough workmanship is always illuminated by imagination and humor.

It would have been appropriate if the soloist, Staff Sergt. Eugene List, had elected to play an American work also, say one of Edward MacDowell concertos which ought to be in the repertoire of every American pianist. Instead he chose the C minor concerto by the late Sergei Rakhmaninov, who was an American citizen, and one can consider that a tribute to the memory of a great artist. His performance of the solo part was sturdy in attack, brilliant in technique and pleasantly toned in the lyrical passages. A deservedly popular young artist, he was naturally recalled for extra numbers which were Chopin's C sharp minor waltz and a transcription of Bach's chorale-prelude, "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring."

Barzin introduced here William Howard Schuman's "Prayer 1943," a sincere and effective work excellently scored. If the composer were not a modernist, one could take his discords in this supplication as voices of those who entreat the gods of hate and intolerance, but discord is a part of his style, and that particular device therefore lost some of its force. Still the music has power and emotional drive, and its honesty is unquestionable.

Another novelty was Robert McBride's "Strawberry Jam," which is half mockery of swing and half in earnest. The earnestness is paradoxically aimed at the amusing depiction of a national habit in popular music, so that one has difficulty in determining where the fun breaks off and the satire begins. Other items on the program were a melange of Victor Herbert's melodies both vivacious and sentimental, and Sousa's patriotic march, "The Stars and Stripes Forever."

Police Say Girl Tried Holdup With Toy Gun

A 16-year-old Negro girl who escaped from the District Training School at Laurel, Md., a month ago, was captured shortly before noon yesterday after she allegedly attempted a holdup with a toy pistol.

Mrs. Anna Rosenberg, proprietor of a notions store at 2137 Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest, identified the girl and said she entered her store about 11:30 a. m., brandishing the toy gun. The girl demanded money from a cash register, Mrs. Rosenberg told police, but fled when a customer walked in.

Two policemen, Pvts. P. N. Wagoner and R. P. Maughan, Third Precinct, arrested the girl at Twentieth and I Streets Northwest, on a description furnished by the woman. The officers took from her a black toy automatic-type pistol.

In the meantime, two charges of robbery, one attempted robbery and a charge of grand larceny were placed against Ella Mae Redman, 19, Negro of 826 Fifth Street Northeast, a Navy Department messenger.

She was accused in connection with a series of robberies of High Ice Cream stores during the past nine months. Detectives said the young woman, mother of a six-year-old child, formerly worked for the ice cream company and robbed branch stores while armed with a knife.

The robberies with which she is charged are as follows: 918 H Street Northeast, November 2, $129.86, and 1741 S Street Northwest, June 29, $62. The attempt robbery occurred April 3, at 1016 North Capitol Street, and she is accused of stealing $82 from a store at 1771 U Street Northwest.

Sir Isaac Foot Addresses Two Congregations

Sir Isaac Foot, British churchman, said last night that the war is basically a spiritual struggle.

Speaking at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, he told more than 1000 men and women that the fundamental issue is whether "man is to become a beast of prey, or continue to be an immortal soul."

The speaker, member of Great Britain's privy council and Methodist lay leader is in America at the invitation of the Methodist Council of Bishops. He spoke in

War Capital Marks 4th in Calm Fashion

Messages Pour Into White House From Friendly Nations; No Official Program

By Bert Kemmerer
Post Staff Writer

More than 5000 war-alert citizens of the Nation's Capital ignored the threat of rain at dusk last night to hear Rear Admiral C. H. Woodward, U. S. N., tell those assembled in a patriotic July 4 setting at the Sylvan Theater that "our first obligation to the men on the fighting fronts is to do our jobs faithfully, constantly and conscientiously . . ."

Marking the resolute air of earnestness—which was apparent—on every hand a reflection of action in the South Pacific, over the Mediterranean and on all the far-flung battle lines of the globe—fireworks, pleasure driving and unusual noises were conspicuously absent from Washington where President Roosevelt received telegrams of congratulations from all sections of the United Nations on the 167th anniversary of independence.

Wherever Free Men Fight

Messages came from Russia, China, the Polish government in exile, King Peter of Yugoslavia, Belgian Foreign Minister Spak, King Farouk of Egypt, Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi of Iran, King Abdul Aziz of Saudi Arabia and a host of other leaders in friendly nations.

Wartime Washington had no official program but the downtown streets and restaurants were crowded with men in uniform and overhead intermittently bombers and pursuit planes from nearby bases roared—an undertone of total war.

The memorial to Thomas Jefferson, who more than any other man was the author of his country's Declaration of Independence, and who died on July 4, 1824, was the mecca of 10,000 soldiers, sailors, servicemen and women of every description.

Nearest Approach

Martial and patriotic music from the famed United States Marine Band sounded across the broad expanse of the Sylvan Theater in the nearest approach to official celebration the Capital of the Nation was to observe on the second Independence Day of World War II.

Here against a background of yew and spruce, poplar and cedar, 100 massed flags—the Nation's colors and flags of patriotic organizations—were clustered behind the speaker's platform. And in front of its a sea of attentive faces reached far back to the base of the towering Monument itself.

Procession of Flags

Taking part in procession of the flags which preceded the address by Admiral Woodward were soldiers, marines, sailors, WAACS, SPARS, the American Legion and Auxiliary, the Military Order of the World War, Catholic War Veterans, Sojourners, Heroes of '76, Women's Relief Corps, Red Cross, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Auxiliary, Ladies of the G. A. R., Daughters of Union Veterans, Spanish War Veterans, Colonial Dames, American War Mothers, Disabled American Veterans, Daughters of the Army, St. Andrew's Society, American Women's Volunteer Service, Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts.

In closing his address, Admiral Woodward earnestly charged the audience against overconfidence.

". . . This wave of optimism is by no means restricted to newspapers or radio," he said. "Everywhere you go, the trend of conversation about the war has changed—and dangerously so. No longer do people speculate as to how the war will end, but how soon!

"No one asks if we shall win, only WHEN we shall win. . . ."

Airmen Entertained

Earlier during the afternoon officers of the air force and officials of airline personnel were entertained by the Angels Committee of the American Air Force Association at the Hamilton and an annual picnic of the Third Division Society of the AEF was held at 3849 Wilson Boulevard.

Government departments today will operate as usual and Congress will be in session. However, practically all retail stores in Washington area will be closed, except drug stores.

This morning at 10:30 o'clock the Oldest Inhabitants of District of Columbia will meet in the Old Union Engine House, Nineteenth and H Streets Northwest.

P-T A Opposes Curfew Law For District

An evening curfew law against Washington's youth has been unanimously opposed by the board of managers of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers.

The proposed measure would prohibit persons below a certain age to be on the streets after a certain hour, on penalty of being sent or escorted home by police.

Curfew rulings have been recommended locally by citizen groups and individuals to control young girls who frequent beer parlors, pick up servicemen there and "conduct themselves unbecomingly with them after the parlors close."

Although such laws have been enacted in a number of Florida cities and also on the West Coast, local welfare leaders and youngsters themselves have vigorously attacked movements toward such a law here, saying it would hide but not correct the delinquency.

Last month a social hygiene society committee rejected support of such a law, because it would be hard to enforce in so large a community and would not reach the source of trouble. Curfew laws work best in small towns where a general knowledge of the age and character of youngsters plus an adequate policing force work together, it was said.

Fourth Celebrated in Africa With Eisenhower Presiding

By the Associated Press

Allied headquarters in North Africa, July 4.—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower presided at special Fourth of July ceremonies attended by French and British officers today.

A British Royal Navy warship fired a 48-gun salute at noon. Exercises commemorating the day were held wherever Americans were stationed in North Africa.

High Army, Navy and Air Force officers gathered under the palms at Allied forces headquarters for the brief ceremony. A red-fezzed Spahi band played "The Stars and Stripes Forever" and a United States band followed with "Over There."

Eisenhower said:

"The Declaration of Independence was made good 167 years ago after a long and bitter war. The three nations involved are now represented here. Unhappily they were not on the same side in that war, but today we are marching side by side to defeat an enemy which is trying to destroy everything our Declaration of Independence stands for."

Royalty Sailors' Hosts

London, July 4 (INS).—On the 167th anniversary of the day a group of freedom-loving Americans caused the King of England to put a price on their heads for signing the Declaration of Independence, the King and Queen observed the Fourth of July by entertaining a large party of American sailors.

Moscow Celebration

Moscow, July 4 (AP).—Americans in Moscow observed the Fourth of July at on open house given by their ambassador, Admiral William H. Standley, after which a 100-piece symphony orchestra played Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" in Philharmonic Hall.

Among the Americans present were Capt. Edward V. Rickenbacker, here on a War Department mission.

The Most Rev. Johannes Gunnarsson will be consecrated Bishop of Iceland in ceremonies Wednesday at 9:30 a. m. at St. Patrick's Catholic Church, Tenth and G Streets Northwest.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Depression Poverty Wrecked Man's First Marriage; Now, His Second Marriage Is Threatened by Elderly Father's Surly Dependency; How Solve Problem?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Can you please make some suggestions toward the solution of this problem: My father, 75, came to live with me three months ago. He is in good health, but neurotic, highly excitable, difficult to reason with, and possessed of a tendency to start shouting. This lifetime tendency was accentuated by heavy business losses in 1921, from which he has never recovered. Since 1928, he lived in Bermuda,—dependent on the earnings of my two unmarried sisters, plus support from me.

My father's dependent status contributed to the failure of my first marriage; and now threatens the second. Following severe financial struggles during the depression, I lost my only child three years ago, after which my first wife and I were divorced; and I remarried a year ago. Due to difficult conditions in Bermuda, father came to live with us. One sister remained in Bermuda and the other is now in Washington, settled in a job at a small salary, living in one room. Incidentally, she also is somewhat neurotic and has needed continual financial support for lengthy periods; and I carry life insurance for both my sisters. Neither one is able to contribute to father's support at this time.

While my wife has been ready to do her best in the circumstances, my father's personality has made things rather unbearable. He just "sits," grimly,—and has no resources within himself. His mind is active, and that's all. We had hoped he would putter quietly around the garden; but his only interests are the news, food and sleep. He talks wildly about "going" somewhere;—but where? My sister in Washington certainly can't shelter him; and he resents the idea of a "home." He has a little money, less than $1,000, which would soon be consumed if he boarded out; and the problem would remain. He is English; and an exceptionally proud and stubborn specimen. I have done my best for the whole family, sometimes under very difficult circumstances; and have always tried to work out my own problems, but this one is getting too much for me. Please, Miss Haworth, what can be done? J. G. B.

Possible That Wife Holds Key to Riddle

DEAR J. G. B.: This is, indeed a difficult problem; but there is some possibility that it can be relieved,—if you can count on gallant full cooperation from a spunky, capable wife. You mention that your wife has been ready to do her best in the circumstancess, but that your father's personality has made things rather unbearable for her:—and you cite his habit of just sitting, grimly. This suggests that your wife is subjected to the melancholy business of constant household association with him,—to worsen the nervous strain which his dependency imposes.

Thus, I am wondering if she couldn't kill two birds with one stone, as it were, by obtaining salaried employment outside the home, —therewith getting immediate daytime relief from his dour society, and also paving the way to "boarding" him elsewhere. Since his "principal" is too small to make him self-sustaining, and you cannot at present afford to do more than share your home with him,—an arrangement that threatens to wreck your new marriage,—it seems to me from all angles advisable for your wife to meet the emergency in the manner suggested.

Create Home Situation Unsuitable for Boarder

If she takes a job, she automatically creates a home situation which may be handled in such a way as to establish most tactful justification for promoting other arrangements for your father,—along with the means to finance the move. As an office or industrial worker, she would have neither the time nor surplus energy to solicitously attend to his needs,—in the matter of laundry, preparing his meals, keeping his room in order, etc. He could not reasonably require such ministrations from her on an over-time basis; and on this philosophy, indirectly expressed, you could proceed with united front to blandly (and positively) steer him into a boarding home,—either here or in some less congested city of his choice.

Being a canny citizen, he probably will perceive and bitterly resent your wife's reason for taking a paid job:—but after all, she (or the pair of you, for that matter) have every right to handle this emergency with special reference to your own welfare, so long as you do the decent (which is not necessarily the sentimental) thing about him. Doing the decent thing, in your limited circumstances, means guaranteeing him the necessities of life,— and this you are entitled to do on a business-like basis. It is not obligatory upon you to tolerate his thorny idiosyncrasies at close range, as a household fixture.

Could Readily Justify Decision to Work

In view of the urgent need on all sides for Federal and industrial wartime workers, your wife should have no difficulty finding a well-paid position. And in acquainting your father with her decision to "work," she might in all kindness adopt the position that she is taking that course (a) to "help with the war effort;" and (b) because this seems an excellent time to help you get on your feet financially and put aside savings against a day when you may have children to rear and educate. Whether or not he accepts that explanation, she can at least stick to it, without fear of successful contradiction;—and thus fortify your "sound sense" arguments why it behooves him to take lodgings elsewhere. M.H.

On the Home Front

The son-and-heir of your family couldn't be better equipped for eating his porridge than when enveloped in a cover-all pocketed bib such as this robust boy. You can make this garment from the corner of a discarded bed sheet that's about ten inches square. The partitioned double pocket at the bottom serves as a perfect catch-all for stray bits of foods and crumbs, also a fine resting place for baby's busy hands. The gingham-pleated edging can be made from some scraps from the household thrift bag

"Am I proud of my new pinafore?" asks this little tot. Any little girl will feel the same way in an eye-catching pinafore made thriftily from an old bed sheet. The rickrack trimming is easy to attach. If you don't know the details of such sewing ask the help of the local sewing center. The cotton blouse which is such a gay contrast to the white pinafore can be made from a remnant from a discarded garment. If you want to create a frock for your young fry you can do so for a few cents

If you are one who dines alone on a tray here's a suggestion for making a tray cloth and napkin from a reclaimed pillow case. The monogram touch and pleated edging are not difficult to apply. If you don't know how to do these decorator tricks ask at your local sewing center. The applique work and pleating can be achieved with the zigzagger and pleater attachments

No matter how carefully sheets are laundered they will come to a parting of the ways. To be sure, thrifty homemakers have been using the iron-on tape to mend the tears, but even then they can't stay usable always.

Sheets usually get the hardest wear through the center section, so that even after the sheet has outlived its original use the "hangover" side sections can be counted on for sturdy wear. As a rule, strips about 12 by 12 inches can be salvaged successfully for use in children's clothing, frilly gilets, dickeys or household items such as luncheon sets. There's no need to be restricted to traditional white either. Both muslin and percale sheets take amiably to quick tinting treatment.

If there's a baby in your family you'll find the softness of old sheets has many practical advantages for bibs, sacques and back-tied wrappers. Summer sunbonnets for your young fry are easily made by cutting a semi-circular brim and attaching it to an open-top crown consisting of two cross straps. Ruffled edging and rickrack trimming are some of the attractive finishes that are easy to master with sewing machine attachments.

Luncheon mats and napkins, tray covers and kitchen curtains are all household items which can be fashioned from not-so-good sheets. The accompanying photographs will give you ideas from which you can create your own creations.

Teacher's Aren't So Dumb

The mother of a left-handed child expressed the opinion that even if she allowed him to use his left hand at home, no teacher would let him do so.

The challenge was immediately answered by a teacher of many years experience and I am printnig her letter for the benefit of Mrs. R. F. and others who may have like problems and opinions.

Miss L. A. P. writes, "I would like to tell Mrs. R. F. how teachers are getting to feel about left-handed children. True, it is, some years back when I began to teach, we felt every child must be made right-handed. After one dismal failure (I was teaching second grade) I vowed I would never attempt to change the handedness of a left-handed child and I have never broken that vow in 40 years.

That one little boy left my room writing poorer than when he entered, because he used his right hand only when I stood over him and changed to the left the moment my back was turned.

"There may be teachers who hold to these old ideas but the best educators and doctors agree it is not only unwise but often productive of nervous disorders.

"In your case, Mrs. R. F., it would be wonderful to allow your child to develop skill with both hands, since he shows that tendency. I had a girl in my room who used both hands indiscriminately, and how she could write! I have left-handed children in my room every year and sometimes the parents come hesitatingly to ask me if I think it is a handicap. I assure them these children sometimes are the best writers.

"If the teacher is inexperienced and inflexible, appeal to the superintendent of the school or get your own physician to help you. I believe you will find they will listen and your boy will get to use his natural hand."

To assume a teacher would browbeat a child into using the hand not natural to him, is to accuse teachers of being far behind the times, which we know they are not.

The general attitude toward left-handedness has changed appreciably. We know about 10 per cent of the population is left-handed and this is not a whim or a remediable quirk—it is the way they are physically constructed so messages from the brain to the agile hand comes to such individuals from the right instead of the left side of the brain.

Martha Ellyn's Platter Chatter

Corn-on-the-cob is a favorite food of most persons sound of tooth. If you like to polish off corn cobs, then select soft, golden ears and cook with tenderness. Although generally advised to use a coffee maker for coffee-brewing only, yet you will find a glass, heat-resistant coffee pot will come to no harm if you cook corn in it. Drain water from corn and serve it at the table from coffee maker, thus insuring the corn is piping hot

It has been said that we prove our lusty relations to the soil by the way we tackle corn on the cob. Most anyone who likes this vegetable believes in the adage, "Out of the garden, over the fire." The minute that corn is picked chemical changes begin to take place which harden it and rob it of its sugar. So when you go to market, try and get the freshest corn possible.

Martha Ellyn

Fried corn is one way of preparing this vegetable when it is not just too garden fresh. A glass frying pan is best for making this dish, since the browning may be watched through glass to avoid burning.

Corn fritters are an appealing food, because of their good flavor and crispness. Here's a menu which includes them:

Dinner Menu

Chilled Carrot Juice
Corn Fritters
Pan-Broiled Ham
Tomatoes, Cucumbers, Onions in Vinegar Dressing
Enriched Bread Butter
Sliced Peaches Cream
Oatmeal Cookies Tea

CORN FRITTERS

Mix and sift 1½ cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon black pepper. Mix 2 cups corn with ¼ cup milk, 1 tablespoon melted shortening and 2 well-beaten eggs and combine the two mixtures. Beat well and drop by tablespoonfuls in deep hot fat, 370 degrees. When golden brown, drain on soft paper. Garnish with finely chopped parsley.

Your Figure, Madame!

By Ida Jean Kain

The woman who is really having trouble in stretching the red stamps is the expectant mother. She must be doubly sure that her protein intake measures up to the nutrition yardstick.

In New York City, of all places, the mothers-to-be are raising soybeans to eke out the protein content of their menus. They get tips on growing the beans along with other valuable information from Miss Hazel Corbin of the Maternity Center.

The sprouts and beans are excellent sources not only of protein but of the important B vitamins, so they make a considerable contribution to the diet. If you are in this category, you might well try your luck at raising the sprouts. Miss Corbin, who was brought up on a farm, suggests two methods. One requires a strip of earth at least the size of a window box, but the other is quite new and needs only a clean flower-pot.

For the window box crop, see to it that you have a good soil mixture. Your nursery man or florist can help you with that. Then, plant the beans as deep as their diameter and give them a little water occasionally. In six to seven days you will be ready to harvest the makings of a highly nutritious salad. Pinch off the sprouts at the bean, wash, and place in the icebox to crisp. Use the sprouts as the main ingredient in various vegetable salad combination.

If you don't like dirt farming, use the method recommended by Dr. C. M. McCay of Cornell University. Wash the soybeans until they are as clean as though you were going to cook them. Put to soak overnight in lukewarm water—1 pound of beans to 3 pints of water, with a pinch of chlorinated lime added, is the right ration. Next morning, pour off this water and place beans in the flowerpot (any damaged kitchen crockery with a drainage hole in the bottom will do), with a piece of wire netting or cloth across the hole, and a damp cloth on top of the pot. Finally, use damp cardboard to cover the pot and shut out the light. Have the pot large enough to allow the beans to double in size in sprouting. Water them several times a day and have the pot slightly raised so that the water can drain off. After three days, sprinkle the beans with cold water. By the third to fifth day, you can cook the sprouts and all in any number of dishes —chop suey, if you like Chinese food.

Of course, weight is important during pregnancy. Starting with weight at normal, the normal gain, according to advice from the Maternity Center, is from 12 to 20 pounds—not more.

"Angels of Mercy" Get Jungle Training

Maj. Nola Forrest Tells of Desert Maneuvers; Maj. Edna L. Mahar Proudly Reports Results

By Patricia Grady

From living in "burris" in the South Pacific to crawling through barbed wire under machine-gun fire in the California desert, the heroic activities of the Army's "angels of mercy" were exposed to the press yesterday by two of their on-the-field leaders.

Just back from 14 months of duty in the South Pacific, reserved, quiet-spoken Maj. Edna L. Mahar has a lot of first-hand knowledge of our hospital battlefronts in New Guinea and Australia, takes pride in the way her uniformed nurses have performed their duties under "rugged" jungle conditions. Brisk-mannered, capable Maj. Nola Forrest has another phase of the Army nurses' lives under her jurisdiction. In charge of nurses at the Desert Training Center with headquarters at Camp Young, Calif., Major Forrest supervises the desert maneuvers that will inure the Army nurses to the kind of life they can expect when they are shipped overseas.

For over a year blue-eyed, gray-haired Major Mahar has been touring the South Pacific area—first for ten months as base section nurse in Australia, then for close to three months as director of nurses of the South Pacific area with headquarters at Numa, New Caledonia. She doesn't know how many miles she has covered by plane, ship and staff car during this time, but allows as how it has been "an awful lot."

She finds the nurses' morale "very good," the medical supplies in Australia "adequate" and in the New Caledonia area "primitive." By and large, there are enough nurses out there now to do the job, but the "job" was slack or hectic, depending on the intensity of the fighting on Guadalcanal.

Compares World Wars I and II

Having worn the uniform of an Army nurse for over 25 years, Major Mahar is in a position to draw comparisons between World War I and II. In the first war the field hospitals were almost at the front. In this war the nurses are safer, for the hospitals are well removed from the battle. Of course, she admits, the first war was fought on civilized territory and the dangers from bombing and strafing didn't have to be considered. But the girls are adjusting themselves very well.

The native huts, burris, in which many of them live, have been "dressed up" by their occupants as much as possible. In some isolated spots aviators seeking to ingratiate themselves with the attractive ladies in uniform manage to smuggle in a few comforts. At one camp, according to Major Mahar, the pilots flew in some chairs for the girls "Each girl had a chair," she comments, as if it were an unheard-of luxury.

Some things are hard to get, she admits. You can get kleenex at the post exchanges and they are going to put in a supply of cosmetics for the nurses. Insignia is really difficult to come by. "When I got my promotion," she says, "I wore my captain's bars for a long time. Then two officers were promoted to lieutenant colonel and each of them gave me one of his old major's leafs."

Back to Bartering For Beads This Time

Bartering is the main standard of exchange with the natives and the major admits to having traded a shirt for a piece of tapa cloth. Old clothes went very well with the inhabitants and were exchanged by the soldiers for grass skirts, strings of beads and the like. Didn't it used to be the other around?

Absolutely Sold on Desert Training

"I think the boys understand what the war is all about," Major Mahar replied, after carefully considering the question. "They don't do much talking about the postwar world. They want to get home and lead a simple, quiet life."

After a stay in Washington, Major Mahar will remain in this country in charge of nurses at an Army hospital.

Major Forrest is "absolutely sold on this desert training." Here in the Capital for a few days, she explains the merits of putting the nurses through training under battle conditions. "It serves three purposes," points out this youthful, blond officer. "We can train, test, and eliminate. The nurses are in a unit, the same unit that will go overseas. They learn to know each other, to work together, to get used to working with makeshifts. If any of them are going to be temperamentally unsuited to that kind of life, it will show up before the five months' course is over and they can be eliminated from the unit."

Operating like a regular overseas theater, the outfit goes on maneuvers, all-night bivouacs, learns to march long hours under prostrating heat conditions. Major Forrest tells of watching an operation when the operating room thermometer registered 127 degrees of desert heat. They learn to adjust, live in tents or in barracks, wriggle forward under machine-gun fire.

With pardonable pride, Major Forrest declares, "A nurse holds the speed record for the barbed wire and machine-gun course."

Mrs. Walter Amesbury, Jr., Has Ideas for Navy League

Former New Yorker Active in Many Charities Transfers Interests Here

By Marie McNair

If you would like to know a sure-fire recipe for putting over your favorite charity benefit, go to Mrs. Walter Amesbury, jr., for advice.

At one time this energetic young person was a member of 39 committees of various philanthropic organizations, sold advertising, directed and managed any number of big charity events. That was when she lived in New York. Since coming to Washington, where Lieutenant Amesbury is stationed, she feels that working with the Junior League, the Navy League, cooking and keeping house for her husband, leaves her with practically idle hands.

At Newport to spend the Fourth of July, Mrs. Amesbury is expected back in town tomorrow. She went up to New York early in the week for the weddings of three of her friends, one on Wednesday, another Thursday and the third on Friday. But the trip was not solely for pleasure. Mrs. Amesbury doesn't do things that way. While in New York she had a conference with some of the heads of the Navy League, in which she is intensely interested, with a view to starting some sort of a similar program in Washington that is being carried out in New York. Recently greatly expanded in scope, the Navy League there now operates a shopping service, a motor corps and a transportation system for servicemen.

Has English And Polish Blood

English blood and blood of the Polish nobility are in the veins of Cecile Armesbury, who was Cecile Dudley before her recent marriage, and who grew up an orphan from the age of 10. She has traveled a great deal in Europe, speaks several languages.

The famous Polish Ball, under the auspices of the Kosciusko Foundation, which is one of the brilliant events in New York each year, is a cause dear to her heart. For this she took upon herself the management of the program, sold advertising for it, managed every detail. The Childrens' Village, which operates at Scarsdale, N. Y., is another project for which she gives her services and was ticket chairman for the benefit this year.

A loyal friend herself, she has many friends who carry the torch for her. One of these is Mrs. Scott Seegers of New York, the former Miss Nancy Church, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Church.

Seegers Are Near Neighbors

The Seegers are in Washington also, probably for the duration, as Mr. Seegers is managing editor of the Inter-American Magazine. The Amesburys and the Seegers are near neighbors, Lieutenant and Mrs. Amesbury having recently been fortunate to find an apartment on P Street not far from Decatur Place, where Mr. and Mrs. Seeger are living. The two do their marketing together, dine as a foursome frequently. Last week Mrs. Amesbury proudly invited the Seegers for dinner, having saved enough points to have a leg of lamb. A day or so later they all met at a cocktail party and Nancy Seegers happened to mention that her pair of handsome Irish setters were feeling the meat restrictions.

And—greater love hath no man than this. Lieutenant Amesbury went home, took the lamb bone and what was left on it from the refrigerator, wrapped it up and carried it to the Seegers' two pets, whose appetites are too well developed to withstand rationing.

Flyers From Chile Here For Visit

In town for a few days following completion of a flying course at Corpus Christi, Tex., are a number of young Chilean officers, who are enjoying a holiday tour of the Eastern seaboard as guests of the United States Government. The group is awaiting orders for its next station to continue instruction.

First Lieut. Luis Botteselle is in charge of the delegation, and in the party are Capt. Roberto Taulis, Capt. Rene Yaniszewski, Capt. Emilio Schonherr, Capt. Carlos Toro, Capt. Juan Solminihac, Capt. Cesar Ruiz, Capt. Arturo Benson, Capt. Ernesto Miramba, Capt. Ricardo Solari, Second Lieut. J. Acevedo, Second Lieut. Onar Gamboa, Second Lieut. Diego Aracena, Second Lieut. Roberto Reeves, Second Lieut. C. Maurin, Second Lieut. E. Finlay, Second Lieut. N. Benvente, Second Lieut. R. Araos and Second Lieut. H. Acesta.

Among the festivities planned for the visitors during their stay in Washington was the cocktail party at the Mayflower on Saturday given by Wing Comdr. Teodoro Ruiz-Diez, Air Attache of The Chilean Embassy.

The Chilean Ambassador and Senora de Michels and their daughter, Miss Cristina Michels were among the guests and others included naval and military attaches of various embassies and legations and their wives; United States Army and Navy officers and their wives and several members of the Inter-American Defense Board of which Comdr. Ruiz-Diez is a member.

Mrs. J. A. Dougherty Here for Brief Stay At Sulgrave Club

Because the cedar trees at Little Cedars, her country home at Westport, Conn., have grown up since she saw them last in the fall, Mrs. John Allan Dougherty has changed the name of her place to Few Acres.

Mrs. Dougherty will arrive in Washington today and will be at the Sulgrave Club. The only thing that would bring her back to town is the meeting of the United States Flag Association of which she is acting president general.

At the close of the conference later in the week Mrs. Dougherty will return to Westport. One of the early Victory Garden growers, Mrs. Dougherty now has what might be termed a minature farm at Few Acres.

Edna Mae Woolf Wed to Elmer Batzell

Mrs. Samuel Register Woolf announces the marriage of her daughter, Edna Mae, to Elmer Elsworth Batzell, son of Mrs. Paul E. Batzell and the late Mr. Batzell of Washington. The ceremony took place Wednesday, June 30, in the Francis Asbury Methodist Church with the Rev. Robin Gould officiating.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, J. Millard Hall, was attended by her aunt, Mrs. Garland Harris of Baltimore, who was matron of honor. Miss Cammie Meyers was flower girl. Best man for Mr. Batzell was Norman L. Meyers of Washington.

Mrs. Batzell is a graduate of Hollins College. The bridegroom was graduated from the University of Rochester and took his law degree at Yale School of Law. He is now with the Department of the Interior.

The couple will make their home in Washington.

Purely Personal

Mrs. Henry Wallace, wife of the Vice President, has gone to her home in Iowa to spend several weeks.

Former Chief Justice and Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes who have been at the Plaza in New York, have gone to Skytop, Pa., in the Poconos, for a summer holiday.

The Vice President of the Philippine Commonwealth, Sergio Osmena, has leased the apartment of Mrs. F. Ward Denys at Hotel 2400. Mrs. Denys' daughter, Miss Annemarie Menz, is now working in a nearby aviation factory.

The Ambassador of Yugoslavia, Constantin Fotitch, is at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York for a brief stay. At the same hotel were Michael Robert Wright, First Secretary of the British Embassy, and Mrs. Wright, who have returned to Washington.

Miss Vera Bloom, daughter of Representative Sol Bloom, has rejoined her father at their home here after spending a month or more in New York.

Senora de Pineiros, wife of the Assistant Military Attache of the Ecuadorean Embassy, has returned from a visit to Quito, bringing with her their son, Mario. Captain and Senora de Pineiros have taken an apartment at 1661 Crescent Place.

Mrs. Edward Beale McLean will entertain at dinner at Friendship on July 14 in honor of Mrs. James A. Farley, wife of the former Postmaster General.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Aspinwall have left for a brief vacation in the South. Mrs. Aspinwall's daughter, Mrs. David Scull, has gone to Camp Macon Ga., with her young baby to join her husband who is stationed there.

Mrs. John Kittelle, wife of Lieutenant Kittelle, who has been spending several weeks at Ponte Vedra, has returned to Washington and is with her mother, Mrs. William Wayne Wirgman.

Lieut. Col. W. B. Wedd, Military Attache of the Canadian Legation, is at Essex House in New York for a few days' stay.

Mrs. J. Van Ness Ingram entertained at luncheon on Saturday at the Army-Navy Country Club in honor of Mrs. Churchill Williams, who is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clarendon Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Vogel, jr., who live the year round on their farm at Warrenton, Va., spent the weekend in Washington visiting Mr. Vogel's mother, Mrs. Martin Vogel.

Mr. and Mrs. Austin Milon are in New York for a few days and are at the Essex House.

Mrs. Wellington Wells, jr., has gone to New York to spend several days, and is stopping at the Weylin.

Mrs. Nathaniel Knowles, jr., of Haverford, Pa., has come to Washington to spend a month with her husband, Lieutenant Colonel Knowles, who is on duty here.

Mrs. William F. Halsey has gone to Spring Lake, N. J., where she will spend the summer at the Essex and Sussex Hotel.

In Wilmington

Lieut. Alan E. Surosky, United States Army Air Corps, and Mrs. Surosky, have gone to Wilmington, Del., to make their home following their recent marriage.

Anne Fromme Engaged to Wed Col. K. F. Hertford

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Denton Fromme of Limewood, Falls Church, Va., announce the engagement of their daughter, Anne Marshall, to Col. Kenner Fisher Hertford, U. S. A., son of Mrs. Joseph W. Hertford of Washington and the late Mr. Hertford of Galveston, Tex.

The bride-elect is a graduate of West Virginia University and is now associated with the Ethnogeographic Board, Smithsonian Institution. Colonel Hertford is a graduate of the United States Military Academy at West Point and the College of Engineering at Cornell University. He has served on the Corps of Engineers in various assignments in the United States, Panama, Nicaragua, and in European countries. He is at present on duty in the operations divisions of the War Department, General Staff, Washington. The wedding will take place in late July.

Mr. and Mrs. Fromme's other daughter, Miss Barbara Fromme, was married in June to Lieut. Robert Stuart Hendeson, U. S. A.

Miss Coffman, Is Married In Church Rite

Miss Maidee Elizabeth Coffman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willoughby Merion Coffman, became the bride yesterday of Andrew S. Deming, jr., the ceremony taking place in the Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Church, with the Rev. Edward Gardner Latch officiating. Miss Florence Reynolds played the wedding music.

Mr. Coffman gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a gown of white marquisette made with bishop sleeves and a bodice of heavy lace. The full skirt swept into a train. A dutch cap of lace held her finger-tip length tulle veil. She carried a prayerbook covered with gardenias and a shower of ribbon streamers.

Mrs. Alfred H. Perrie was matron of honor and Mrs. Garland Hoffman the other attendant. They wore gowns made alike of white marquisette and carried bouquets of white roses and baby's breath.

Serving as best man was Lawrence J. Mattingly, and the ushers were Thomas Lusk, Harry R. Tansill and Wilson Thompson. Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. When Mr. Deming and his bride left on their wedding trip Mrs. Deming wore a navy blue sheer costume with white accessories. Both bride and bridegroom are graduates of the University of Maryland. Mrs. Deming was a member of Kappa Delta Sorority.

Gifford Pinchots Give Supper

Former Governor and Mrs. Gifford Pinchot entertained at a supper party last evening following the meeting of the United Nations Lecture Series, at which Sir William Beveridge, author of the "Beveridge plan" was the speaker at the Sylvan Theater.

Sir William and Lady Beveridge were among the guests and others were Senator and Mrs. Harold Burton, Representative and Mrs. Joseph C. Baldwin, Senator James E. Murray, Representative John Dingell, Representative and Mrs. Richard P. Gale, and Arthur C. Altmeyer.

In the company also were a group who have been active in the United Nations lecture series.

Mrs. Kemon Dies; Funeral Tomorrow

Mrs. Katherine E. Kemon, 85, wife of Frank C. Kemon, both lifelong residents of Washington, died yesterday morning at the Methodist Home.

She was the daughter of Philip Mackay, early developer of Washington, who built many churches and old pretentious homes in the area of the New Municipal Center.

Mrs. Kemon was active in church and Sunday school work of the Foundry Methodist and Mount Vernon Methodist Churches.

Mrs. Kemon taught Sunday School classes for young people. In addition, she taught afternoon Sunday School classes at Mount Vernon Church for foreigners, many of whom were studying in Washington. Her mail in later years, as a consequence, bore postmarks from all over the world, and hundreds of greetings poured in from far-flung points during the holiday season.

Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, chaplain of the Senate and pastor of Foundry Methodist Church, will officiate at services to be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. at the Methodist home. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

McKay, FCC Aide To Walker, Dies

Edward F. McKay, legal assistant to Paul Walker, Federal Communications Commissioner, died here yesterday of uremic poisoning after an illness of two weeks.

McKay was well known in newspaper and utility circles in Oklahoma where he formerly managed the Oklahoma Utilities Association. He had been assistant to Walker for five years.

Funeral services for McKay will be held in Oklahoma City Wednesday afternoon at the First Presbyterian Church. McKay is survived by his wife, Florence; a son, Edward F., jr., a captain in the Medical Corps at Brock General Hospital, Fort Sam Houston, Tex., and a brother, George McKay, Chicago.

Florida Canal Plan Shelved by Ickes, Letters Reveal

Representative Hendricks (Democrat) of Florida yesterday made public letters addressed to President Roosevelt and Petroleum Administrator Ickes in which he held the latter responsible for the Eastern petroleum shortage by having shelved plans to build a cross-Florida canal in 1935, when he was administrator of public works.

In his letter to the President, accompanied by a copy of the one to Ickes, Hendricks told Mr. Roosevelt that "your expenditure of over five million dollars on the beginning of its construction, together with your subsequent recommendation to Congress that it be completed for commercial and military needs, constitute a consistent record of your far-sighted policy in this matter of our national transport.

"Unhappily this policy was frustrated and defeated by Mr. Ickes," the letter added. . . . "Mr. Ickes' direct responsibility for this, coupled with his continued efforts to prevent relief by means of this project, and his general failure to arrest further deterioration of our petroleum situation, have raised the question as to the usefulness of his continued participation in the Government."

John A. Lawless Rites To Be Held Wednesday

John Aloysius Lawless, 55, former White House secret service agent, died yesterday at his home, 1451 Park Road Northwest, after an illness of five years.

A native Washingtonian, Lawless was graduated from Central High School and St. John's College, Annapolis, Md. He was employed for 15 years at the Interstate Commerce Commission before joining the White House secret service staff. He served with the secret service under Presidents Harding, Coolidge, and Hoover, and one year under President Roosevelt.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary Lawless, and a son, William John Lawless.

Requiem mass will be celebrated Wednesday morning at 8 at Sacred Heart Church. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — Jam Session — By Milton Caniff

PAT RYAN, CONNIE AND BIG STOOP, POSING AS SURVIVORS OF A TORPEDOED MERCHANT VESSEL, ATTEMPT TO GET NEAR AN ISLAND ON WHICH THEY THINK THE JAPS ARE BUILDING A LANDING STRIP...
CONNIE, BE READY TO CUT THE LINE TO OUR WATER PROOF GEAR BAG - IF THAT'S A JAP PATROL BOAT—AND HEAVILY ARMED!
YI, YI, MIST' LOOT-NINT PAT...
BEHOLD! A SMALL BOAT ADRIFT...
BEWARE A YANKEE TRICK—WE WILL WARN THE ISLAND BY WIRELESS IF THIS IS A SPYING CRAFT!
WHAT LOOMS ?

MARY WORTH'S FAMILY — By Dale Allen

IT ISN'T JUST KNOWING I HAVE ONLY EIGHT WEEKS TO LIVE THAT TORTURES ME, MRS. WORTH! ...IT'S REALIZING HOW LITTLE I'VE REALLY LIVED IN THE PAST!
THRILLS AREN'T ENOUGH.. PLEASURE ISN'T ENOUGH! I'VE ABOUT DECIDED THAT LIFE IS A CRAZY, MEANINGLESS THING...!
"DAY NURSERY MAY CLOSE" ...I DON'T GET THE CONNECTION...!

MICKEY FINN — Rumors — By Lank Leonard

WELL, FLOSSIE — HOW DO YOU LIKE THE JOB?
SWELL, MRS. FINN! I'M LEARNING TO BE A RIVETER!
WHEN YOU WRITE TO TOM TONIGHT, ARE YOU GOING TO TELL HIM YOU'RE WORKING?
OF COURSE I AM, PHIL — AND HE'LL BE GLAD! IT'LL HELP ME STAND THE STRAIN OF WORRYING ABOUT HIM!
I—I WONDER WHERE THEY ARE TONIGHT?
THERE'S NO USE WONDERIN' ABOUT THAT — THEY KNOW WHERE THEY ARE, AND THAT'S ALL THAT MATTERS!
WE'RE NOT GOING TO ICELAND, THAT'S A CINCH! IT'S GETTIN' HOTTER BY THE MINUTE!
I'VE GOT A HUNCH WE'RE HEADING FOR PANAMA — AND THE PACIFIC!
I'LL LET YOU IN ON THE LATEST RUMOR, BOYS — IT'S GONNA BE THE MEDITERRANEAN!

MR. AND MRS. — It Makes Such a Difference — By Arthur Folwell and Ellison Hoover

RIGHT AROUND HOME — By Dudley Fisher

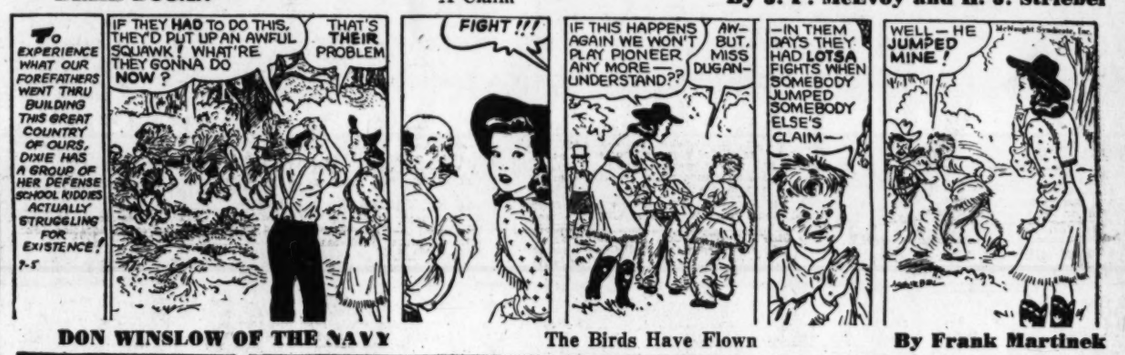
I'VE BEEN TRYING TO GET FREDDIE TO CUT THE GRASS, BUT I'M GETTING NO PLACE!
WHY DON'T YOU START TO CUT IT, YOURSELF? HE'LL FEEL ASHAMED OF HIMSELF AND FINISH THE JOB!
WAIT A MINUTE, SUSIE!
IF THERE'S ONE THING I CAN'T STAND-IT'S A SQUEAKY LAWN-MOWER!

DIXIE DUGAN — A Claim — By J. P. McEvoy and H. J. Striebel



TO EXPERIENCE WHAT OUR FOREFATHERS WENT THRU BUILDING THIS GREAT COUNTRY OF OURS, DIXIE HAS A GROUP OF HER DEFENSE SCHOOL KIDDIES ACTUALLY STRUGGLING FOR EXISTENCE!
IF THEY HAD TO DO THIS, THEY'D PUT UP AN AWFUL SQUAWK! WHAT'RE THEY GONNA DO NOW?
THAT'S THEIR PROBLEM
FIGHT!!!
IF THIS HAPPENS AGAIN WE WON'T PLAY PIONEER ANY MORE — UNDERSTAND??
AW-BUT, MISS DUGAN—
—IN THEM DAYS THEY HAD LOTSA FIGHTS WHEN SOMEBODY JUMPED SOMEBODY ELSE'S CLAIM—WELL—HE JUMPED MINE!

JOE PALOOKA — C'mon Play Ball — By Ham Fisher

THEY GOT EVRY HUN-- AN' THE ONE THAT WAS CHASIN' US CRASHED.
LET'S GIT GOIN'-- HOKY SMOKES WE GOTTA GIT TH' GAME STARTED AGAIN!!
I'M AFRAID BY THE TIME THEY GOT THE TEAMS ON THE FIELD IT'D BE DARK-- LOOK HOW DARK IT'S GETTIN'-- G'WAN YER NUTS-- C'MON HURRY UP.
HEY--HEY C'MON PLAY BALL-C'MON!
IT SUDDENLY BECOMES NIGHT HERE-- IT AIN'T LIKE BACK HOME.
THE GAME'LL BE CALLED ON ACCOUNT OF DARKNESS-- THAT'S THE RULE-- YOU KNOW THAT-- YOU PLAYED OFTEN ENOUGH.
PIPE DOWN WILYA--DON'T GO GIVEN NO IDEAS--
HEY, C'MON GIT ON YER PLACES!

DON WINSLOW OF THE NAVY — The Birds Have Flown — By Frank Martinek

SOMEHOW I FEEL WE ARE SURROUNDED BY DANGER!!
BLACKIE, ARE YOU SURE NO ONE FOLLOWED YOU HERE?
NO CHANCE, BOSS, THE SNATCH WAS CLEAN AS A WHISTLE!!
GENERAL.. GENERAL— IT'S THE FEDERALS!! THEY'VE GOT THE JOINT SURROUNDED!!
CLEAN AS A WHISTLE, EH, BLACKIE? WHY YOU...YOU MIGHT JUST AS WELL HAVE INVITED THEM IN!! HURRY ALL OF YOU AND GET INTO THE STREET TUNNEL!!
WHAT ABOUT THAT NAVY GUY, BOSS? HE'S IN THE HOLE!
IT'S TOO LATE TO FOOL WITH HIM! LET HIM STAY THERE! WE'VE GOT TO MAKE OUR GETAWAY THROUGH THIS DUMB-WAITER!
MEANWHILE
OPEN THE DOOR OR WE'LL KICK IT IN!!!

JANE ARDEN — Sending for Help — By Monte Barrett and Russell Ross

THERE'S SOMETHING QUEER GOING ON AT THAT GAS STATION- FIRST THEY WOULDN'T SELL US GAS-
THEN, WHEN THEY SAW I WAS GOING TO WAIT, THEY CHANGED THEIR MINDS-SHUT OFF THE MOTOR-SOMEONE'S PASSING-
JUST A GIRL! SHE WON'T KNOW WHY IT'S RUNNING
WHAT'S UP? ANYTHING WRONG?
I THINK SO-GO IN THAT DRUG STORE AND CALL THE POLICE, TUBBY- I'LL WATCH HERE-

BIG CHIEF WAHOO — By Saunders and Woggon

CRACK! CRACK!
YOU FOOL! THAT'S MY DAUGHTER DRIVING THAT CAR!
JUMP IN THE CRIB WITH ME!! AS SOON AS IT'S DARK, WE'LL ALL MAKE A RUN FOR IT IN YOUR CAR, GALE!!!

SUPERMAN — Hear Superman 5:45 P.M. Today—WOL — By Jerry Siegel and Joe Shuster

RUN FOR YOUR LIVES!
CAN NOTHING STOP THAT AMAZING BEING!
MANY HAVE TRIED, NONE HAVE SUCCEEDED!
SURPRISE!
BEHOLD-THE HIGHLY VAUNTED SUPERMAN FALLS VICTIM TO JAPANESE INGENUITY!

DONALD DUCK — Not Caught Napping! — By Walt Disney

Y' MEAN T' SAY YOU'RE GOIN' T' WEAR THOSE THINGS T' THE BEACH?
IT'S INDECENT! ABSOLUTELY INDECENT!
MEN'S DRESSING-ROOM
HI, TOOTS!
